NIGHT WALL ST. CLOSING PRICES

Today

It Is Constitutional.
Two Big Diamonds.
Terrific Earthquake.
NRA and Birth Control.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is glad to learn from Mr. Cummings, United States attorney general, that his monetary plan, for a less expensive dollar and more expensive gold, is constitutional.

It is constitutional also for the government to take any gold that citizens may have, and pay them at the old twenty-dollar-an-ounce price. It is perhaps advisable for Congress to pass a law indorsing the money plan and the attorney general's decision.

The Constitution says something about confiscation "without due process of law." Legislation by Congress will fix that.

WHEN ANYTHING good is found, a gold strike or anything of that kind, it is wise to hunt around for more.

Twenty-six years ago, at Elands Fontein, twenty miles from Pretoria in South Africa, there was discovered the huge Cullinan diamond, biggest ever known.

The Transvaal government gave it to Edward VII 26 years ago. Several stones were cut from that Cullinan diamond. The biggest, the "Star of Africa," is now in the British royal sceptre. The next largest is in the British crown. They add to King George's royal majesty.

Recently, somebody, convinced that where you find one big diamond you might find another, has found in a loose stone, not far from the spot where the Cullinan was found, two very large diamonds, one weighing 508, the other 726 carats, the bigger stone perfect and flawless.

The finder has refused $375,000 "contemptuously" for these two pieces of almost pure carbon.

THE NORTHERN part of India, close to the foot of the Himalaya Mountains and gigantic Mt. Everest, reports the worst earthquake that the world has seen for years, most disastrous, perhaps, in destruction of lives since the Lisbon earthquake that caused many to lose their faith in Providence, because of crowds killed in the churches where they had taken refuge.

FROM FIVE to seven thousand are reported killed in India, the streets of one city filled with ruins and dead bodies.

A thing new in earthquakes, water is reported spouting from the earth through great fissures, adding flood to the earthquake's terror.

The Himalaya Mountains are far away, and lists of dead impress us little. But that water, spurting from the ground high into the air, is impressive.

It reminds us of the marvelous safety in which we travel, usually, on this earth, whirling a thousand miles an hour on its axis, traveling through the ether at absolute zero, with the blood in our bodies, on which life depends, maintaining the same even temperature at the equator or at the North Pole.

We have cause for thankfulness.

MRS. MARGARET SANGER, her specialty birth control, which in this country can be taught legally only to the rich, with expensive doctors, is running a birth control convention in Washington. A banner with an ingenious device shows the NRA eagle, its lightning bolt aimed at numerous storks, supposed to bring too many babies.

Mrs. Sanger says the time is not far off "when this government will be called upon to face the question of birth control and sterilization as well."

THE UNITED STATES, up to 1929 did quite well without extensive official sterilization or government-encouraged birth control.

Poor women, of course, are entitled to full knowledge concerning control of the number of children they choose to have. But fewer babies in the United States barring children of the very poor, whose parents cannot give them proper care, would be a calamity.

We need fifty million more population to eat what farmers produce, and buy second-hand automobiles.

WILLIAM GOERING, premier of Prussia, said to be now more or less in disgrace with Hitler, issues an order abolishing all Prussian Masonic lodges, including "the grand national mother lodge of the three terrestrial globes," whatever they may be, and the grand lodge of German Freemasons of the German Christian order.

Herr Goering thinks one patriotic society based on Prussian patriotism is enough for Prussia, and that it does not need any secret societies, Masonic, religious or others.

Some in America agree with him, but primitive human nature demands the right to organize itself mysteriously. Such organizations flatter the conceit of semi-barbaric people, and it is dangerous to check such primitive impulses.

SILENTLY, QUIETLY as the Arabs folded their tents and stole away, 163 big ships from Europe and Canada abandoned "Rum Row," twelve miles off the coast of New York, sadly gave up their profitable bootlegging enterprises. Repeal of prohibition accomplished that.

THE RUM ROW ships are said to have taken their cargoes of two million gallons, chiefly rye and bourbon whisky, to West Indian ports, where they can ship it into the United States "legitimately." A great part of the whisky is expected to come here from British Honduras, through New Orleans.

Government officials express satisfaction that "the supply of available liquor in this country will be increased."

RICH ST. PAUL BANK HEAD KIDNAPED

Son of Brewer Held For $200,000 Ransom, Note Reveals

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Kidpaners, demanding $200,000 ransom, yesterday abducted Edward G. Bremer, banker, son of Adolph Bremer, wealthy St. Paul brewer and prominent Democrat of Minnesota, the police said today.

The 37-year-old president of the Commercial State Bank, was picked up by several men between 8:15 and 10 a. m. Wednesday upon his return from Chicago.

The police said they had received no official notification of the abduction and members of the Bremer family refused to discuss it.

Abduction of Bremer, whose father owns a controlling interest in the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company, followed by seven mnoths, the kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., millionaire president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing Company, who paid $100,000 for his freedom last June.

NEPHEW OF BANKER

Otto Bremer, director of the American National Bank here, and Minnesota manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, is an uncle of the mising man, who was seized after taking his eight-year-old daughter, Betty, to the Summit grade school.

Bremer presumably started for the bank after leaving his daughter. He did not reach there, the kidnapers apparently stopping his automobile and taking both him and the car.

The next heard of the bank president was an alleged anonymous telephone call to Walter W. Magee, wealthy contractor, from a man speaking in a low voice. Magee was told the Bremer car could be found in the Highland Park district of St. Paul and that there was a note on the back doorstep of Magee's home.

CALL NOT TRACED

Magee attempted to prolong the conversation, that the call might be traced, but the unidentified party suddenly hung up.

At home, Nagee found a typewritten note addressed to "Charles Magee" and signed in ink with a shaky hand. The missive gave Magee instructions for contacting the kidnapers but the contents were not made public.

Hepburn's Mother Leads House Birth Control Fight

High School Pupils 'Bootleg' Data, Committee Told

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, mother of six children including the actress, Katharine Hepburn, advocated the Pierce birth control bill before the House Judiciary Committee today with these words:

"The terror of race suicide is nonsense, for women want children—but they want them when they can afford them physically and economically.

"Race suicide talk is just as ridiculous as that of those who said, when the women wanted the vote, that for them to go to the polls would destroy the home."

PIERCE URGES REPEAL

Accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Sanger, Mrs. Hepburn was introduced by Representative Walter Pierce (Dem.), of Oregon.

Representative Pierce told the committee that "there is hardly a high school boy or girl who does not know more about it (birth control) than you who sit around this table."

Author of a bill to allow dissemination of contraceptive information, he said the law against mail distribution of such information was unenforceable and causing a "bootleg traffic." He said:

"As governor of Oregon, I made a desperate effort to enforce the prohibition law. I am a real prohibitionist personally and politically. Yet my state voted repeal of that law because it was being broken."

He said repeal of the anti-birth control sections of the criminal code was "in keeping with the repeal of prohibition."

He said he was the father of six children, and grandfather of seven.

MRS. SANGER HITS LAW

Auburn-haired Mrs. Sanger, in a green-brimmed hat with a brown band and green suit, lashed out against what she termed the "absurd situation" of the "forgotten women." She said:

"She can have her child's teeth and adenoids cared for at clinics. She can send her children to get free luncheons. But she can do nothing for her own most pressing problem."

She told of having received more than a million letters from mothers crying out against their child-bearing burden.

Several times, the birth control advocates were interrupted by questions from Representative Arthur D. Healey (Dem.), of Massachusetts, who sought to bring out that the measure might cause a declining population.

After the committee had argued at length on population balance, Mrs. Hepburn drily commented:

"As a lay person, I might suggest to the members of the committee who are obviously against us, and who are so concerned about the birth rate, that with 12,000,000 persons on public support, I should think that was the last thing we had to worry about now."

Birth control advocates, led by Mrs. Sanger and Mrs. Hepburn, had marched up Capitol Hill in such numbers that Chairman Sumners had to move the hearing to the huge House caucus room, which was speedily filled.

He allotted three hours to the proponents and three to opponents of the bill, which would so amend the criminal code as to permit dissemination of information by the medical profession.

Congress Awake to Danger Of U. S. Rule by Bureaucrats, Declares Richard W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Bureaucracy!

This is a word heard more and more often in the office buildings and cloak rooms of this Congress.

Already, it is being noted, we have approximately three-quarters of a million federal employes and there will be more, not less.

When the government engages in the business of taking over control, regulation and oversight of our economic and social life, no matter how much sympathy you have for it, you have to face this fact.

THE MILLION PERSONALITIES NEEDED TO RUN THE COUNTRY ARE NOT A MILLION FRANKLIN ROOSEVELTS.

Roosevelt knows it and is learning it.

Congress is awake to it.

THE WORD "bureaucracy" may not be pleasant, but on Capitol Hill that word is being passed around.

Harding, Coolidge and Hoover all tried to cut out duplication, tried to replace quantity of bureaucracy with quality and efficiency. But still bureaucracy, even before the New Deal, gave so much to government to do, not only resisted the lawn mower but grew like a weed.

"It is not the expense of the thing which need worry us as much as the creation of a system by which it may take half the people of the United States to regulate the other half. It is not so much the fear of the rising cost of government as it is the fear of meddling, interfering, questionnaire-spreading, snooping, autocratic, inefficiency," said one Senator to a group.

It is not so much the drain upon the taxpayer's pocket as the multiplying of dangers of corruption, of intrigue, and popinjay control of those who know their business by others who know next to nothing about the business.

MEMBERS of Congress who are familiar with the red-tape, the petty corruption, and the political intrenchment of European bureaucracies today are shuddering somewhat at the possible menace of such a growth in our own federal system. They will be heard during this session.

Today when it was announced that the Controller General, McCarl, had declared unconstitutional the plan for the government to go into landlordism through the Housing Corporation, the discussion arose again.

Criticism of the New Deal has no part in the apprehension. Commonly it is said about growing bureaucracy, "Let us have quality rather than quantity." We may not be able to find seven hundred thousand Franklin Roosevelts, but let us have fewer and better imitations of such an administrator as he.

Experience shows that once a bureau is set up its tenacity is astounding because so much political influence falls in behind it.

Experience has shown that the more men there are in government, the less efficiency and the more corruption and scandal.

What the President may well consider is that legislation may be all right, intentions may be all right, the designs may be all right.

ADMINISTRATION IS THE GREATEST DANGER OF ALL.

The million men thought to be needed will not all turn out to be in the President's class and it is difficult to be rid of those who are not.

COUNCILMAN WOULD TAX ESTATES

10 Pct. Assessment On Ground Rents Advocated

A $5 a year tax on all public utility meters and a 10 per cent tax on ground rents will be proposed by Councilman John J. Kane in the new Council's first budget session today as an aid to balancing the budget.

The meter tax, Kane estimates, would bring in $3,000,000 revenue in 1934. The budget is about $2,000,000 out of balance.

Both measures are within the power of Council, Kane says. The 1932 special session of the Legislature authorized Pittsburgh to levy a tax on persons, transactions, occupations, privileges, subjects and personal property not taxed by the state.

PROTECTING PAYROLL

Kane indicated he would present ordinances providing both levies at next Monday's Council session after discussing them today. They are designed to protect real estate owners from further tax burdens and to guard necessary city employes from pay cuts or dismissal.

Kane said:

"The City of Pittsburgh, having asked its citizens to endure until it hurts, cannot load more burdens upon those who are already hard pressed.

"Nor can the city sabotage the principles of national recovery by discharging or suspending necessary employes, or by lowering the compensation of poorly paid employes.

TAX ON 'PRIVILEGE'

Kane, stating that the utilities measure is the first of a series "to tax the protected privileges and excessive profits of the utilities," denied it would prevent them from delivering efficient service or from earning a fair profit.

He said he had prepared the plan in co-operation with a group interested in balancing the budget without adding further to the sacrifices already borne by real estate owners and city employes.

The ground rent tax, he said, was proposed to him by Mayor William Nissley McNair. Kane

GIRL IN CRASH TURNS 'PORTIA'

Josephine Bennett, attractive young woman who collects traffic tags, made her first visit under the McNair administration to Traffic Court today.

But, believe it or not, Josephine was not answering tags—just a summons. She complained that this morning, at Baum boulevard and Craig street, a car driven by Charles Scott, Negro, had sideswiped her Packard coupe and caused $300 damage.

Josephine had a lawyer but she herself questioned Scott, who was driving the otherwise empty car of E. H. Sutton, of the King Edward apartments, until Magistrate Charles Papale called a halt. Scott, who was fined $10 said Josephine was "hogging" the road.

This was in one sense Josephine's most pleasant visit to Traffic Court. Heretofore she has had batches of tags to explain away. In fact, things got so bad a few years ago that Josephine announced she was abandoning motoring for horseback riding.

DR. WYNEKOOP 'CONFESSION' HIT

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The oral confession of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop that she fired a bullet into the back of her daughter-in-law, on the afternoon of November 21, was introduced today in the murder trial of Dr. Wynekoop by the testimony of Police Capt. John Stege. The jury had been excluded.

The confession, which was virtually a duplication of the written confession signed on November 24 by Dr. Wynekoop and repudiated by her later, was made on the morning of November 24, in the presence of Capt. Stege and Dr. Harry W. Hoffman, psychiatrist of the Behavoir Clinic, Stege testified.

DURESS CHARGED

Judge Joseph B. David reserved ruling on whether the oral statement should be admitted, and the prosecution and defense argued heatedly meanwhile about admissability of the written statement.

Defense Attorney W. W. Smith charged:

"That statement was obtained under duress and with about the most inhuman treatment I have ever heard of.

"I can prove she was questioned all night without rest, food, drink, or opportunity to consult with anyone—and that's pretty cruel for a woman 62 years old."

In the written statement, placed in the records at the Coroner's inquest into Rheta's death, Dr. Alice admitted firing the bullet into her daughter-in-law's back after life apparently had ceased because of an overdose of chloroform administered to ease pain during an examination.

PINCHOT TO SIGN OLD AGE BILL

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The end of Pennsylvania's long legislative fight over the old age assistance bill was in view today, as Gov. Gifford Pinchot prepared to place his signature on the bill.

At St. Luke's Hospital, where Gov. Pinchot is convalescing, a small group gathered to see the signature added.

In the group—all leaders in sponsoring the bill—were Senator Frank Harris, of Pittsburgh; Representative Arnold Blumberg, of Philadelphia, and John Phillips, of Fredericksburg, Pennsylvania state president of the American Federation of Labor.

The fight over the bill, which is viewed by its sponsors as a step toward the elimination of poor homes, has extended over 20 years.

Arrest of Sinclair In Bank Crash Near

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Warrants for the arrest of Harry F. 2 Girls Identify Man As Mt. Royal Assailant

A laugh in the lonely Mt. Royal road, two strong arms grasping her, her cry in the dark for help, and the glimpse of a man fleeing with her purse was all Miss Mina Specht, of Mt. Royal road, Shaler Township, could tell Alderman Thomas M. Geary today of a man who followed and attempted to attack her January 5.

She could not identify absolutely Edward Beyerley, 45, of Beyerley avenue, Shaler Township, accused of terrorizing women in the neighborhood.

But Alberta Meier, 23, also of Mt. Royal road, "absolutely identified" him as the man who grasped her a few nights later.

Beyerley was held for court by Alderman Geary. He had been arrested Monday by County Detective John Duderstadt.

Miss Specht said:

"He followed me. I caught a glimpse of him, and the clothing of this man resembles that worn by him. I could recognize the peculiar laugh, or his voice, if he talked. But I am not certain of his face."

She explained she dropped her pocketbook when she called for help and the man took it. There was little money in it, was worth $4, she said.

According to Acting Chief of County Detectives Robert McMillen, Beverley served 11 years in the penitentiary after he had been convicted in 1921 of slaying his wife. He was paroled in 1932.

MENDIETA NEW CUBAN RULER

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Carlos Mendieta, 60-year-old physician, statesman and revolutionary, today was made president of Cuba—the fifth president in as many months.

Mendieta entered an office which had been vacant overnight, since Carlos Hevia, who had held office 40 hours, suddenly resigned.

The presidency was given to Mendieta by acclamation of a group of leaders of Cuban political life who gathered in the palace.

A bomb exploded near Mendieta's home just before dawn and caused considerable damage. The Mendieta family was asleep within the house but no one was injured.

A surprise strike early today tied up Havana's power, water, light, gas and transportation systems. The city was in darkness as all lights were turned off without warning.

Mendieta, in his first statement, said:

"Through the Associated Press I send the American people my government's and my own most cordial and affective greeting, hoping that Cuba may base herself on an order of reason and justice."

McNair Pays Visit To Faithful Backer

Uncompromising fidelity at the polls for William N. McNair today brought Albert Lenk, ill at his home, 2745 Queensboro avenue, Brookline, a visit from the Mayor and a promise of a job as soon as he recovers.

Every time McNair ran for a public office, Lenk cast his vote for him, and, although he had to be carried to the polls on a stretcher, he insisted on voting for him at the last election.

GUFFEY ATTACKS PINCHOT IN CONTROVERSY OVER CWA

SHOWDOWN DUE ON POLITICS CHARGE

Administrator's Plan For Expose Blocked By Board

A showdown on the charges of "politics" in the state civil works program was expected from Washington today at a conference between Eric H. Biddle, state administrator, and his federal chief, Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Biddle was expected to confer with Hopkins, but before their meeting Joseph F. Guffey, state Democratic leader, hastened to CWA headquarters. He added fuel to the fire of charges of political domination in the state CWA with a broadside at the state CWA administration and Gov. Pinchot.

EXPOSE BLOCKED

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Biddle's effort to make public letters of politicians seeking jobs for their friends was blocked by the advisory council of the State Bu[reau] of Employment.

Biddle sought to put the politi[cians] "on the spot," which would have the effect of scotching reports that his administration was dominated by political influence.

The advisory council, meeting in Philadelphia, approved Biddle's "objective" to divorce politics from the CWA employment program, but decided publication of letters would not have the desired results.

The action was revealed by William E. Quinby, of Pittsburgh, a member of the council.

The advisory body recommended that the state employment service be put under Civil Service regulation. Explaining its position, the council said:

"The service needs, and never has refused, to receive letters and information that will aid its staff to function intelligently. It therefore seems that any measure that might open all correspondents to suspicion, and would make any outside agency the judge of its correspondence, would be only too apt to shut off much needed help.

"It would tend to hinder the efforts the service is making to get people back to work."

GUFFEY'S CHARGE

Guffey charged Pennsylvania Republicans are attempting to use CWA funds to "finance a political machine out of human misery and suffering." Se said:

"The handling of the CWA in Pennsylvania is a rotten mess, and it smells to high heaven. It has to be cleaned out at once, and I'm going to se Harry L. Hopkins, CWA administrator, today, and ask for a thorough housecleaning. And I want the cleaning to be done from Washington, not from Harrisburg. To do it from Harrisburg is like asking a man to investigate himself.

"The roots of this whole business are in Harrisburg. It's important to remember that the CWA gives the money for the jobs, but the jobs themselves are given through agencies of the state. A state repartment at Harrisburg controls the employment agencies which are supposed to give out CWA jobs without any partiality.

"That department, like all other state departments, is directly under Fov. Pinchot and the Republican state machine. The appointees and supporters of Gifford Pinchot and the Republican state machine are doing the managing and they have got to answer for the consequences."

The federal CWA today halted purchase of materials and supplies for use on projects throughout the country in preparation for possible stoppage of the civil works program on February 10, because of funds running out, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

W. N. McCutcheon, purchasing agent here, said $500,000 had been allocated for materials and supplies in Allegheny County, but only $150,000 had been spent.

MacDonald Booed In Home District

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Prime Ministetr J. Ramsay MacDonald, who faced a hostile audience of hecklers at a political meeting in his own constituency of Seaham Harbor last night, was "hustled" away under a police guard, the Daily Express said today.

Two hundred police guarded the hall in which MacDonald defended the record of his national government, and kept the crowd back after the meeting.

STATE OPPOSES COMPANY UNION

Independent unions in the Pittsburgh district today were fighting for their very existence. Yesterday Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, turned down the applications of five of the unions to operate in Pennsylvania as organizations. He refused them registration under the state's fictitious names act.

Foremost among the five was the Miners' Independent Brotherhood of Smock, in the Connellsville coke region.

The brotherhood, said to have been sponsored by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, was chosen as the majority party for collective bargaining at several Frick mines. It was the only organization granted complete recognition by the United States Steel subsidiary. The question of recognition of the United Mine Workers still is bitterly contested before the National Labor Board at Washington.

Beamish, in refusing registration under the state's fictitious names act, also turned down the application of four other so-called "independent" unions. These included the Plate Glass Protective Union, Works No. 1 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company at Creighton; the Bricklayers' Independent Union of America, of Wilmerding; the Independent Motion Picture Operators' Union of Wilkinsburg, and the Keystone State Motion Picture Operators' Association of Philadelphia.

STRIKERS DEFY LABOR BOARD

WILKES-BARRE, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Striking anthracite miners today voted defiance of the National Labor Board and agreed to carry their grievances directly to President Roosevelt.

Delegates to the convention of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania accepted proposals to ask President Roosevelt to appoint an arbitration board and agreed to a continuance of the strike until their demands have been met.

A temporary injunction restraining members of the United Anthracite miners from picketing mines of the Hudson Coal Company, was handed down today by Judge Benjamin R. Jones of Luzerne County Court.

Terms of the injunction are similar to that granted by Judge Newcomb of Lackawanna County where the Penn Anthracite Collieries Company asked to be relieved of molestation by striking miners.

Weather Conditions.

A trough of low pressure, extending from the upper lakes (Minneapolis, Minn., 29.988), southward to Southern Texas (Brownsville, 30.04), separates two highs, one over the Appalachians (Elkins, W. Va., 30.46), and the other over the plateau (Montana) and North Dakota (Williston, N. D., 30.28). Precipitation has been confined to light snow in the lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley, light rain along the North Pacific coast, and light to moderate rain in Texas and Louisiana. It is colder along the Atlantic coast and inland over the Appalachians, over North Dakota, Montana and portions of the Canadian Northwest and warmer in the central valleys and eastern plains.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 2.5 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.7; Pittsburgh, 12.2; Dam No. 4, 9.8; No. 6, 9.8; No. 10, 9.2, and No. 12, 8.7. The dams are up.

WEIR TO REVISIT ROOSEVELT

Out of a second scheduled conference between President Roosevelt and Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the Weirton Steel Company, is expected to come a compromise solution of the company's troubles with the National Labor Board.

Weir said today:

"The President invited me to confer with him. We had a conference at the White House. He asked me if I could suggest any solution, and I promised to think the matter over and see him later."

Thus the fight over the election of union representatives in the Weirton plants may end, not in prosecution of Weir by the Attorney General, but in an amicable settlement. Friends of Weir are confident of that much.

Weir and Gen. Johnson split when Weir refused to allow the National Labor Board to dictate the method of electing union delegates at the Weirton mills.

It is understood that Department of Justice agents substantiated Weir's contention that a majority of the workers favored the present, or so-called company, union.

BAR 'RUNNERS' UNDER BAN

A new deal in legal ethics was in force today following an order yesterday by Presiding Judge A. B. Reid of Common Pleas Court prohibiting employment of "runners" in damage cases. The Bar Association had long eampaigned against such practices.

Gifts to policemen and physicians are ruled out, and attorneys are forbidden to pay physicians anything other than the compensation agreed upon for such service, the payment not to be determined by the outcome of the case.

Any attorney who violates the order faces contempt of court charges. The order also provides that any client dissatisfied with his share of damages recovered may appeal to court for a ruling on a fair fee. Attorneys also are required to file duplicate statements showing disposition of sums received.

McNair Fails to End Bakery Truck Strike

Mayor William N. McNair today conferred with both sides in the strike of the Ward Baking Company and Baur Baking Company truck drivers, but nothing developed, according to the Mayor's secretary.

Thomas Dunn, business agent for the drivers; J. W. Hines, vice president of the Baur concern, and A. C. Jewett, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh NRA Labor Board, attended.

CROWD STORMS NORTH SIDE RELIEF UNIT

Mob Demands Action On 6 Emergency Aid Cases

Five hundred men and women, most of them members of the Unemployed Citizens' League of Allegheny County, last night besieged the North Side unit of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, 521 Sandusky street, demanding to know why no action had been taken on six emergency cases on file at the unit.

Half of them arrived before the offices closed, and, through their leader, Robert Leiberman, chairman of the league, announced they would stay until a satisfactory explanation was offered. At dinner time, the league served coffee and "depression sandwiches" not only to its members, but to the three women welfare workers as well.

DIRECTOR QUIZZED

George P. Mills, executive director of the county board, came to investigate. From the crowd of men and women which the league officials then estimated at 500, came shouts:

"Don't let him out! Make him explain! Lock the door!"

Meeting with the executives, Mills was asked by Lieberman why the six families which had appealed for help at the North Side offices had not been taken care of. He pointed out that two of the applications for welfare aid were filed two weeks ago and the others four a week ago. There were complaints, too, that orders for coal and clothing were slow.

DELAY EXPLAINED

Mills today explained that the cases drawing complaints were being cared for by the relief. Several of the cases received orders yesterday and the remainder would be attended to today. Explaining the delay in issuing relief, Mills said:

"Every application is investigated and unless it is an emergency case, relief might not be started for a month. If it is found the family is caring for itself and can continue to do so for awhile, orders are not issued immediately. If there is no food and the family is in dire circumstances, emergency orders are issued."

Leiberman said, in part:

"These people filed their applications for help at the North Side unit in the last two weeks. Not one of them had been investigated by your workers. They came to us to learn why no action had been taken. We're here to know the reason and we'll stay here until we get a satisfactory answer."

ACCUSED OF EVASION

Mills replied:

"These cases are in the process of being taken care of."

Leiberman accused Mills of being evasive.

WILL SEEK CONFERENCE

Mills made his way through the crowd and walked in the direction of the North Side Police Station when two officers of the league caught up with him and announced that the crowd would leave upon their orders.

Mills returned and conferred again with the officers of the league. He said he would endeavor to arrange a meeting with the officials of the Emergency Relief Board.

Before the crowd departed Leiberman asked them to attend the league's meeting at 1:30 p. m. today in the league's headquarters, 120 First avenue.

LIBRARY WAGES LIKENED TO SWEATSHOP

Director Testifies to Earnings Averaging $3.50 Weekly

Wages equal to those found in industrial plants during the sweatshop probe are being paid at the Carnegie Library of PiPttsburgh it was revealed today as City Council opened its first budget session.

Revelation that the extremely low wage was being paid at the libraries came as Munn told Council no further reductions could be made in the budget. The students earning 18 cents an hour generally work 18 to 20 hours a week, drawing the average wage of $3.50.

Councilman John J. Kane, who plans to propose a new revenue source by taxing utility meters, remarked:

"That's hardly in harmony with the policy of the United States government."

The library does not operate under the NRA.

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith's budget findings will be submitted to Mayor William N. McNair tomorrow morning. A substantial savings, believed amounting to one million dollars or more, are reported suggested in the report being prepared by McNair's budget advisor.

COUNTY READY TO SET TAX

County Commissioners are scheduled to set the 1934 tax millage today, with a cut in the present 8¼ mills rate expected.

They yesterday concluded all preliminary business by selling the $6,806,000 in bonds previously authorized and by finishing action on the 1934 budget requests.

They face the present year with a budget reduced to slightly below $20,000,000 and with a deficit of about $1,500,000. They are expected to estimate a tax collection of 73 per cent on a county real and personal valuation amounting to almost two and one-half billion dollars.

CWA WORKERS TO HOLD CLASS

Fifteen hundred CWA workers are to attend classes in Soldiers Memorial Hall tomorrow and Saturday in preparation for the beginning of the county real property inventory and unemployment census, expected to start next week.

Lectures will be given by Reed O. Burford, training supervisor, on the procedure to be followed. All prospective enumerators will be compelled to take an examination before they will be hired for the project.

About 130 supervisors began preliminary work on the study yesterday. A meeting of all employes was to be held in Hunt Armory, East End, this afternoon. The enterprise is under the direction of E. F. Montague and T. A. Veenstra, of the Pitt Business Research Bureau.

Father Coughlin To Visit Roosevelt

Face Struck

MRS. MARGARET L. WILLITS

SAYS EX-MATE BEAT HER

CHICAGO, Jan. 18. — (AP.) — Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, niece of the wholesale drug executive, charged through her attorney in Superior Court her divorced husband, John McGregor Willits, "struck her in the face and otherwise attacked her" yesterday.

This new development in the marital life of the Willits was put into public records when the attorney, Frank B. Teed, filed a petition for a rule to show cause why Willits should not be held in contempt for his action.

Judge Joseph Sabath, before whom litigation for custody of the Willits' two children is pending, set today for a hearing on the petition. The husband was not in court.

Mrs. Willits, the attorney charged, was struck when she went to the divorced husband's home, at his suggestion, to see their children. Early today, Teed said, Willits came to her home and, forcing his way in, beat her again.

SHORTAGE SEEN IN STEEL LABOR

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—W. S. Tower, executive secretary of the American Iron & Steel Institution of New York today predicted a shortage of skilled labor in the steel industry if the expected rise in mill operations this spring reaches a substantial level. Tower is attending a meeting of steel men here to discuss and clarify provisions of the code. He said:

"Under the employment provisions of the code, the iron and steel industry added more than 60,000 employes before the close of 1933, despite the sharp decline in operations.

"If operations in the industry increase to as much as 70 per cent capacity at least 125,000 additional employes will be needed, making another heavy increase in wages distributed by the steel mills.

"Many of these added employes will be skilled operators and present indications are that the present supply of such workers would be exhausted long before requirements could be filled."

KANE PROPOSES $5 TAX ON METERS

Levy Against Ground Rents Also Urged By Councilman

stated he will support McNair's measure—indication that the heralded rift between the Councilman and the Mayor isn't irreparable.

Kane admitted the utility ordinance may be contested by the utility corporations in court and that, if the tax is upheld, it may result in the utilities bringing rate cases before the Public Service Commission in an attempt to pass the tax on to the public.

EMERGENCY LEVY

He declared:

"It is a tax to meet a public emergency and will be levied by direct authority of the Legislature, thus necessitating a new line of legal sophistry and new court decisions to circumvent."

Kane indicated his belief the utilities would not have much show in court, if they claimed discriminatory legislation, since they are protected monopolies.

As for a rate case, he said, the present Public Service Commission is already committed against raising rates to absorb taxation.

Taxi meters, electric meters, gas meters, water meters, even street car fare recorders come under the scope of the proposal, he said.

Companies that would pay the tax include the Duquesne Light Company, Equitable Gas Company, Allegheny Steam Heating Company, South Pittsburgh Water Company, Pennsylvania Water Company, the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Parmelee System.

GROUND RENT TAX

The ground rent tax would be aimed at rents paid to large property holders by many stores and office building operators whose leases call for the renter, rather than the owner, to pay taxes and improvement costs.

It is at these ground rents that McNair has attacked in many of his speeches advocating the single tax.

It is his theory that no man has a right to own property and receive income from it when somebody else pays for all the improvements, pays the taxes and transacts the business on it.

McNair points to the Schenley, Liggett and Hitchcock estates, which own large Downtown properties on which department stores have built their own buildings and must pay all taxes.

The 10 per cent tax on ground rents which Kane will suggest would strike at the income these land owners derive from others' initiative, according to theory, and, since most of the leases are for long periods, could not be passed on to the improvers of the properties.

FINANCIAL RELIEF

Kane feels that passage of the two measures will pull the city out of financial straits without pinching the pockets of the poor and without imposing too severe a burden on the utilities.

He apparently regards the utilities measure as one method to force the monopolies to pay their way and agrees with McNair on taxing the ground rent.

Kane is said to feel that the city payroll has been pared as much as possible and that there is no logic in taking men off the payroll only to have them go on relief.

Long a foe of the utilities and pledged to wage a campaign against them upon his election to Council, Kane apparently has seized upon this method of protecting the payroll at the expense of the so-called "vested interests."

Kane made it clear that the measures are being introduced by him personally rather and not by the Democratic bloc of four councilmen.

TWO BOUND MEN FOUND SLAIN

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The bodies of two white men, their throats slashed and stabbed through the heart and with their hands bound behind their backs, were found by a hunter in a highway canal near Manchas, St. John Parish, north of the city early today.

Authorities said the case bore the earmarks of a double gang killing. Indications were that the bodies had been dumped into the canal after the men had been slain.

Senators 'Clean Out' Full Dress Rent Shops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—When it comes to renting a full dress suit for a White House reception, Representative Dirksen, of Illinois, admits his inability to stand the competition.

Tonight is the annual reception given for members of Congress.

Dirksen said:

"I went into a dozen of those rental places, and every time they turned me away because, they said, all the other Senators and Congressmen had been there first and rented everything they had."

Finally, Dirksen said, he found a place, got a fit, and was walking out when he discovered a colleague trying to duck into a sideroom to evade detection of his "renting" act. Dirksen said, smiling:

"I just yelled, 'Hello, Congressman,' and he scarcely answered me. Why should I be ashamed of renting one?"

Million Dollar Incomes Drop to 20 in 1933

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.(AP.)—Only 20 individuals had incomes of a million dollars or more in 1932.

Five years ago 513 were making that.

This was shown in the report of Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The lucky 20 in 1932 had a total income of $35,239,556 and paid a tax of $15,534,321.

Individual income tax returns for 1932 numbered 3,760,402, of which 1,864,969, or less than one-half, were taxable. The gross income reported was $13,764,294,643, the net income $11,185,499,309, and the income tax, $324,744,617.

Of the income reported, wages and salaries accounted for $7,764,393,347, all but about a billion dollars of which was by persons with incomes up to $10,000.

Dividends of stocks accounted for $1,951,027,585, more than one-fifth of which was reported by persons with incomes under $5,000.

The average net income for all returns was $2,974.55. The average amount of tax liability for all returns was $86.36, and for taxable returns, $174.13. The average tax rate for all returns was 2.90 per cent.

Of the million dollar or more incomes, two were between four and five million dollars, three between two and three million dollars, three between one and a half and two million dollars, and 12 between one and one and a half million.

SHIP SAVES 14 IN STORM ON ATLANTIC

Survivors Land, Tell Thrilling Story of Rescue at Sea

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Three women survivors of the yacht Alamyth were thrown like sacks of wheat from the deck of the sinking craft to the arms of sailors in a wave-tossed lifeboat.

The story of their rescue, along with that of 11 men, in a sea so rough that no boat could tie to the Alamyth, was related today as soon as they arrived on the Coast Guard cutter Thetis.

The Alamyth, a two-masted auxiliary schooner 86 feet long, was abandoned by its small company at 11 a. m. yesterday, when water was pouring into its hull so fast that pumps could no longer save it.

Rescue of the survivors was effected by the tanker Gulfland 75 miles south of Barnegat, N. J.

SAILS RIPPED OFF

George E. Conklin, of Teaneck, N. J., organizer of the cruise which was to take the yacht through the South Seas on a share-the-cost basis, said a sudden veering of the wind at 5 a. m. yesterday brought disaster to his craft.

The cruise started from Passaic, N. J., Tuesday, he said, the schooner's engines propelling it out of the harbor. As soon as the open sea was reached the engines were shut down and sails hoisted.

Conklin and Charles Bradley were on the 4 to 8 a. m. watch. At 5 o'clock, Conklin said, the sudden veering of the wind carried away the peak halyard and brought down the foresail.

He called the other men to deck to haul in the canvas. The yacht began to ship water and two pumps were started, one a hand pump, the other with a motor.

DRIFT IN ROUGH SEA

They drifted then through a rough sea and bitter cold, with the wind lashing the yacht's bare poles and the leak in the craft ever widening.

At 11 a. m. they sighted the Gulfland. The yacht had no radio sending apparatus.

The ensign was run up, top side down. The Gulfland indicated understanding of the signal. The men then threw buckets of water over the side of the craft as sign language for "we are shipping water."

The Gulfland put out a small boat. It was too small to buck the great waves, and it had to return. A 36-passenger lifeboat was lowered and sent out under command of Chief Officer Martin Tammic.

LEAP TO SAFETY

So rough was the sea the lifeboat could make no contact with the Alamyth. It tossed several feet away. The sailors in it braced themselves, held out their arms and to them were hurled the three women, one at a time.

The men of the sinking craft were able to leap across the space It was bitter cold, they said. Mrs. Conklin was clad only in pajamas. Miss Gehben had only a sport suit. Mrs. Franklin Kobbe was clad in a dress, but had no coat.

With great difficulty the lifeboat was rowed back to the Gulfland, four oars breaking as waves whipped the sides.

The transfer later from the Gulfland to the cutter Thetis was almost as difficult.

Sea Yields Bodies Of 9 Ship Victims

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Nine sailors' bodies were washed ashore today at Vliahorst to show the fate of the crew of the British steamer Oakford stranded on the pounding surf near the Island of Texel. The Oakford had chartered a crew of 10 and it was feared the tenth man also was lost.

18 1-2-Pound Girl Born in Chester

CHESTER, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A daughter weighing 18½ pounds was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Czarnokol.

Physicians said the baby is as heavy as a normal 6-months-old child. Mrs. Czarnokol is 36 and the mother of two other children.

TRAIN, TROLLEY IN CRASH; 2 HURT

Woman Rider Hurled To Floor, Street Car Jerked From Track

A freight train of 18 loaded coal cars and a street car crashed into each other at the Amity street crossing of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad in Homestead at 6:30 a. m. today.

The street car was jerked off the tracks and turned half way around. The only passenger, Josephine Paskert, 24, and the motorman, Foster Melville, 42, were injured.

The freight train was backing and the safety gates were up, it is said, when the street car started across, colliding with the first freight car.

'RUNS INTO TRAIN'

The watchman, Howard L. Kline, 48, made this explanation, according to the police:

"I gave the motorman a light to come across the tracks. Then I saw the train backing up and I threw the emergency signal for the motorman to stop. He did not stop, but came across and ran into the end of the train."

The two injured were hurried to Homestead Hospital. Both suffered bruises and cuts. Motorman Melville may lose the sight of one eye. Miss Paskert, a telephone operator, who lives at 418 Ninth avenue, Munhall, described:

"All I know is when I was knocked to the floor I was not unconscious. I picked myself up. I was knocked down again. When I got up a second time, I was thrown against a pole in the car. That is when the car turned."

WINDOWS SMASHED

The motorman was knocked unconscious. The street car windows and the car cab were smashed.

The street car, a Penn-Shady, was headed for Pittsburgh. A few minutes later a second trolley, with 50 passengers, was stopped at the scene. Traffic was disrupted.

The watchman was arrested on a charge of violating a borough ordinance and released on his own recognizance. Acting Chief John J. Jenkin explained this was a formality.

ALICE DENIES SHE LOVES VALLEE

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Alice Faye, film actress, enlivened the Rudy Vallee-Fay Webb Vallee marital battle today in a stinging answer to the charges made against her in Mrs. Vallee's separate maintenance suit.

Miss Fay's statement was issued shortly after Mrs. Vallee had filed an amended complaint listing 12 cities and dates where and when she charged Miss Faye and Vallee were guilty of misconduct.

Mrs. Vallee also included a third "Jane Doe" in the list of Vallee's asserted intimate friends.

Miss Faye declared that she was never more than "a shoulder on which Mr. Vallee might cry when he was grieving over his wife's attitude toward him and her failure to return his love."

"As I have previously stated, Mr. Vallee and I were never more than friends and coworkers. During the time specified in the amendment to the complaint I was employed as a singer with the Connecticut Yankees. At the times mentioned we were on tour of a number of cities in the South and East.

"During practically all that time we were accompanied by a number of wives of the men in the orchestra. I was rarely alone with Mr. Vallee.

"I know that constantly during that time he was very much in love with his wife. Time and again I noticed him sending wires to Mrs. Vallee, writing her letters and making long distance telephone calls. I know that he begged and pleaded with her to join him. His heart and mind were on his wife and at no time on any other girl.

"I have never been anything to Mr. Vallee other than a friend, and the most friendly of all acts I have ever done for him was, figuratively speaking, to give him a shoulder on which to cry when his wife's conduct caused him so much grief and mental suffering.

"That is, he had to have some one to talk to about his troubles, and I was that someone.

"At those times I did all in my power to cheer him and talk him out of the despondency caused by Mrs. Vallee's refusal to join him or to reciprocate the great love I know he had for her."

Mrs. Vallee's attorneys said the identity of the third "Jane Doe" would be guarded unless it became necessary to reveal it. The complaint accused Vallee of intimacy with the woman in Los Angeles January 4.

Hearing on Mrs. Vallee's petition for $7,400 a month temporary alimony was continuel until January 24.

GARBO MAPPING NO MORE TRIPS

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—Greta Garbo, film star, and Rouben Mamoulian, her film director, are planning no future automobile trips together, Mamoulian said today, "because we returned from the present trip much more tired than when we left."

Mamoulian, whose romance with Miss Garbo began a few months ago during the making of "Queen Christina," said:

"We are not married, nor do we intend to be. I do not know what Miss Garbo's views on the subject of matrimony are, as we have never discussed marriage.

"Miss Garbo is a brilliant, delightful companion, and we mutually decided a motor trip would be a pleasant rest . . . However, we were sadly mistaken. We had no idea, of course, that a lot of the citizens in the towns where we stopped were going to turn out to be amateur sleuths and peeping Toms, intent on establishing our identities."

Miss Garbo remained in seclusion, as is her custom and had no comment to make about the trip.

DARROW SCORES STERILIZATION

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Clarence Darrow, nationally-known criminal lawyer of Chicago, said last night he does not approve of sterilization of defectives.

He announced his opposition to the recently inaugurated practice of the German government in answer to a question in a forum conducted after his address to the Men's Liberal Club. He also said that:

The Leopold-Loeb case was one of such nature that might never again happen in the history of the world.

The United States will continue to have crime until there is an equitable distribution of wealth.

In his address Darrow declared he "abhors" the lynching spirit, which he declared is the result of newspapers "playing up crime to divert attention from captains of industry who have got us in the mess that we now are."

Wynekoop 'Confession' Battle On

as a confession; it's only an explanation of the facts. A policeman thinks everything is a confession, even if it is admission of killing in self defense.

"If the statement were introduced and the jurors believed it, then they could return only one of two verdicts—acquittal or voluntary manslaughter."

In the oral remarks attributed by Stege to Dr. Wynekoop, there were several discrepancies of facts as later ascertained. For instance, Stege said the defendant told him she had not seen Rheta's husband, Earle, since November 12, and she has since admitted talking with him for two hours on November 19, two days before the girl's death.

Stege gave a vivid account of Dr. Wynekoop's oral statement to him regarding the circumstances of Rheta's death. He quoted the doctor as saying:

"Rheta had suffered abdominal pains, and on the day of her death, I suggested a physical examination. She disrobed and lay upon the examination table. I started making an internal examination and Rheta said it hurt. I told her to take a few whiffs of chloroform and the pain would cease.

HEART BEATS STOP

"I resumed the examination, asking at intervals, 'Does it hurt?' Finally I received no answer. I could detect no pulse or heart action even with a stethescope.

"Then the gun came into my mind. I got it from the next room, held it six inches from her back, and pulled the trigger."

While the attorneys battled over the admissibility of the evidence, one of the jurors, Fred Marsh, was speeded to a dentist's office for emergency treatment.

Advised that the juror was tormented with an aching molar, Judge David ordered two bailiffs to take him to his personal dentist. He directed:

"But under no condition is he to enter into any conversation with anyone, not even the dentist.

"He can indicate the tooth and say whether he wants it filled, pulled or treated, other than that he must say nothing."

The 62-year-old defendant appeared in better physical condition than yesterday as she started the second week of her trial. She declared she had a good night's sleep, and that a severe headache had left her during the night.

INSURANCE TESTIMONY

Continuing the line of attack begun the preceding day, the state called to the stand Miss Esther A. English, an agent for the Commercial Life Insurance Company. Miss English testified that on October 30, 1933, three weeks before Rheta Gardner Wynekoop was found slain on an operating table in the basement office of her mother-in-law's home, the witness had gone to the Wynekoop home. She said:

"I asked for Rheta and talked to her briefly. Then Dr. Wynekoop told me she would discuss the matter with me. Rheta left the room. I asked Dr. Wynekoop the questions and filled in the blanks myself. Then Dr. Wynekoop left the room and returned with Rheta's signature."

"Who was the beneficiary?"

"Earle, her husband, was the first beneficiary, and Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, Earle's sister, was the second.

"Who paid the premium?"

"Dr. Wynekoop paid be $5 for two months' premium."

"Was a medical examination required?"

The witness said it was not.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY

Prosecutor Dougherty then introduced the application as a state's exhibit and read it to the jury. It was an application for a double indemnity policy.

The defense introduced the policy itself as a defense exhibit.

Hymen G. Brown, a salesman for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, told of going to the Wynekoop home on August 9, 1933. Brown said he had called at the Wynekoop home weekly for a year collecting from Dr. Alice the premiums for a policy on John Van Pelt, janitor of the house.

He said Dr. Alice supplied most of the answers to routine questions of an application for a $10,000 policy for Rheta on Aug. 9. Rheta left the room before filling out of the application was completed, he said, and her mother-in-law took it to her to be signed. He said Dr. Wynekoop was named as beneficiary.

Prosecutor Dougherty asked:

"Did Rheta discuss the matter of the beneficiary with you?"

"No, sir."

POLICY REFUSED

The medical department of the home office declined the application, Brown testified.

Defense attorneys brought out that Dr. Alice could have arranged to pay the premiums on a monthly or quarterly basis if she wished, but that she agreed to pay it annually.

Further questioning by the state brought out that Dr. Wynekoop purportedly told Brown between August 9 and October 15 that her home had been robbed of money and drugs, and that she suggested paying the premiums on a quarterly basis.

The defense apparently was trying to impress the jury that if Dr. Wynekoop planned to kill Rheta for her insurance, she could have bought a cheap policy and paid only a short term premium.

KAMONS SEEKS PEN FREEDOM

A writ of habeas corpus was obtained today from Judge H. H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court by Attorneys Morris M. Berger and Allen H. Kerr, counsel for L. J. Kamons, formerly of Darlington road.

Kamons, convicted of arson in Beaver County in November, 1932, was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in the Western Penitentiary. Later accused of murder, he was extradited to Cuyahoga County, O., to face the charge there.

Found not guilty, he was brought back from Cleveland and returned to prison. Kamons' attorneys maintain that authorities here lost control of the case by granting extradition and that Kamons should be freed. January 25 was set for hearing.

CAR FIRM GETS SAFETY AWARD

Decrease of accidents by the Pittsburgh Railways Company has resulted in the winning of honorable mention in the annual Brady Memorial Safety Contest, it was announced today.

Accidents during the past year were 23.1 per cent less than those in 1932. Collisions involving the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company decreased 34.7 per cent.

The Brady Contest involves railway companies in cities in the United States and Canada with more than a three hundred thousand population. Representatives of the companies met at a luncheon in New York today where Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of Pittsburgh Railways Company accepted the honorable mention award.

SUB FOR TALLEY WINS OVATION

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Petite Rose Marie Brancato, taking the role originally planned for Marion Talley, made her grand opera debut last night before a capacity crowd, was given the greatest ovation received by any singer here so far this season and won acclaim from music critics.

The dimunitive 21-year-old Kansas City girl won her opportunity to appear with the Chicago Grand Opera Company when Miss Talley a few days ago returned to New York as a result of a salary difference over a second appearance. Miss Talley also formerly was from Kansas City.

By a coincidence, Miss Brancato made her debut in the role of "Gilda," in "Rigoletto," the same role Miss Talley first sang to give her public acclaim.

WAITERS BURY 'WOLF' LAMAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," who made fortunes in stock operations and squandered them, was saved from the Potter's Field yesterday.

Three men, who years ago as headwaiters were tipped handsomely for giving Lamar the best of service, came forward to pay for the funeral services and cemetery plot. Their names were not disclosed.

Only a handful of men and women attended the rites for the speculator who died penniless after a heart attack in a midtown hotel last week. Neither his widow nor daughter were there.

Superstitious Rudy Links Black Cats to Romance

By JOHN KOBLER

(Copyright, 1934, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—How fateful omens marked the course of his unhappy married life with Fay Webb, was suggested yesterday by Hubert (Rudy) Vallee, as he arrived in New York City tired, haggard and obviously worried.

The unlucky vagabond lover pointed out that he was appearing in an out-of-town night club called the Black Cat at the time when he charges that his wife committed one of the earliest of her alleged indescretions with Garfield (Gary) Leon, adagio dancer.

He remarked a coincidence about one of the occasions when he alleges he was double-crossed. He said:

"Then there was the time she spent an hour with him in his dressing room at a Bronx theater. The feature was 'The Sign of the Cross.'"

He commented on other incidents:

"Those records revealed what went on the night of March 31, the eve of April Fool's Day."

Harried by the questions, Rudy complained:

"The whole thing has got into a greater mess than I realized. I don't know where it's going to end. The case is getting on my nerves . . . I'm tired . . . I'm tired."

Voluntary Sterilization Favored in Britain

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A British government committee tonight recommended the legalization of voluntary sterilization for mentally defective and some physically defective persons.

The recommendation was made in a report of the committee appointed early last year by the Ministry of Health for a study of the problem.

The recommendation itself is in the form of a bill for a law which would recommend sterilization of such physical defectives as are shown to be carriers of a grave physical disability which is transmissible.

The bill provides that an operation for sterilization would be performed only under a written authorization by the Minister of Health.

Application for the authorization would have to be supported by recommendation signed by two medical practitioners, one of whom should, if possible, be the patient's family doctor and the other a practitioner on a list approved by the minister.

Sterilized mental defectives would receive such supervision as required after the operation.

In all cases where a patient is capable of giving his consent, the bill provides he should sign a declaration of his willingness to be sterilized.

Strains of Einstein Violin Aid Fellow Refugees

The scientist was the premier attraction at an exclusive concert at the Fifth avenue home of Adolph Lewisohn. He played three pieces from the works of Bach and Beethoven.

Tickets were $25 each. Three hundred persons filled the ballroom at the Lewisohn home. Many applications were turned down.

The affair was strictly private. Music critics did not attend.

Others on the program with Dr. Einstein were Harriet Cohen, young English pianist; Toscha Seidel, violinist, and Leon Barzin, maestro of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. and Mrs. Einstein motored from their home in Princeton, where the physicist lectures at Princeton University. They dined with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Sr., and returned to New Jersey after the concert.

The $7,500 raised will be privately distributed among friends of the Einsteins who have sought refuge in other countries from Nazi Anti-Semitism.

BRITAIN FORCED U. S. OFF GOLD, HOUSE TOLD

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The House Rules Committee today reported special procedure under which President Roosevelt's gold devaluation bill will be considered in the House Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Formally reporting approval of the administration's money measure, the House Coinage Committee said today that Great Britain forced the United States off the gold standard and the proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund was intended "to prevent a repetition of this experience."

With the dollar giving below $5 to the pound on the foreign exchange market, Democratic House leaders were rushing plans to bring the monetary legislation up in the House tomorrow.

FORCED OFF GOLD

Great Britain's operation of her equalization fund, the committee formally reported to the House "was so effective in driving our dollar up that we were forced off the gold standard." The report said:

"It is to prevent a repetition of this experience that we create the stabilization fund preparatory to the return to gold redemption."

The proposed stabilization fund was termed "the most ingenious instrument ever developed in the monetary system."

The committee said:

"It is equally effective in attack and defense. The reason for its establishment in this case is to defend the American dollar and our gold stocks against the invasion of a similar fund operated by competitor nations."

Democratic House leaders decided to bring up the Roosevelt gold revaluation legislation for action tomorrow to speed it to enactment.

ACTION PUSHED

The announcement was made by Representative Byrns, the Democratic leader. Byrns said:

"We've got to get the bill through this week. Even if we have to sidetrack all other legislation and meet Saturday.

In acting on the measure, the coinage committee added an amendment requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to report to Congress on operations of the proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

The amendment does not specify how often or by what means the Treasury shall report.

RESERVE BANK BUYING GOLD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the New York Federal Reserve Bank is buying gold abroad as well as domestically as agent for the Treasury.

Morgenthau declined, however, to give the amount of purchases either of newly mined metal or of foreign bar gold.

Newsmen mentioned to the Secretary that the dollar had strengthened considerably in London today, breaking the more than five-to-one ratio with the pound for the first time in months.

Morgenthau declined to comment on this development. He was asked:

"If you had the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund now, would you employ it to cheapen the dollar?"

He replied:

"I'll say this: If we had the stabilization fund at this time it would be very useful."

HOOVER AIDE AT BANK QUIZ

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—F. G. Awalt, Comptroller of the Currency during the Hoover administration, appeared today at the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of the Detroit banking situation. Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, said Awalt would be a witness.

Meanwhile, alleged evasions by stockholders of the Guardian Detroit group of Michigan's law making them doubly liable in bank closings were under scrutiny of the committee.

Charles S. Mott, of Flint, Mich., lost a million dollars in selling his stock in the Guardian Detroit Union group, he testified.

But in selling the 30,000 shares to Harry S. Covington, a vice president of the group, Mott evaded a large income tax by deducting his loss, he admitted to Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

Mott also poured in two and one half million other dollars into the tottering Detroit bank, he testified.

U. S. Won't Appeal Court Decision in Gold Hoarding

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Attorney General Cummings today announced the Department of Justice will not take an appeal from the decision of a New York Federal Court which threw out a count of an indictment charging that Frederick Campbell, an attorney-at-law, had refused to turn in 27 bars of gold.

This decision was subsequent to action by Campbell in returning all but one bar of his gold to the Treasury through the Chase National Bank. Acting for Campbell, the bank asked permission to retain one bar, but the Treasury refused.

Cummings said that so far as he knew the bar was still in the possession of the bank. Campbell desiring to retain it so that he might have grounds for testing the law.

Cummings said the department would proceed with the prosecution of the indictment which charges that Campbell failed to make a return showing the amount of gold in his possession.

Senator Praises Hearst Stand on Waterway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(Universal Service.)—The Hearst newspapers are "the most utterly vigilant of all our newspapers in respect to advanced 100 per cent Americanism," Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, told the Senate yesterday.

Vandenberg paid this tribute in the course of a speech advocating ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada.

He said the indorsement of the treaty by the Hearst newspapers was the best evidence that the St. Lawrence pact was in the interest of the American people.

$1,800,000 Asked For Jap Air Defense

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—The Japanese Army soon will ask for an appropriation of 6,000,000 yen (about $1,800,000) to finance new air defence plans, it was reported today.

These plans call for new anti-aircraft guns, searchlights and other equipment of latest design, and the fund to be asked for is in addition to a 6,000,000 yen appropriation recently sought from the Diet to finance other developments of the army's aviation units.

OPENS BATTLE FOR SALES TAX

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Declaring that Congress has already approved the principle of the manufacturers' sales tax, Representative Frank Crowther (Rep.), of New York, today opened a fight to write a general sales tax into the new tax revision bill being framed by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Crowther urged a 2¼ per cent tax on manufacturers' sales prices, with exemptions for necessities, which would yield the Treasury $400,000,000 a year.

The program also calls for repeal of the many special sales taxes enacted by Congress in the billion dollar tax bill of 1932. This measure included sales taxes on automobiles, tires and accessories, radios, furs, jewelry, sporting goods and similar articles, and also included the two-cent bank check tax and the one-cent federal gasoline tax.

Crowther said:

"Many of these special sales taxes bear heavily upon a few industries and retard employment in them. The levy can be spread over all without burdening any industry and the Treasury will obtain needed revenue."

G. O. P. OFFICIAL TESTIFIES IN MAIL QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—William Sacks, of St. Louis, former member of the Republican National Committee, told Senate investigators today that he twice had talked with former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown about an airmail contract for W. B. Robertson.

Sacks, a lawyer, testified he had been in Brown's Washington apartment in May, 1931.

He said W. B. Robertson had asked him to see Brown about a New Orleans-St. Louis route because of the effective way he had presented an airport matter to Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover for the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. Sacks said:

"Because of my public activity, many people bring me law matters they otherwise wouldn't.

"For the same reason I assume Robertson asked me to go to Washington because of my position."

Robertson told the committee several days ago that Sacks offered to get him an airmial contract for a 5 per cent fee based on the first year's receipts.

Meanwhile Postmaster General James A. Farley told newsmen today he wasn't sure, "to be honest," just what plane he had for his western trip last October.

Senator Austin (Rep.), of Vermont, a member of the Senate committee investigating airmail contracts, said yesterday he would ask that Farley be called to testify regarding his plane trip West. Farley concluded:

"I've been up in the air only four times—and that's four times too many."

REED PRESENTS RE-DRAFTED VETS' BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The American Legion yesterday redrafted its four-point veterans relief program to strengthen it against misinterpretation and Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, reintroduced the new measure as an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill.

A statement by Edward A. Hayes, Legion national commander, said:

"The measure as redrafted cannot cost more than $80,000,000 a year, and in our opinion will not cost more than $65,000,000 a year. It does not repeal the economy act, nor does it restore non-service-connected disability payments."

The revision was made necessary, Hayes added, to "make certain the interpretation of the provisions of the bill covering the four-point program would neither increase nor decrease payments for actual service-connected disability, as in existence prior to the economy act." He said:

"The bill would still fulfill the four points of our moderate and constructive program, which are:

"Restore service-connected disability, with certain exceptions, as it existed before the economy act.

"Restore hospitalization for veterans unable to pay for it.

"Restore the same money payments for service-connected disability.

"Provide pensions for widows and orphans in need, under the same conditions and rates provided for the Spanis-American War under the economy act."

The legion took issue today with Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, on the latter's estimate of increased costs to be incurred under the legion's new program.

Wedding Merges Gold and Silver

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Now about this burning question of gold and silver—

Said Ben Gold today: "Simple, just merge the whole business."

Whereupon he appeared before Sidney Summerfield, clerk of the Cook County marriage license bureau, and obtained a marriage license to wed Anne Silver. He said:

"There is some question as to the wedding march. Probably 'Silver Threads Among the Gold' is in order. And about anniversaries. Every one of them'll be a gold and silver anniversary."

GOLD DEPOSIT TIME EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary Morgenthau today had authorized Federal Reserve Banks, the Treasurer of the United States, mints and assay offices to continue "until further notice" to receive gold coins and gold certificates and pay for them in other currency at their face value.

Gold hoarding penalties, however, were not lifted if in the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury the gold was hoarded.

The new order modifies the previous order setting midnight of last night as the deadline for turning gold into the Treasury.

REED LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN, HITS DEMOCRATS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed threw his hat into the ring for re-election last night while a "Pinchot for Senator" boom was being started in Philadelphia.

Opening his campaign with a speech before the Pennsylvania Threshermen's and Farmers' Protective Association, the Pittsburgh senator criticized devaluation of the dollar, the Civil Works Administration and "single crop" farmers of the South and West.

He said he "admired President Roosevelt's bravery" in carrying out his policies although he disagreed with many of them.

Edward J. Hunter, member of the Workmen's Compensation Board, sounded the rallying call to Gov. Gifford Pinchot's banner. It was greeted with enthusiasm by several hundred independent Republicans of Philadelphia, who had gathered in Hunter's honor.

PINCHOT PROGRAM

Serving his last year as Governor and ineligible to succeed himself, Pinchot is expected by political observers throughout the state to battle Reed for the Republican nomination at the forthcoming primary election.

The chief executive is in a New York hospital, however, and has made no statement about his political plans. He is a veteran campaigner against the party's machine as built up by Boies Penrose and Matthew Stanley Quay.

Reed lauded the Pennsylvania farmer, who, he said, never had asked for government assistance, while the midwestern farmer and the southern cotton grower, "who plant vast acres in a single crop, demand protection and financial aid from the government."

Reed said that to relieve the farmer, $500,000,000 was given to the Farm Board, and "it didn't do any good—it depressed prices."

CRITICIZES AAA

He criticized the policies of the new Agricultural Adjustment Administration and "the payment of money to the farmer and the cotton grower merely to plow up his land."

Reed said the Civil Works Administration "needs overhauling" and contended that it is "upsetting private industry."

The Senator said the CWA "is employing people on unnecessary projects while mine owners are advertising for men and farmers need men."

He called the nation's monetary problems the most complicated thing, next to the Einstein theory. He said devaluation is an old experiment.

Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon and Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, both of whom are potential gubernatorial candidates, also spoke at the banquet.

4 DEMOCRATIC LEADERS QUIT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Resignation of four members of the Democratic National Committee were on record today, following President Roosevelt's censure of lawyer-politicians who have been lobbying before federal departments and bureaus.

The resignations were those of Robert Jackson, of New Hampshire, secretary of the committee; Frank C. Walker, of New York, treasurer, and Committeemen J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, and former Gov. O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina.

Other resignations may shortly be forthcoming.

Postmaster General James A. Farley had a conference with President Roosevelt today, and later Farley said he "probably would have a talk" with Arthur Mullen, Nebraska committeeman, when Mullen returns to the capital from Omaha.

Mullen has been practicing law here since last spring. He was quoted from Omaha as saying his practice in Washington was "ethical" and that he did not plan to resign.

Farley's own retirement from the chairmanship of the National Committee may be announced before long. He is understood to have told the President some time ago that he would like to be relieved and Mr. Roosevelt is now considering a successor.

Saar Patrol Force Urged by League

GENEVA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The suggestion that an international peace force patrol the Saar Basin territory during its forthcoming plebiscite was advanced yesterday in League of Nations circles.

It followed Germany's refusal to participate in the League Council's preparations for conducting the vote, which will determine whether the territory will be administered by France, Germany or the league, and renewed charges of Hitlerite terrorism in the rich mining area.

Senate to Press Ban on Bonds by Debt Dodgers

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Repassage by the Senate of the Johnson bill closing the American money market to future issues of securities by nations that have defaulted on their debts to the United States or on privately-floated loans, is virtually assured.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who had served notice he would move for reconsideration of the bill, which passed last week without a record vote, today had declared himself in sympathy with its general purpose.

While President Roosevelt declined to discuss the Johnson bill at his press conference yesterday, it was understood he has been in conference with Senator Robinson on the measure.

Studies are being made by Senators Robinson and Johnson (Rep.), of California, on whether the bill would tie the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury under the proposed two billion-dollar stabilization fund called for in the administration's gold bill.

Under that measure the Secretary would be authorized to buy and sell any foreign bond or other security for the purpose of stabilizing foreign exchange.

WALLACE LAUDS FARM PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace today stepped before a Senate committee with the assertion that the first eight months' operation of the greatest farm experiment ever conducted in this country had provided a "conclusive demonstration" that it would work.

The farm chief, appearing by invitation before the Senate Agriculture Committee, was generally optimistic. Farmers signing contracts to reduce production, he said, had carried through "almost 100 per cent."

At the same time, he conceded his administration had failed to carry out all of its plans, particularly with milk marketing agreements.

China Communists Ends Hunger Strike

NANKING, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Noulens, recovering from their hunger-strike after hospital treatment, were returned to prison yesterday.

Sentenced to life imprisonment as arch Communists, the Noulens began refusing food in what they announced would be a "fast to death" in protest against refusals to grant a new trial.

FRANCE VISIONS WAR BETWEEN JAPAN, U. S.

International News Service learned, that in the event of such a conflict France and other powers should blockade Japan, if the Japanese were the aggressors, but no conclusion was reached.

URGES RUSS AMITY

Leading members of parliament for weeks have been debating the question of a war in the Pacific, the changed situation since recognition of the Soviet government by the United States and the attitude France should take.

Friends of Soviet Russia, including former Premier Edouard Herriot, leader of the Radical Socialist party, who also espoused the cause of the United States by urging French foreign debt payment, have been advocating a closer alignment with Russia. Herriot in particular has been active in advocating Russia's entrance into the League of Nations and pressed that view before the Foreign Relations Committee, in which he is the dominant figure.

Herriot told the committee he had learned, on his recent visit to Moscow, that Soviet officials, who once felt themselves isolated and consequently held aloof from capitalistic nations, now are ready for world co-operation.

HOLDS CRISIS GRAVE

He was applauded by other members of the committee when he said he considered Russia's entry into the league of highest importance if the peace of the Pacific Ocean is to be maintained.

Deputy Jean Longuet, Socialist and grandson of Karl Marx, said the United States naturally would have the liveliest interest in a Russo-Japanese war and might enter the conflict on the side of Russia.

Longuet is one of the best informed men in the chamber. His talk gave other members of the committee the impression that he was speaking from intimate knowledge, received from Soviet sources, that prospects of war in the Far East have been carefully discussed by the American State Department and the Moscow foreign ministry and that the United States had promised to blockade Japan if she attacked Russia.

The whole subject is of paramount importance to France because of the vulnerability of French Indo-China to naval attack.

It may be stated that well-informed circles here consider the international situation more critical than the people of the United States have had reason to believe.

CHEER RUSS MESSAGE

Herriot, it was further learned, read to the committee the text of a declaration by V. M. Molotov, premier of the Russian Soviet Republic, characterizing American recognition of the Soviet government as Russia's greatest diplomatic victory.

He was interrupted by cheers, indicating that the chamber's foreign relations committee is in sympathy with Herriot's program to bring about closer relations between France and Russia in view of possible eventualities in the Far East. Herriot quoted Molotov as saying:

"The Japanese feeling of isolation is increasing. The most reactionary circles, the Japanese military clique above all, fear the establishment of certain collaboration between the Soviet government, the United States and China against the warmakers of the Far East.

"The Japanese themselves are spreading rumors of the possibilities of such collaboration and betray themselves by panicky denials. The gigantic rise of the Soviet government has frightened them."

France is not losing sight of Germany in surveying the situation in the Far East and is inclined to believe that the Hitler government would range itself alongside Japan.

Deputy Longuet informed the foreign relations committee today that German Nazis have been active in attempting to foment revolt against the Soviet government in Ukrainia.

ARMS ENVOYS ESCAPE DEATH

GENEVA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon and Joseph Paul-Boncour, foreign minister of France, had a close escape from serious accident on a trip from Paris by train last night.

Their train had covered half the distance through a tunnel which pierces the Jura Mountains this side of Belgrade, near Geneva, when the engineer suddenly saw a red light in front.

Desperately throwing on the brakes, the engineer halted the train abruptly just in time to prevent a rear-end collision with a freight stalled because of a faulty locomotive.

Sir John and Paul-Boncour, just getting up for a day of hard work in connection with arms discussions here, barely managed to keep their feet as the brakes violently brought the train to a standstill a few feet behind the freight.

Nationalist Troops Gather at Foochow

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Nationalist government military forces began consolidating in this region today as soldiers continued pouring in from the North after their successful campaign against Fukien Province rebels. The city was quiet again after days of disturbances and fears of fighting here.

Nationalist leaders put the city under absolute military control, but encouraged the reorganizing of the civil government.

Seized Jap Story Paints U. S. Navy In Vital Battle

(Translation Copyright, 1934, by the Washington Herald and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

The next scene in this great war takes place in Manazuru, a bleak coastal district in Japan, with few inhabitants, and very mountainous. There is a naval wireless station, tended by a few soldiers. There is another privately-owned station run by a man named Yaginuma as a hobby. One night, Yaginuma and a naval station operator are exchanging messages, when their signals are interrupted by some kind of wireless signal they do not understand.

Yaginuma climbs to the balcony of his house and looks to the sea. He is fired on from some kind of a ship, probably a submarine. A house blazes up in the distance, and as Yaginuma watches, a train winding through the mountains suddenly crashes, as lights go out and shells strike it. The next day he learns that Gen. Maki, father of the heroic lieutenant who sank the Houston, is lost with 100 men, on the wrecked train.

* * *

Going back to the time of the firing, remember, the two heard signaling to ships or submarines. The next day they find that there is a house in the locality of which they had not known before, and they rush to see about it. It is vacant, but in it they find wireless equipment. From the way it is furnished, they conclude that Americans had occupied it.

The scene now changes to the sea. Some Japanese cruisers are escorting Japanese transports on their way to the Kurile Islands. Lieut. Eitaro Maki is in command of one of the ships. In the lookout is a sailor whom we have heard of before in this account.

Suddenly the sailor sees a white streak directly off the ship's side. He calls out a warning, and the ship dodges. The periscope of a submarine looms. After a hard chase, in which the submarine nearly gets away, the cruiser sinks it.

Lieut. Maki, commander of the ship, calls the sailor to his quarters. The sailor is our one-time radio repairman, from Dairen, Tsuyoshi Kawano. Lieut. Maki commends Kawano for his good work, and asks him why he once was a deserter.

Kawano tells him about his mother, and, shaken with emotion, pulls out her picture to show his commandant. The lieutenant, also shaken, takes it, and after a brief look, jumps from his chair and seizes Kawano by the hand. He tells him:

"You are my brother. Your mother was my mother. She was Gen. Maki's wife before they were divorced."

The happy pair, after an hour of felicitations and recollections, swear again to do great things in the war together, and Kawano goes back to his quarters. As he goes, the ship's wireless catches the news:

SUBMARINES SUNK

A Japanese submarine is off Diamond Head, at Honolulu. Two officers are looking through the periscope, wishing they could go ashore and get some fresh pineapples and bananas, for they have gone for more than 20 days without green foods. They recall what gay welcomes they got from the Japanese sampans when they were in Hawaii on Japanese training ships before, and they decide that the Japanese people of Hawaii must be doing something beneficial to the Japanese cause even now on the island.

Night comes. These officers see the United States trawlboats cleaning up the mechanical mines laid by the Japanese subs. At 1 a. m., destroyers come out of Pearl Harbor. The Japanese subs are unable to attack the destroyers because the destroyers are too fast, and too wild and also due to too efficient a mine barrage. They figure about 24 cruisers came out of the harbor following the destroyers.

The sub waits for the next night to make an attack when the main body of the fleet is expected to come out. At midnight, 14 cruisers and 13 battleships come out. The subs try to attack, but they are sunk. The United States ships safely start out for a battle.

MINES FOR DEFENSE

This is at a point 800 nautical miles west of Midway. The United States fleet is in a circle formation. Admiral Davies is on the Maryland and Admiral Gordon, the commander-in-chief, is on the Texas. The movements of the ships indicate that the members are all well-trained.

The superior officers of the U. S. fleet think that the best weapon against the Japanese subs is to plant mines in the water in case the subs are seen.

The scene turns to the main Japanese headquarters in Japan. The chief of operations section, the chief of the command section, and an army general staff member are in conference. They received this wire:

"5:10, 9th, latitude 290 degrees 10 minutes, East longitude 166 degrees 40 minutes, 10 ships of Omaha class in circle formation, 13 battleships, 4 cruisers, Lexington, Saratoga, and another airplane tender composing of transports and supply ships in rear of the fleet. Speed 16 knots. Course west-southwest, 8-32. This is airship from Marshall Islands."

One of the three members in the conference thinks that the ships like Wyoming and Utah are going to make an attack to the Philippines for a fast fight to the quick decision. Other two think that the above mentioned fleet is going to attack the Kurile Islands. They agree to make preparations to protect the Kurile Islands.

U. S. INTERESTS WIFE OF RUSS ENVOY

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mme. Alexander Troyanovsky, wife of the first Soviet ambassador to the United States, arrived on the Olympic today and talked with animation of her interest in art.

A merry-faced woman with glasses and severely simple clothes, Mme. Troyanovsky looked more like an amiable American school teacher than the wife of a foreign diplomat. Her 14-year-old son, Oleg, with whom she traveled, speaks English and wants to learn to play American football.

Mme. Troyanovsky speaks no English. Through Oleg and several voluntary interpreters, she said:

"I want to see your theaters and hear the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra."

She has heard phonograph records of the Philadelphia orchestra, it seems. She said:

"I am a great admirer of art. If I put artistic things first, it is because you can be interested in them without knowing the language. But I am also much interested in studying your mechanical development. Only, to understand technical things one must know the language."

Mme. Troyanovsky said she was going to start studying English at once, and study hard. Then she wants to "look a little around" at America. She said eagerly:

"I hope to stay here a long time."

U. S. LIFTS RUSS SHIP IMPOSTS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Representing one of the first official moves to improve trade relations between the United States and Soviet Russia, President Roosevelt today proclaimed removal of all discriminating tonnage duties and imposts on Soviet vessels and their cargoes.

This move followed Soviet Russia's action in removing similar discriminations against American vessels and their cargoes shortly after recognition was extended last November.

First Lady Denounces War as Futile, Stupid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night denounced war as "utter futility" and "deadly stupidity" in an address to the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War. She said:

"I believe anyone who thinks must think of the next war as they would of suicide. But most people don't think."

The President's wife told an audience of more than 600 women how she had seen Noel Coward's movie, Cavalcade, and had come out of it considering the "utter futility of human experience." She declared:

"How deadly stupid we are that we can study history and live through what we live through, and complacently allow the same causes to put us through the same thing again!

"If we are as stupid as that we deserve to commit suicide as we will!"

Mrs. Roosevelt, who was introduced by Carry Chapman Catt, 75-year-old peace crusader, urged women to enroll youth in the peace crusade. She told about criticism which had been received because she had written an article advocating that peace be taught to children by changing their type of toys, doing away with the tin soldiers.

JAP POLICE BAN ENVOYS' DANCE

International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—A group of wives of foreign diplomats, headed by Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, wife of the American Ambassador, today were refused permission to hold an annual benefit dance because of police fears they would be molested by members of patriotic youth societies.

The diplomats' wives and many Japanese peeresses desired to hold the dance in behalf of the Jindokai Society, an organization similar to the S. P. C. A.

The annual affair always is an elaborate social function, attended by the highest members of Tokio society.

Police said they feared those attending the dance, if it were held, would be subjected to attacks by members of the "Black Dragon" or other patriotic organizations.

British Pacifist Hopes U. S. Keeps 'Freedom'

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Corbett Ashby, leading British pacifist and her country's only woman delegate to the disarmament conference, said yesterday that Europe is hoping the United States can recover prosperity without losing "the machinery of free government."

She arrived on the Olympic to attend the Washington conference called by the National Committee on Cause and Cure of War. She said:

"In wishing you success we are not unselfish, since we hope that in establishing your own prosperity you will also help the rest of the world

"In Great Britian, there is a general feeling that we have turned the corner. There is greater confidence in recovery, and that confidence tends to insure it."

BANDITS WRECK TRAIN, 4 DIE

HARBIN, Manchukuo, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Bandits struck again today at the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Removing rails, an outlaw band wrecked the westbound express, derailing five cars. Four passengers were burned to death in the flaming wreckage. Twenty-nine were injured. There were no Americans aboard.

Eight passengers were killed when bandits wrecked and pillaged the eastbound international train near Tsitsihar on December 5 and three weeks before that a train was derailed and two Japanese soldiers slain before they could beat off the bandits.

PIRATES LOOT SHIP, KIDNAP RICH PATRONS

SHANGHAI, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The steamship Pooan, looted by pirates near Tsingtao last Saturday, arrived here today, 10 passengers short—one had died of fright and the other nine were kidnaped by the pirates.

The crew told the story of how the buccaneers had been enraged by an unintended hoax.

SAILED AS PASSENGERS

Fifteen pirates were aboard the 6,000-ton ship as passengers. They saw several trunkloads of Chinese funeral imitation banknotes to be used as burnt offerings for the dead, and mistook them for the genuine articles.

Off Tsingtao they produced revolvers and held up the ship's officers, locking them in the smoking room, then overawed the passengers and, threatening to kill any one who opposed them, dashed for the trunks.

They broke open trunk after trnk, howled with disappointment at discovering their mistake, and dumped the bogus money overboard. Then they turned loose and ransacked the ship from stem to stern.

KIDNAP WEALTHY

The pirates turned the ship's course to their stronghold near Swatow and forced the crew to repaint the vessel in order to aviod suspicion, threatening to set her afire if they were opposed.

Nearing Swatow, the thieves kidnaped the nine wealthiest passengers, including one woman, packed up their loot, commandeered some fishing smacks, and sailed ashore.

The prisoners are being held for ransom, and the nationalist government has been asked to send a gunboat to their rescue and to attempt the pirates' extermination.

College Fire Ruins $225,000 Specimens

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Morrill Hall, one of the oldest buildings on the University of Tennessee campus, was razed by a fire of undetermined origin early today. Authorities estimated the damage at $300,000.

The building was valued at $75,000 and the scientific equipment and almost invaluable specimens housed in it were estimated by authorities to be worth at least $225,000.

Illness Investigated In Jury Fix Trial

District Attorney Andrew T. Park ordered county detectives today to find out whether James Connors, of Oakdale, is too ill to go on trial in Criminal Court. Scheduled to be tried today, Connors sent in, through his attorney, a physician's statement.

Connors is charged with embracery, trying to influence a juror in the trial of Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks. Westwood is accused of conspiracy to cheat and defraud.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PRUDENCE PENNY RECIPES AID NEWLYWED WIVES

Contest Furnishes List of Prize Menus

Have you noticed how lately the number of marriage licenses published in the paper has been increasing, wonders Prudence Penny? With so many young women just starting out keeping house for themselves, it is important that they get a smooth start, and meals are always an important factor in domestic peace.

If you, yourself, are one of the beginning housewives, you need not worry because you've "never done any cooking before." Even if you do not have a list of stand-by recipes of your own, you can accumulate a number which will insure your marital happiness by including Prudence Penny your wedding preparations.

Watch her prize column as carefully as your list of housekeeping necessities and every night clip whatever recipes you know will fit in with yours and your husband's tastes in food.

Prudence Penny is still offering a daily $5 prize and ten $1 prizes to the best recipes she receives, so send in your favorites to her, care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. ROSE BARBARITA,
6410 Winslow street, East Liberty.
STUFFED ARTICHOKES
Stuffing

Two and one-half cups bread crumbs.
One piece of garlic (if desired) chopped fine.
Five sprigs of parsely chopped fine.
Ten or 12 black ripe olives, remove the stones and cut in small pieces.
Four or five salted anchovies, wash and remove bone and cut in small pieces.
One-quarter cup olive oil.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Mix well.

Artichokes

Six medium artichokes. Remove outer leaves and stem, and trim tips. Then loosen the leaves until open in the center and wash in cold water and shake out all water. Fill with stuffing. Place in baking dish with one-quarter cup olive oil, one-quarter teaspoon salt and water to come to half ways up the artichokes. Cover and bake in moderate oven. Bake until water dries down.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. T. GRECH,
467 Steuben street, Crafton Heights, Pa.
SPICED BEEF

Boil a shin of 10 or 12 pounds of beef until the meat rapidly falls from the bone. Pick the meat to pieces and mash the gristle very fine, selecting all parts that are too hard to mash; set the liquor in which it was boiled away till cool. Take the fat off, boil the liquor down to a pint and a half then return the meat to the liquor and while hot add any pepper and salt that may be needed, a little nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of parsley chopped fine, half a teaspoon cloves, half a teaspoon cinnamon, a very little sage. Let it boil up once and put it in a mold or deep dish to cool. Cut in thin slices.

JEAN R. ALBAUGH,
1221 Fairdale street.
LAST MINUTE UNCOOKED FUDGE

One box powdered sugar.
Three tablespoons cocoa.
One tablespoon melted butter.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-fourth cup hot milk.
Blend sugar and cocoa together. Add milk a little at a time. Add vanilla and butter, then beat until creamy. Nut meats may be added if desired. Pour into buttered plate. Cut into squares when firm.

MRS. J. A. FINNEY, JR.,
549 Merchant street, Ambridge.
SPINACH AND MUSHROOMS

Two pounds spinach.
One can of mushrooms.
Butter, size of egg.
One tablespoon of flour.
One pint rich milk.
Cook spinach in salt water until tender. Drain, shop fine, mold in tube pan. Melt butter in another pan and rub in flour. Add milk and mushrooms, salt and pepper. Cook until thick. Put spinach on flat dish and pour sauce in hollow space. Garnish with hard-boiled egg.

MRS. CHARLES L. WALTERS,
629 Mon avenue, Glassport.
CHICKEN NOODLE SOUP

Three whole eggs or six egg yolks.
Three tablespoons cold water.
One teaspoon salt.
Beat eggs and water with egg beater. Add salt and flour enough to make a real stiff dough. Divide in three parts. Roll as thin as possible, let stand till dry, and roll up in a roll and cut fine. Have a large kettle half full of boiling water and two teaspoonsful of salt. Drop noodles in careful, and let boil for three minutes. Drain in colander. Put into hot chicken broth well seasoned with celery and onion.

MARTHA OSMAN,
5164 Keystone street.
LEMON DELICACY

Two tablespoons butter.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Juice of one lemon.
Grated rind one-half lemon.
One cup milk.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two eggs.
Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add well beaten egg yolks, lemon juice, flour and rind. Mix well. Add milk and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased baking dish. Set in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven 45 minutes. A crust will form and supply its own sauce.

MRS. WM. FREILER,
608 Fourteenth street, Beaver Falls.
PUMPKIN AND APPLE LAYER PIE

One cup canned pumpkin.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Three-quarters teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two eggs.
One cup scalded milk.
One and one-half teaspoon gelatin.
Two tablespoons cold water.
One and one-half cup canned apple sauce.
Three tablespoons orange marmalade.
Mix together the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and salt and add to pumpkin. Add well-beaten eggs and the milk. Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat and continue baking in moderate oven for 30 minutes more. Cool. Meanwhile soften gelatin in the cold water, dissolve over hot water and add to the apple sauce with the marmalade and a few grains of cinnamon. Chill. When it begins to set spread over the pumpkin pie and chill again. Cover with whipped cream and serve.

MRS. P. J. COULTER,
18 Woodside road, Bryn Mawr, Wilkinsburg.
KIDDIES WHOLE WHEAT BROWN BREAD

Two cups whole wheat flour.
One cup Ralston whole wheat cereal.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One cup Duff's molasses.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One and one-half cups milk.
One-half cup raisins.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Mix all dry ingredients except soda. Add raisins. Add soda to molasses. Hold cup over mixing bowl and beat in the soda until foamy, then add to mixture, then add milk. Put into baking powder cans filled two-thirds full and bake in moderate oven for 45 minutes. Take from molds while warm and roll in powdered sugar.

MRS. JOHN MILLER,
802 Omaha street, Mt. Washington.
CARAWAY COLESLAW

Cut away the green leaves from a firm head of cabbage and soak for several hours in slightly salted water. Dry and shred fine. Make dressing by mixing together one cup of shredded pineapple, one-half cup of thick sour cream, two tablespoons of sugar, four tablespoons of vinegar, salt and pepper to taste, and a half teaspoon of caraway seed.
Mix cabbage with dressing, tossing well. Serve at once. If so desired, caraway seeds may be omitted.

MRS. MARY VIRGINIA GARDNER,
312 Lincoln avenue, Millvale.
PEACH CREAM PIE

Three tablespoons sugar.
Two and one-half tablespoons flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One egg.
One cup sweet milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One baked pie shell.
Fresh peaches (or canned).
Beat egg. Add milk then sugar, flour and salt and mix thoroughly. Cook and stir over low heat or in double boiler until thick and smooth. Add vanilla. Remove from fire and cool. Cover bottom of pie shell with sliced peaches. Pour over these the custard mixture and place in ice box. When ready to serve cover with sweetened whipped cream.

FETE TO HONOR HARRIS SET

A sell-out of reservations, totaling 2,100, today was reported by the committee arranging the testimonial dinner to State Senator Frank J. Harris in Hotel William Penn January 31.

The dinner will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of Senator Harris in public life. Roy A. MacGregor, executive committee chairman, said the hotel's entire seventeenth floor will be used. Loudspeakers will carry the addresses to the various rooms from the main ballroom. Tickets will be placed in the mail this week, MacGregor said.

PERHAPS you are one of the thousands who would like to know, before you buy your gin, exactly what you are buying. This advertisement is written with that very idea in mind—to tell you just what you may expect when you ask at a State Store for Silver Wedding.

In Silver Wedding Gin you are receiving a product triple-distilled . . . not only that, but triple-distilled from selected cereal grains. As a guarantee of purity, quality and proof, each step in the manufacture of Silver Wedding is required to measure up to the uncompromising standards of the Schenley Research Institute—a board of analysts whose names and records of achievement justify the fullest confidence.

Silver Wedding Gin, although sold at an honest American price, employs the identical formula of one of England's most exclusive exported gins. To give it its delicious flavor, it takes 10 separate ingredients triple-distilled with spirits smooth as satin. But each one of those 10 ingredients—each extra distillation—is well worth while. For the exquisite flavor of Silver Wedding Gin is the rich reward!

Get THE MERRY MIXER! It's a jolly cocktail book. Write us for a copy. Send 6¢ to cover postage. Jos. S. Finch & Co., Inc., 20 W. 40th St., New York, N. Y.

N. Y. SOCIETY PREENING FOR ARTS BALL

By JOHN KOBLER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Three thousand dollars is the price Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, New York society matron, is to pay for one brief hour of sartorial glory.

That hour will strike sometime tomorrow night during the annual Beaux Arts Ball, when more than 2,000 persons will "peacock it" down the grand ballroom of one of New York's most fashionable hotels.

But even $3,000 is a paltry price in contrast with the glories of a pre-depression yesteryear, when Mrs. Menken, Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mrs. Andrew Pierce and others were reported to have paid as much as $10,000 for a costume, only to discard it after it had served its purpose. At one ball Mrs. Menken appeared in a costume composed entirely of aigrets.

MARCO POLO TRAVELS

This year she will symbolize "the spirit of enchanted night," a little impersonation involving myriads of stars, artificial diamonds and pearls and rhinestones. But there will be no place for this costume in the pageant proper, which will re-enact the travels of Marco Polo. So Mrs. Menken must content herself with a solo appearance before the gates of "the enchanted garden."

The Beaux Arts was organized in 1890. Its original purpose was to commemorate "those wonderful nights in the Quartier Latin." Hundreds of youthful Americans, who went to Paris to study art, clamored for an American version quat'ze arts, but while the quat'ze arts is a hearty, unbridled revel, often attracting the attention of the police, the New York beaux arts is an innocuous dance for "ladies and gentlemen."

As the years passed the beaux art grew into an institution for the consecration of art. The Beaux Arts Building was erected with proceeds of the annual balls.

REAL MANCHU PRINCESS

This year it will cost you $10 to gape at local fashionables in Oriental costume, not counting $1 for a program, and more dollars if you get hungry or thirsty.

You will see Mrs. Owen Roberts, whose husband is vice president of the China Society, in an antique Chinese dress. You will also see Princess Der Ling, a bona fide Manchu princess, whose late father was ambassador to England, in the dress of a Chinese princess. She will impersonate one of the empresses in the pageant.

Mrs. Harrison Williams, judged the best-dressed woman in Paris, will contend for the world championship as a Chinese princess, arrayed in black velvet, chiffon, and crystal trimmings, while Mrs. Andrew Pierce will be another princess in flame-color, silver and black.

OHIO ORDERS PHONE CUT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The Ohio Bell Telephone Company today had been ordered by the State Utilities Commission to reduce its rates to patrons in 180 Ohio municipalities.

At the same time the commission ordered the company to refund to patrons $13,289,172, which was collected in excess rates from June 30, 1925, through 1932.

The commission said no refund would be made on service rendered in 1933 because it found the company's return on its investment in that year was not excessive.

The company was ordered to file with the commission immediately a new schedule of rates in accordance with the decision.

The case has been in litigation for 10 years. The decision was signed by two commissioners—Judges Frank W. Geiger and Charles F. Schaber.

Woman Mail Carrier Dies in Finleyville

FINLEYVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Julia Ridgley Snee, 56, Pennsylvania's first woman mail carrier, is dead in her home here. She was a sub-carrier for her husband, the late Henry Snee, from 1902 until his retirement in 1920. She leaves three sons and one daughter. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Boy Proves Pup Mother Scorned Is Worth 5c

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The boy was shabby and tearful. The pup was a grimy mongrel. Sobbing, the boy accosted Mrs. J. B. Frye at a filling station and offered the dog for a nickel. The boy sobbed:

"Mama said he wasn't worth five cents. She chased him out, said she'd drown him if he came back."

He choked, then added, dolefully:

Mrs. Frye agreed:

"Of course he's worth a nickel."

She gave him one, and let him keep the puppy.

GRADS BECOME 'CITIZENS'

More than 1,000 graduating high school seniors gathered in Memorial Hall, Oakland, for the Pittsburgh public schools first semester citizenship convocation yesterday.

In a pageant, "The Ritual of Citizenship," students participating included Evelyn Popcke, of Frick Training School, as Liberty; Alfred Voyer, of Schenley High School, as Democracy, and Helene McKenney, of Frick Training School, as Education. Recognition of the seniors as citizens was by Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools.

Dial these—Sally Crum, pianist, in early spot; Jeanne Galbraith, 6:15, and Eddie Peyton's Band at 11:30.

Hire a Hall For Studio Audiences

By AIRCASTER

Mr. and Mrs. Radio Listener took it on the chin yesterday. They were sentenced, as you might say, to go on indefinitely, listening to programs during which they must hear the spectators inside the studios laughing at funny costumes, and the antics of comedians, denied to those not favored with passes, or those too far away, even to think of visiting a broadcasting temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Listener must go on indefinitely, listening to the deafening, but organized applause inside the studios, and they must go on missing many vital points in the shows, which are invariably drowned out by the noise of the merry audiences who crowd into the broadcasts, because there is no admission charge.

* * *

THEATERS LOSE

At the same time, theater owners saw their last hopes vanish, if they happened to be cherishing any notion that the studio audience would eventually be abolished and the potential patrons diverted back to the box-offices.

The one slender possibility of closing the studios to the public had flourished at Columbia, where for many months, a brave attitude against broadcast spectators had been maintained, while thousands of fans flocked to NBC studies here for gratis visual entertainment.

* * *

HIRE A HALL

But today, CBS has gone the way of all commercial radio, and had done a turn-about-face. It is now for, instead of against, studio audiences, and has leased the Hudson Theater in New York for use as the Columbia radio playhouse, where 1,200 spectators may go to witness most of their major broadcasts.

Globe-Trotting

By Louis L. Kaufmann

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

At last I have great news for all the soldier globe-trotters who have been writing me for information regarding the compensation for soldiers who fought for the United States. The Adjutant-General of Pennsylvania has appointed J. Guy Griffith, New Kensington, to be in charge of the compensation for veterans of southwestern Pennsylvania. Mr Griffith appeared before the Globe Trotter's microphones yesterday.

Some of you might have missed his talk. If you did don't worry, he'll be back again with more information.

He has promised to be the Globe Trotter's guest on his special feature broadcast Saturday night at 6:30.

At that time he will give the latest information concerning the applications of veterans for the state compensation.

What's more, Mr. Griffith said that in the future when he has some special information to give to veterans, he will use the Trotter's microphones and through them disseminate much of the instructions to veterans regarding their claims for compensation.

Duckpin and Tenpin Bowlers on WCAE

Walter E. Bisler, second vice president of the Pittsburgh Bowling Association and member of the Keystone Athletic Club team, will speak for the tenpinners, and Lou Golvash, veteran local duckpin star, for his spot as the guests of Harry Keck and his Trained Seals on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

The Globe Trotter broadcasts over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.

Students' Group To Present Play

The Students' Association of Westinghouse Technical Night School will present a play, "The Private Secretary," at Turtle Creek Union High School next Wednesday. Last year's graduates of nine schools in nearby boroughs will be guests of the association.

BUCK'S 'RHINO' BATTLES GALE AT SEA

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. — "The voyage of Noah and his Ark was nothin'," said Capt. Harry Curtis, of the freighter Steel Navigator, when he arrived yesterday with a cargo of 60 animals and a number of birds.

The animals were captured by Frank Buck, big game hunter, in Malay, Sumatra and India.

The cargo included a young male rhinoceros which Buck captured for the St. Louis Zoological Gardens. George P. Vierheller, director of the gardens, was here to make arrangements for transporting the rhinoceros to St. Louis. Capt. Curtis said:

"We ran into North Atlantic weather with a vengeance. It was rougher than hell."

The young rhino, reported to have been sold for $35,000, one of the highest prices ever paid for such an animal, probably had the worst part of the rough passage.

The rhino and two tapirs were in a cage on the aft deck. Steam pipes, which were used to keep the trio warm, had their connections severed when the cage was pounded loose during a particularly rough sea. The crew had to work rapidly to prevent the three animals from being scalded to death.

Buck said the rhinoceros, from India, was very valuable. He said only four of the species have ever been captured.

Work, Earn, Spend More in 1934, New Slogan

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—"Work more, earn more, spend more in '34!"

This slogan, chosen by the San Francisco Examiner in a contest in which 5,600 slogans were entered, has been made the official slogan of the city and county of San Francisco for 1934, and will appear on every official letter mailed out by the municipal government this year.

The adoption of the slogan was made by the board of supervisors by a unanimous vote. The adoption of the slogan was suggested by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi in a communication to the board, and the action was taken on a resolution introduced by supervisor Frank R. Havenner.

At a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vitchestain, of Bailey avenue, announcement was made of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jessie Anne Vitchestain, to Edward Bryham Roper, of Coatesville, Pa. Miss Vitchestain has chosen June 2 as the date for her marriage. She is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a member of Delta Zata.

Miss Jennie Ritchie and Miss Elizabeth Billingsby poured. Aides were Miss Grace Girdwood, Miss Mary Garber and Miss Ethel Bowden.

Harry Wendts Return From West Indies Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wendt, of Wendover street, Squirrel Hill, have returned from a West Indies cruise on the Empress of Britain.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Mid February will bring one of the most interesting weddings of the year that of young Anne Elizabeth Hillman, daughter of the junior John Hartwell Hillmans, and Benjamin Harvey Kountz, son of the George McClellan Kountzes.

Their marriage will take place Friday, February 12, in the Hillman home. It will be a simple ceremony, but important nevertheless.

More than Smile Needed By Deb in Social Work

When a post-deb sallies forth to a hospital or the like nowadays to enter upon a volunteer social career, she has to bring more than a pretty smile.

And when her elders assume direction of one of the many boards doing social work, just patting children's heads and beaming on everyone, will not do.

She has to be trained just as her sisters do who go in for paying careers. First of all, when Junior League girls are on "probation"—when they are provisional members—they have to make an elementary study of the science of social work.

Miss Dorothy Stebbins, head of the field service work of the Association of Junior Leagues, is in town to advise Junior Leaguers in their philanthropic work. She's also interviewing various social agencies in Pittsburgh, too, to find out just where volunteer workers are needed.

Example of Trend From Amateur Worker

Miss Stebbins herself is an example of the trend away from the amateur worker. She herself is a graduate of the Smith College School of Social Work. She is as charming in manner as the first volunteer workers, but she has the added ability of trained intelligence. By the way, she's a member of the Boston Junior League.

I talked with her at Mrs. T. Howe Nimick's home yesterday—she had luncheon there. And she'll be here until tomorrow.

She advises the Junior Leagues in their welfare work, tries to see that the girls suited to a particular kind of social service work have a chance to specialize in that.

The whole idea is to train the girls in the scientific theories of welfare work, so that as they grow older and take their places as heads of various philanthropic groups, they can do their work more effectively.

Junior Leagues in 130 Cities of United States

By the way, did you realize that there are 130 different cities in the United States which have Junior Leagues? Miss Stebbins also told me that there are five in Canada and one in Mexico City. All are organized under the title of the Association of Junior Leagues of America.

The Pittsburgh Junior League and its individual members do an enormous amount of welfare work. First of all, the League supports a nutrition clinic for children at the Falk Clinic. And members take turns working there, assisting the doctors by taking down case reports and the like.

Individual members of the league do similar volunteer work at various hospitals, and take part in every philanthropic work conducted by members of the social set.

Cwens Gather Tomorrow At Pitt

Cwens, national honorary sophomore activities fraternity for women, will hold its biennial convention tomorrow and Saturday at the University of Pittsburgh. More than 70 delegates will attend.

Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women at Pitt, will speak tomorrow on "New Challenges in the College World." The delegates will attend a woman's day pageant at Memorial Hall. The traditional Cwen feast will be held in the evening.

A round-table discussion will be held Saturday morning in [illegible] House. A business meeting and election at the Hotel Schenley will follow in the afternoon.

Delegates from this district are Anne June Ellner, Pitt; Fran Turner, Penn State; Elizabeth Henderson, Muskingum; Amy Bishop, Allegheny, and Sue Fuller, Carnegie Tech.

* * *

Mothers of the senior class of the Boys' Central Catholic High School, Fifth avenue, will hold a bazar January 30 and 31, for the benefit of social service and educational work.

Museum to Lend Gowns For Colonial Dame Show

Worn in the parade of costumes which the Colonial Dames will have Tuesday afternoon, January 30, in the Twentieth Century Club will be gowns museums prize and others they would display gladly if the owners should make a gift of them.

Carnegie Museum is contributing its priceless Spang gown collection to the parade. They are gowns from the collection of the late Rosalie Spang, a descendant of one of Pittsburgh's industrial pioneer families.

The gowns were made in Paris in the 1870s. Two of the Doyle sisters, Virginia and Nancy, will wear Spang gowns in the parade, and Mrs. George Applegate will wear another.

The Colonial Dames are descendants of officers or persons of note of the Revolutionary period.

Mr. Gibson is a graduate of the University of Missouri, and is a member of Beta Chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociology fraternity. He is social service supervisor of Miller County Relief Work in Arkansas.

LEATHER FOR SPRING

By PRUNELLA WOOD

CABLES FROM PARIS tell us that internationally famous women have taken up the American notion of leather costume pieces in a big way, and that country house parties, winter resort hotels, and the shops are scintillating with bright suede jumpers or coats, and natty tweed skirts to wear with them.

It is not news over here, that combination of suede windbreaker and tweed skirt, except that the idea is so firmly a part of our national sports clothes that new styles are being thought up for it all the time.

Many good looking novelties break into the scene every now and then, such as the mandrucca jumper sketched on this page. It may seem stunty at first glance to see a sleeveless and lownecked windbreaker, but it really is a sound notion. One's chest is protected and any sort of long coat can be slipped on over the jumper to cover less alluring bits of the anatomy.

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

To find out the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column . . . CALL GRANT 0500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or . . . send a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Any woman who has used a beauty mask which turns to muddy cakes on her face and scares the baby to death while she is using it, will appreciate this new one we have found! For it's flesh color . . . dries easily and quickly, and without any of the pulling and straining she has undergone in similar cases in the past.

Only $1.50, too . . . considerably less than many . .. and a large jar. It's the modern way to remove traces of the wear and tear which modern living leaves upon most faces . . . refines the pores, and gently uplifts those downward lines which any woman loathes! Yours for softer, smoother skins . . . sweeter, better expressions!

* * *

We have just struck oil . . . not in our backyard, but in the "frontyard" of one shop. The new household oil which should play such an important part in the daily dozens of duties every housewife knows!

Hereafter, when the washing machine groans dramatically, give it a shot of this new electric motor oil and proceed merrily with the shirts and shorts! Should the vacuum cleaner begin to cough . . . refrain from tearing your hair, and give it a drink of this! In fact, there's not an electrical gadget in the house which isn't the better for a dose of this every so often. And it has uses in the garage and husband's workshop as well. 25c a half-pint can.

* * *

Nothing like a new bonnet to restore a woman's drooping self-esteem and poise! (And believe us! . . . at this time of year we NEED it!) So tuck your little handbag under one arm and trudge in the door of this store where straw fabric tricornes are established. They're soft enough to wear right now . . . not too straw-y . . . come in black, brown and navy . . . and have flippant bits of red and white grosgrain slapped onto them here and there! $1.95.

* * *

News for long-haired gals! Envy not your sister with her curls caught up with a bit of evening glitter! There are new doo-dads for your knot—a sort of hinged clip with tiny combs which encircles the knot and sparkles in most ornamental fashion. In tortoise or crystal, set with rhinestones. $3.

* * *

To go domestic for the moment . . . how's your supply of tea towels, and how's your pot holder?

We thought we had discovered history in the making when we found tea towels at 11c once upon a time . . . but imagine us when we plunged headlong into them at 8½c each! Hemmed and finished nicely . . . of linen crash . . . with gold, green, blue, or red plaid stripings.

And fat, sturdy little pot holders too . . . with firmly stitched edges, a pocket for you to slip your hand into . . . and thick, protecting towel - like surface! They're in the same colorings . . . and cost just two pennies apiece—2c! It would pay to have lots of pots to hold with holders at this price. Ahem!

One Quality Only—The Best
126 SIXTH ST., PITTSBURGH, PA.

Here's news for all of you who have yellowish, discolored teeth—who have tried perhaps a dozen different ways to brighten teeth, give them attractive sparkle and whiteness.

Start brushing your teeth with Kolynos. Use it just as you would ordinary toothpaste—with two exceptions. Use only half as much and put it on a dry brush. Don't wet your toothbrush. Brush your teeth this Kolynos way and see how astonishingly quick your teeth become sparkling.

This scientific dental cream cleans and whitens teeth so quickly and effectively because it contains cleansing properties not found in any other toothpaste. It is antiseptic and acts to remove from the teeth the "bacteria-plaque" that makes teeth look dingy, dirty and yellow.

This extra-cleansing improves the appearance of your teeth as nothing else can. You'll find it makes your teeth whiter—shades whiter—in a hurry.

We say try Kolynos. See how it gives teeth new lustre, new clearness and makes them more attractive than you believed possible. Get a tube from your druggist today.

STATE SETTLES BATTLE OVER RUM TAX

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The State Liquor Control Board plans to buy 6,500,000 gallons of whisky on which $13,000,000 floor tax must be paid, taking the difference in cost out of its profits.

In return, the three companies from which it will be bought agree not to ask a refund if "someone else" has the $2-a-gallon tax declared unconstitutional and the Finch Company dropped its suit in the Federal Court at Pittsburgh today.

Announcement of the compromise between the state and the distilleries was made last night in a joint statement by Attorney General William A. Schnader and the control board. The agreement was reached last December, after the Finch company started litigation.

The Overholt and Large companies are the others in the compromise. They also withdrew their suits in Pittsburgh today.

Purchase of the 6,500,000 gallons will leave little more than 500,000 gallons of the liquor subject to the floor tax, the board estimates.

DRYS LAUNCH STATE FIGHT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Assailing the new liquor law "as nothing more or less than a return of the old-time saloon," Pennsylvania dry leaders yesterday pledged a fight "to put the state out of the liquor business."

A conference of county chairmen, called by John A. McSparran, state secretary of agriculture and chairman of the committee of nine, which fought the repeal of prohibition, adopted a resolution authorizing the new campaign as "the first step in a movement having for its goal entire abolition of the liquor traffic."

At the same time the drys adopted a resolution calling for a state committee to be organized within the next 15 days and the formation of a dry league, to work with the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

JOHNSON TO AIR NRA DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A new answer to criticism of the recovery program will be made by Hugh S. Johnson tonight in a speech before the Retail Dry Goods Association in New York.

Harmful effects of codes on some small enterprises, and disregard of the consumers' interest by some industries under the price control provisions of their codes have been the source of most recent complaints against NRA. Instances of unquestioned abuses in both directions have been uncovered by public hearings. New policies are being formulated to prevent their continuance.

Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, has been planning a speech assailing instances of abuse which have been brought to his attention, and others are waiting for an opportunity to join in.

The NRA and the retail store occupied the attention of the Dry Goods Association yesterday. Emphasis was laid on employe training under the codes.

Speakers last night included Andrew J. Connolly, of the Joseph Horne Company, Pittsburgh. Benjamin M. Weiss, of Gimbels, Milwaukee, was elected a director at large.

First Man Jailed Under New Rum Law

Philip McCrea, 54 South Eighth street, is in jail, the first man to be convicted under the new state liquor law. He was sentenced yesterday by Judge George V. Moore to six months in jail or a $300 fine. He lacked the money for the fine.

McCrea was convicted on possession of liquor and failure to have tax stamps.

PWA MAY LOAN $500,000 TO AID HOUSING HERE

MAYVIEW PERIL STORY UNJUST —MRS. RAUH

Answers to Conley's Report On Fire Hazards

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, welfare director until the new Democratic city administration took office January 1, today issued a statement replying to criticism voiced by the new director, Southard Hay, of fire hazards at the City Hospital at Mayview.

Expressing her annoyance that the reports "have been given wide publicity before there was any thorough investigation of all the facts," Mrs. Rauh commented item by item on Deputy Fire Chief Louis J. Conley's report after an inspection of the buildings.

She mentioned her repeated efforts to obtain funds from Council to remedy the situation and pointed out that the fire alarm system now being installed is the result of her own work entirely.

MRS. RAUH'S ANSWER

Mrs. Rauh said:

"Because for many years I have been gravely concerned about the safety from fire of inmates of the City Hospital at Mayview, I am particularly stung by the criticism of conditions there which has been voiced by the present Director of Welfare this week.

"It is especially annoying that reports of fire hazards said to exist and of fire hazards I know exist have been given wide publicity before there was any thorough investigation of all the facts.

"When I first assumed my duties as welfare director in 1922, under Mayor William A. Magee, my first interest was in the safety of my wards.

"I immediately made personal inspections of the premises and consulted fire prevention experts, architects and other advisors on how best to safeguard the inmates of Mayview.

CONDITIONS 'DEPLORABLE'

"Conditions were deplorable. It was necessary to tear up floors, insulate heating, change wiring. I found it desirable to tear down several obsolete and unsafe buildings—some of them more than 40 years old. For this, however, I could obtain no money. The only thing left was to render the buildings safe and I took every possible step to assure this.

"I issued orders that a fire drill be held every two weeks and that monthly inspections of fire prevention equipment be made. This has been done, to the best of my knowledge and according to Dr. Hammers (Supt. James S. Hammers), whose word I am willing to take.

"In 1926 we undertook the two and a half million dollar improvement program referred to in Council Tuesday. I had asked for five and a half million dollars for the purpose.

"At that time, inmates were sleeping in the same rooms with nurses and attendants. Overcrowding was dreadful. With the aid of Sullivan Jones, the foremost institutional architect in America, and of Eric Fisher Wood, the Pittsburgh architect, we remedied the worst overcrowding.

FUNDS REFUSED

"But when we were finished, there wasn't the money to raze and replace the old buildings. There would have been had I been allowed the funds I sought.

"We built the fire platforms and fire stairways for the old

Renew Fight to Cut Huge Collection Fee Expense in County

The fee offices in Allegheny County and in every other county of the state, will be the target for much legislation if Gov. Gifford Pinchot grants the requests of many persons to call a special session of the lawmakers this spring. The latest attack on the fee offices came Tuesday when Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph H. Smith advocated their abolition as a means of saving the taxpayers huge sums annually.

Judge Smith is not alone in his fight against the fee offices. Dozens of other prominent persons in this community have voiced their disapproval of the system, including County Commissioner C. C. McGovern. McGovern is now preparing a program of legislation to bring about many governmental economies and at least one of these bills will have bearing on the fee offices.

On Tuesday Judge Smith declared he could see no reason for an elected official receiving $43,000 for just placing his signature to a paper and transferring it to another office, as was the case recently in an eastern city. In this instance a wealthy individual had died and for probating the estate, an elected official was given $43,000 as his share.

STARTED YEARS AGO

The fight against fee offices is just a continuation of one started several years ago. In 1932 fee office opponents were successful in cutting the compensation of the county delinquent tax collector from 10 to 5 per cent. Gov. Pinchot himself is opposed to the present system of fee offices.

In signing the bill cutting the compensation of the local delinquent tax collector, the Governor remarked:

"The office of delinquent tax collector in Allegheny County has milked from the delinquent county taxpayers over a period of four years, by himself and his deputies, approximately three-quarters of a million dollars in collectors' commissions. The delinquent tax collector holding the office during this period collected commissions for himself amounting to $487,104.96, which after expenses were deducted left a net commission for his own use amounting to $331,563.76. The President of the United States during the same period was paid $31,563.76 less than the delinquent tax collector of Allegheny County."

County Commissioner McGovern is outlining a bill which would bring into the county treasury thousands of dollars annually. He would prevent any single individual holder of a fee office from benefiting through the interest earned on money held during litigation.

BILL KILLED IN 1929

The bill will be similar to one presented in the 1929 session of the Legislature and which is now a part of the Metropolitan charter. It provides that all money received by public officials through virtue of their office, shall be turned over to the Couty Treasurer instead of being placed in bank accounts in the name of that particular elected official. The bill was killed in the 1929 Legislature.

Speaking in behalf of his reform, McGovern pointed out that just a few years ago an elected official of the county left office with half a million dollars in bank accounts. This large sum of money was litigants' money, held up through litigation and which could not be distributed until after settlement of the matter in court.

Within two year after this official had left office, McGovern said, he had paid back to the litigants all but $14,000. During the entire period, the official was earning interest on the money, McGovern declared.

Interest on deposits ranging from $14,000 to a half million dollars over a two-year period would be considerable, and it can easily be seen that the county treasurer would receive substantial sums each year if he had charge of all money. McGovern also pointed out that it would provide a more efficient system of paying out litigants' money.

HANDLED MILLIONS

The matter of interest on money held by fee officers has long been a topic of discussion. During the recent auditors' report on the accounts of Prothonotary John Vogt, he issued a statement in which he declared that in the 12 years he has held office, he had handled amounts totaling $2,142,000. He was asked by Commissioner McGovern whether he did not feel that the money should be held by the County Treasurer instead of being placed in a private bank account.

To this he answered:

"I do not see how any substantial part of the interest in question can be due the county; in my opinion it is due to the parties interested in the funds, to wit, attorneys and litigants. Because this fund due attorneys and litigants is made up of a large number of accounts it is not difficult to see that it is impractical to try and segregate interest and to pay it to the several parties."

Vogt later went further into the question of interest by stating:

"I would be glad to see legislation enacted to cover the question of accumulated interest. As the matter now stands, I do not see how I could with safety, pay over to the county, interest which is accumulated largely on the funds of attorneys and litigants."

M'NAIR TO AID AT AUTO SHOW OPENING

Formal Ceremonies At Motor Square Saturday Night

Mayor William N. McNair will participate in the official opening of the Pittsburgh Auto Show Saturday night at Motor Square Garden, President Charles L. Day, of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, announced today.

The show will open to the public at 1 p. m. Saturday, but the formal ceremonies will take place at 8 p. m. Saturday night. It will continue daily except Sunday for a week.

President Day said:

"Pittsburgh's auto dealers have every reason to be proud of the cars they will show at this year's fashion parade. The 1934 automobile has attained a degree of perfection that even the most optimistic forecasters of a few years ago would have thought impossible."

Twenty-three makes of passenger cars will be shown on the main floor. Commercial cars, auto accessories and other displays will be shown on a sub-floor.

PLAN TO BUILD 220 SMALL HOMES

Evans Gets Support On Eradication Of Slums

George E. Evans today said the officials of the housing division of the Federal Public Works Authority have designated $500,000 to be loaned here for a housing project on Marshall avenue near Brighton road.

Evans said he was assured the money if an appraisal of the 10 acres on which he has proposed to build 220 low-cost homes is satisfactory.

The money has been set aside under the technical heading of "slum clearance," as a result of city officials' promise to tear down a house for each one Evans builds.

Federal requirements are for promoters of a housing enterprise to have a 15 per cent equity in each project. Engineering, designing and contracting fees can be figured as part of the equity.

Evans stated that if the property is appraised at 10 per cent of the value of the housing project, he was assured in Washington that the proposal will be pushed through within a few days.

First request was for between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000 to build the 220 homes. Present plans, Evans says, call for a $500,000 loan to erect 110 houses. If they are satisfactory, the balance will be available.

Evans reported the impending success of the project upon his return from Washington, where he had gone to check up on its status.

SUNDAY MUSIC NEEDS PERMIT

If any organization plans a Sunday concert, even though performers are not paid, the quarters are provided free and all receipts go to charity a permit must be obtained from the State Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg.

This procedure is necessary under a ruling by the State Department of Justice. Since the blue law was modified to permit Sunday concerts only five applications from the entire state have been received, according to word from Harrisburg.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society today received its permit for its concert Sunday night at Syria Mosque. The following program was approved:

Overture, "Finlandia".....Sibelius
Symphony in D Minor.....Franck
Intermission.
Concerto for cello.....Dvorak
Gregor Piatigorsky
"Islamey".....Balakirev (arr. Casella)

JAIL 4 RIOTERS, 9 SOUGHT

When 9 of 13 men, convicted of inciting to riot during an unemployed parade at Rankin last April 12, failed to appear in Criminal Court for sentence yesterday, Judge Sylvester J. Snee remanded to jail the four who did appear and ordered processes on which deputy sheriffs were dispatched to bring in the others.

The 13 had been found guilty before Visiting Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County. He had deferred sentence pending hearing of arguments for a new trial. The new trial was refused and the defendants notified to appear yesterday. When Judge Reed returned to his home he told Presiding Judge Snee what sentences he intended imposing and Judge Snee will sentence for him.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 18.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I want to stay off any reference to this 60-cent dollar until I have seen one, so I started searching the paper mighty thoroughly, and what do you think I found away down in one corner like one of those denials that a paper is sometimes forced to make.

Will Rogers

It stated, "Republican elected to Congress in Vermont." That's a mighty serious rumor, in case it proves to be true.

And I have no doubt that Congress will be asked to pass a law preventing it happening again. Course the thing come up so sudden like, they didn't think there was one in a million miles.

Yours, WILL.

Police reported seizing a 10-gallon still in operation last night in a house at 2830 Sarah street. They said they arrested Mary Vukdvich, 44, on a charge of violating the state liquor laws.

Hopeless Inadequacy Of Politics Cited By Couple

Russians are returning to bourgeois themes for their literature and music, realizing the hopeless inadequacy of politics as the central thread of their cultural interests, report Sergei Radamsky and his wife, Marie Williams, who for six years have spent six to eight months in the year singing in Russia.

For them Russia is not an experiment to be pricked observingly here and there, but a gradually prospering country where they have lived both happily and comfortably. Mrs. Radamsky, possessing a soprano voice, likes especially to discuss the women of Russia, for she believes within the next 10 or 15 years they will, by their accomplishments, prove that women are most definitely not men's inferiors in either a mental or physical sense.

She likes to tell of a recent exhibit of sculpture in Moscow at which 75 per cent of the finest works were by women, as well as of individual exploits in which women have successfully taken over jobs at which men had failed.

Radamsky and his wife have not merely observed but have actually taken part in Russian customs and laws, for they were first married in Moscow under the Soviet method of registration of names. A year later, in 1929, they were remarried in England to make their marriage legal in all countries.

Although Russia has become her foster country, Marie Williams Radamsky was born in Scotland, with her grandparents representing the divisions of Great Britain —Scotland, England, Ireland and Wales.

Sergei Radamsky himself is thoroughly cosmopolitan, for he speaks French, Russian, Polish, Spanish, German and Italian and understands all the Slav languages.

Friday evening this couple, who have made the cultures of many lands their own, will present a concert at Carnegie Hall whose proceeds will be turned over to the Icon Association of Pittsburgh, organized to aid impoverished Jews of the professional class in Russia.

In March they will once again sail for Russia for a six-month tour, during which they will give 60 concerts in the Soviet state.

SCHOOL BURNS AT W. NEWTON

WEST NEWTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—Fire destroyed a part of the West Newton High School building last night, causing damage estimated by the school board at $20,000.

Two rooms of the nine-room, two-story brick building were ruined and the others damaged by smoke and water.

The blaze threatened nearby houses for a time before it was extinguished by volunteer fire companies from Belle Vernon, Charleroi, Donora and West Newton.

The fire was of undetermined origin. School authorities said that they "smelled smoke" late yesterday but failed to find a fire. The school board met following the fire and voted to hire unemployed men in the rebuilding of the structure.

Township Taxpayers To Hear C. V. Shoup

Taxpayers of Leet Township will be addressed by C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, at a meeting in the Leet Township School tonight. "Justice for the Taxpayer" will be the subject of his address.

J. A. Weber is president of the Leet Township Taxpayers' League, which is sponsoring the meeting.

3 FLEE BLAZE IN BUILDING

Three persons were driven from the Stephens Building, 814-16 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, last night by a basement fire which caused $500 damage.

Mrs. Laura Stephens, owner of the building; her son, Dr. W. R. Stephens, and J. J. Meintel fled to the street when smoke filled the three-story structure.

W. T. Moody, his wife and four children and Miss Beatrice Mamaux, who live on the second floor, were not at home when the fire started. Water and smoke slightly damaged the Merles dress shop and the Thom McAn shoe store on the first floor.

The blaze started in the basement, according to Chief William M. Thompson, from what he thought was an overheated furnace. The fire was confined to the first and second floors.

Congress Soon May Call in All Our Teaspoons

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

We begin to grasp the idea behind money control. We're going to save everything.

After we get all the gold in the world, we are going after the string and wrapping paper.

The money problem was complicated when the Scotch saw a sea serpent in the ocean. We are buying that same ocean at five dollars a quart.

We are salting the gold away like a Maine fisherman curing mackerel. Then we will concentrate on silver. Don't be surprised if your breakfast spoons are called in by an act of Congress.

The final question of how much gold and silver should be placed in currency will be solved easily. We will electro-plate the dollar.

Burgess Orders Police To 'Steer' Drunks Home

Burgess Richard H. Lawry, of West Homestead, gave the borough police force a fiery talk on politics and booze last night and then ended up by handing Police Chief David Lindberg a letter confirming his suspension on Monday.

About 100 persons listened in at the police station as the Burgess told three desk sergeants and three motorcycle policemen:

"If you see any man under the influence of liquor, steer him home, and if he is too helpless for that, get one of his friends to take him home. But if you have time, do it yourself.

"There will be no 'fixing' while I am burgess. Don't let politics interfere with making you a good officer. You will not be put on the spot while I am in office."

Then Lawry handed Lindberg the official notice firing him until the next regular meeting of Council. This is the second time that Lindberg has been suspended. The notice read in part:

"The charge on which I base my suspension is that you are now charged with violation of the election laws and with aggravated assault and battery and have been dicted by the grand jury and awaiting trial."

Ask $5,000 Exemption On New Home Taxes

An ordinance exempting from taxation for five years $5,000 of the value of all new homes commenced before April 1 and finished before October 1 will be introduced in Council Monday by Councilman John J. Kane.

Kane will propose the ordinance at the request of Mayor William N. McNair, he says.

The measure was originally proposed by George E. Evans, then running for a Democratic nomination for Council, last August, and has since been suggested several times by Mayor McNair.

The land on which the houses are built will continue on the tax books and higher cost hom[illegible] will pay taxes on their value [illegible]ove $5,000, if the ordinance be[illegible]mes law.

Although there is some [illegible]l doubt as to the measure, it adopted several years ago Bethlehem, Pa., to include pairs on houses and resulted in a noticeable pickup in the building repair business.

McNair and Kane look on the measure as a possible spur to home building.

It will also benefit the housing project for which Evans is now seeking funds to erect 220 new houses on Marshall avenue near Brighton road, it was understood.

CITY REVENUE GAINS ON TAX ASSESSMENT

The heralded reduction in city real estate assessments estimated at one hundred million dollars will probably not exceed fifty millions, according to Chief City Assessor Percy R. Williams.

This means the city will have from $500,000 to $750,000 more revenue than was estimated when Council closed the budget and makes the new Council's task that much easier in closing the two million dollar gap when the budget is reopened today.

It may mean that Mrs. R. Templeton Smith will be able to suggest sufficient economy measures to entirely bring the city's expenditures within its income.

Williams' statement was made after Controller James P. Kerr told City Council that, on the basis of actual tax billings, the assessment reduction amounts to only slightly more than thirty million dollars.

Williams was cautious about making an estimate, declaring that no totals have yet been reached and that there is no way of telling definitely what the final figure will be.

Thomas C. McMahon, formerly chief city assessor, who estimated one hundred millions, has several times said that no definite figure could be arrived at before late in January.

If the reduction does not exceed fifty million dollars, City Council will find itself with one million dollars more borrowing power.

The Board of Public Education will likewise discover it has $560,000 more in tax levy than it thought.

The assessments on which the city has based its tax bills are $566,584,170 on land and $614,224,490 on buildings, a decrease of $19,795,730 on land and $11,033,240 on buildings, as compared with last year. Where tax appeals are successful, refunds will be made Controller Kerr stated.

The loss in the total tax levy as it stands now is $521,438 instead of an estimated million and a half dollars which does not take into account the percentage of taxes which would be collected.

JUNIOR PATROL

Junior and his gang are having a lot of fun in Little America!

It just goes to show what a lot of fun any bunch of fellows can have if they use their imaginations. You can always make believe! Sometimes that's more fun than the real thing. And not half the work and trouble.

But that is no reason to be lazy. When you play, play your best all the time. And do your share.

The first meeting of a new Junior Patrol will be Wednesday. The captain is James McGregor, who lives at 3549 Mulberry way, and he sends in 10 pledges.

Another new captain today is John Bodnar, of 710 Fifth street, Toronto, O. He sends in 10 pledges and he says that he and his members have been trying hard to keep their pledge promises.

Now here's a letter from Ranzi Petrocelli, of Box 705, Wall, Pa. He says that he has six members in his Star Club and that he is trying hard to get more members. Fine and dandy and we surely hope you get 10 members soon, Ranzi. Then, if your members elect you a captain, we can send you an armband.

Ranzi, in his letter, says too that his club pays dues of one cent a week and there is already five cents in the treasury.

And now here is a letter from Margaret Wellhauser, of Conestoga road, Wilkinsburg, Pa. She writes:

"Here are four more pledges for my Junior Patrol Club which will make my 10 members. Send them as soon as possible for they want them. We had a Halloween party and a Thanksgiving party. At our Halloween party they had to come through the window. Maybe you can send us some more ideas."

We will take care of things for you, Margaret, and send the pins and armband soon. Are you going to have some parties? Maybe you would like to have a contest among your members.

Veterans Seeing the War in Pictures

WILLIAM VOORSANGER — J. A. ELTON

W. C. BURSON — JACOB SHULGOLD — W. LEE MULLEN

Members of the downtown posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars getting an advance showing of the pages of uncensored World War pictures—Laurence Stallings' pictures—to be presented in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph—an amazing pictorial story of war.

War Pictures Hailed As Defense Lesson

Legion Leader Praises Strong Argument for Preparedness

The pictures, from Laurence Stallings' "The Picture Story of the World War," will appear in serial form in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The first group appears next Sunday.

Capt. Voorsanger, commenting on the pictures, declared:

"The Sun-Telegraph's showing of these war pictures is timely. It will bring home in a vivid manner to our citizens the actualities of conflict between people.

"The national program of the American Legion for years has included preparedness against war. If these pictures will help the people to realize that preparedness will keep such scenes from being enacted on our soil, it seems to me, Mr. Hearst is rendering a great national service."

Lieut. Jacob Shulgold, adjutant of Maj. Bayard Atwood Post, V. F. W., said:

"Non-combatants and those opposed to soldiers and their movements now have an opportunity to learn what it meant to be a soldier. No effort should be spared on the part of the government to prevent a similar occurrence as far as we in America are concerned.

"The next war will be more horrifying through the medium of gas, bombs and air raids than our minds can possibly contemplate. These pictures should be an antidote against war. Mr. Hearst is to be commended for his efforts."

Other comments were:

Walter C. Burson, first vice commander, Pittsburgh City Post, American Legion:

"The idea of reminding the public at this time of what the toll of war actually is through the medium of pictures is a great public service."

Lieut. R. S. Lawson, United States Naval Reserve:

"Preparedness is to the nation as an insurance policy is to the individual. In other words, without preparedness, the nation is in the same shape as an individual who has allowed his policy to lapse. I recommend close scrutiny of the pictures."

W. Lee Mullen, World War veteran:

"The war scenes appearing in the Sun-Telegraph depict unusually well the heretofore untold stories of the late war. Appalling as they may seem to some, they tell a story that many of us need to realize is the resultant consequence of conflict. May my son never have the exposure to it that his father had."

DR. G. T. HARDING DIES IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Dr. George T. Harding, II, a brother of the late President Warren G. Harding, died at his home in Worthington, a Columbus suburb, early today. He was 55.

Dr. Harding was famed as a neuro-psychiatrist. He had been seriously ill several weeks of a heart ailment.

His residence was near the Columbus Rural Rest Home in Worthington, which he founded in 1915. He previously had headed a sanatarium in Washington. During the World War he wsa a member of the Medical Reserve.

Dr. Harding leaves his wife, Mrs. Elsie Weaver Harding; three sons, Dr. George T. Harding, III, associated with his father in operating the rest home; Charles Weaver Harding and Dr. Warren G. Harding, II, of Sydney, Australia; two daughters, Ruth and Mary Elizabeth, and three sisters, Mrs. Abigail V. Lewis, of Marion, O.; Mrs. Charity M. Reintsberg, of Santa Ana, Cal., and Mrs. Phoebe Carolyn Votaw, of Washintgon.

MAYVIEW PERIL STORY 'UNJUST'

buildings. Architect Wood tells me that the report they are not fireproof is false. I can only take the assurance of my architect. I do know that they are so removed from the buildings that fire could not possibly reach them.

"As to the doors swinging in instead of out, I can only say that they were never called to my attention or they would have been rehung.

"I have repeatedly asked for a new fire truck, even taking Council on a trip to Mayview and pointing it out to them as a menace. On March 7, 1932, I petitioned Council for a new chemical engine 'that our patients at Mayview need not be in jeopardy.' I was ignored.

"The fire alarm system which has been announced as a new move by the present director was started at my instance November 1. It should be complete, according to the contract, by February 1 and not in 90 days, as announced to the newspapers.

ROTTEN FIRE HOSE

"The fire hose may have been rotten—decay sets in very quickly—but I am sure it would have been detected in the next regular inspection.

"The bars on the windows to which the fire inspector took exception will be found in any asylum for the insane throughout the country. No such institution could be conducted safely without barred windows.

"Let me only say that the safety of the inmates has always been my chief concern. The councilmanic record and the files of my office showing my correspondence with architects, designers, fire inspectors, Councilmen, Mayor and the Superintendent of Mayview will bear me out."

Experienced Firemen To Guard Mayview

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith is considering who he will name as the three experienced firemen who have been requested by Director Southard Hay to run the fire department at Mayview.

Hay is seeking immediate action in an effort to remedy some of the dangerous conditions reported to exist at the hospital by Deputy Fire Chief Louis J. Conley, who has declared that many of the buildings present extreme fire hazards.

Of the three men appointed, two will be on 12-hour shifts and a third will regularly inspect the buildings. Council has granted Director Hay the right to get estimates on making changes in the institution to conform with safety rules.

After it was discovered that the motor on the Mayview fire truck was not in working order, the superintendent of the municipal garage has been asked to put it in condition. As an additional precaution the truck is to be driven around the administration building twice a day to make certain it will go.

REALTY BOOM FORECAST BY LEADER

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Real estate, the National Association of Real Estate Boards was told today by its president, W. C. Miller, of Washington, is swinging back to its place in the sun and the "tide of foreclosures has almost receded."

In his annual address to the association, assembled in mid-winter convention here, Miller declared 1933 "undoubtedly marked the low point in real estate activity, and from that point we most certainly now are in the ascendent."

Among the factors which combine for "the beginning of a new real estate cycle," he listed the following:

"The four million families living in doubled-up quarters are beginning to unscramble;

"Those quarters considered unfit for human habitation and housing three million people are being torn down to an appreciable degree;

"The one million new families in the past three years are looking for homes;

"The $500,000,000 fire loss is taking its toll of residential property;

"Of the 30,000,000 buildings in the United States, the average life of which is 50 years, 600,000 wear out annually, and for the past four years they have not been replaced."

"With the huge national spending program increasing all prices, real estate is being recognized by experienced investors and economists as the safest form of wealth.

"With the government actually in the financing business and with the banks actually gorged with deposits which they have not dared to lend, I believe we can look to better real estate financing than ever before, which will not only be of longer term, but of lesser interest rate than has been the case in the past."

COUNTY HEADS DENIED PAY CUT RETURN

Against the wishes of Commissioner C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr, salaries of appointive county department heads will not be increased this year.

Closing the final salary board session yesterday, Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and Controller Robert G. Woodside voted against a return of the 15 per cent cut, taken by appointive directors with other county employes in 1933.

As Woodside and Mansfield took their negative stand, McGovern said:

"You can record the Controller and the Senator as voting on the side of the people."

Barr, who made the motion for increase, praised the work of the department heads as having been efficient and effecting a great deal of saving for the county. Barr particularly praised Solicitor J. P. Fife and the legal department.

Mansfield said there were many minor employes who had given all their effort to their work and he did not think the directors should be particularly favored. Woodside concurred.

HUDNUT HEADS CHILD BUREAU

The Rev. Herbert B. Hudnut, pastor of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, was elected president of the Children's Service Bureau of Allegheny County at the organization's annual meeting in the Duquesne Club yesterday.

Other officers elected are Edwin W. Smith and Robert S. McCarty, vice presidents; Malcolm McGiffin, treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Clarke Burnet, secretary.

The organization's annual report, submitted by the executive secretary, showed that of 5,831 cases investigated in 1933, full case work responsibility was undertaken for 2,748 children.

TRUCK PROTEST PLANNED HERE

Transfer companies in Pittsburgh are awaiting a hearing before the Public Service Commission to air charges of unfair competition against the Pennsylvania Railroad's store-door delivery system, according to Hugh G. Walsh, secretary of the local chapter of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association.

Walsh, who attended a hearing in Harrisburg last week, said the commission plans a meeting here to hear the complaints of persons unable to visit the state capital.

The railroad's rate of 6 cents a hundred pounds for delivery from station to store is 4 cents lower than that charged for a similar load by local trucking companies. Walsh asserted the railroad cannot profit at that price and Pittsburgh transfer organizations cannot meet the competition. He said the store-door system was introduced here December 1.

JUDGE FINES BROADCASTER

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The statement Charles M. Hackett, radio commentator and newspaperman, is alleged to have made concerning a liquor conspiracy trial, had cost him $300 today after he was adjudged guilty of contempt of court.

Judge David J. Reinhardt imposed the penalty for what Hackett is accused of saying from a radio station about the "Penny Hill liquor theft case," in which two former state policemen and a one-time State Highway Department employe are accused of conspiracy.

Trial of the three men, charged with conspiracy to steal seized liquor from the Penny Hill State Police Station, ended in a mistrial last week, Judge Reinhardt blaming Hackett's remarks for his action. The mistrial was declared the day after Hackett's alleged broadcast.

Young People Tell Pastor Sermons To Preach

Young people of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church congregation are "dictating" to their pastor the sermons he ought to preach.

The pastor, the Rev. C. Marshall Muir, recently asked the students and young business people what they wanted him to preach about. The young members suggested that he answer several questions, including:

"Is there a God? Is there a conflict between science and religion? and would Jesus recognize present-day Christianity?"

Mr. Muir will spend the next six weeks in answering the questions from the pulpit. The first sermon on the series will be preached next Sunday.

Pinkham Medicines HELP!

Your grandmother and mine depended upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Modern women like Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets . . . chocolate coated . . . purse size package . . . for the relief of periodic pains and discomfort and female irregularities.

MRS. V. ARTHUR
54-7th Ave., Carbondale, Pa.

"I am 57 years old. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was so bad I could hardly walk around and I cannot praise it enough. I have also used the Sanative Wash and got wonderful help from it."

ANGELINE G. LAROSA
1313-5th Ave., McKeesport, Pa.

'For four years I suffered with periodic pains. My left side used to feel paralyzed and I would stay in bed two days. I had no appetite, just drank about six cups of coffee a day. I was weak and nervous. I tried all kinds of medicine without results until I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They gave me strength and appetite. My nerves are much better and I am so relieved that I do not suffer as I used to. I recommend your medicine to every woman I come in contact with."

RULE ADVOCATES FURTHER AID FOR SCHOOLS

DOWNINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, said today the public school situation in Pennsylvania is still critical and advocated increased state aid to improve it.

Rule said the fact that "the General Assembly approved a bill carrying five million dollars for special aid to financially distressed school districts is no indication that citizens and educators can sit back with folded hands and epect the situation to clear."

WOULD EASE TAXES

He asserted this fund offers "emergency relief" and "we hope it will aid in keeping every school open for the remainder of this school year and all of next."

Rule said there is great need for "making the local school burden easier for the realty taxpayer." He declared:

"In the old days the schools had the traditional three R's of instruction. Today we need application for three E's—economy, efficiency and equalization.

"Efficiency in local school administration will necessarily mean economy of operation. Equalization in education means the same kind of opportunity for all children, rich or poor, rural or urban.

CHANGE NEEDED

"Many of our rural schools are in great need of this necessary change. In most sections it can be attained through the merger of small school districts into units large enough to be operated efficiently and give more boys and girls a chance to get the best kind of educational opportunity.

"Equalization in school administration also means a square deal for the taxpayer. It should be possible to have a good educational program at minimum cost and have the burden of support equitable distributed among all taxpayers in the state. On a statewide basis of operation there is no need for new taxes."

SMOKY CENTERS HELD PERIL

Inhabitants of smoky industrial centers are deprived of sunlight and vitamin D and subjected to sinus infection and bronchitis, according to H. B. Meller, head of the air pollution investigation, Mellon Institute of Research, and chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation.

Speaking at a meeting of the Allegheny County Homeopathic Medical Society at the Homeopathic Hospital last night, Meller said:

"The average adult breathes about 30 cubic inches of air in each inhalation, equivalent to about 37½ pounds of air a day or five to seven times the weight of food and water consumed. It does not seem an exaggeration to say that more persons are devitalized, disabled and poisoned by the impurities of smoke-polluted air than by the noxious ingredients in food and water."

Pittsburgh's anti-smoke ordinance regulates only dense smoke, Meller pointed out, while no provision is made for lighter smoke, solids that do not color smoke and noxious gasses. He urged extensive study of air pollution under the auspices of organized medicine.

BUILD HOMES, M'NAIR URGES

Mayor McNair today proposed that 200 Hill district families who would be made homeless by the proposed slum clearance program build new homes on vacant lots owned by the city with city relief funds.

He said:

"The city has 1,000 vacant lots. We have $1,400,000 to buy materials with and we have much material on hand. So we will give the families evicted a lot and let them build a new house on it."

The Mayor apparently referred to the $1,400,000 work relief bonds authorized by the people and recently sold. Use of this money for such a purpose was held questionable by bond experts at City Hall

MARKET HOUSE REPAIR PLAN PROPOSED

A committee, headed by Attorney Harland I. Casteel, which wants Council to refurnish the North Side Market House at a cost of some $250,000, was laying plans today for presentation of its project to Council's finance committee, with concrete proposals for execution of the plan.

The committee was told yesterday at a meeting of Council's committee on hearings, that the finance committee would be glad to receive its requests at any time.

The group urged remodeling of the market, saying it would then earn its own way with first-class businessmen occupying the stalls and finding it a desirable and profitable location for business.

Casteel told the committee that present occupants owe the city $26,000 rent, which may never be collected. He ascribed the delinquency to the poor condition of the market and the lack of sufficient customers—due to its unattractiveness—to pay occupants' expenses.

Carmichaels Man Heads Fire Chiefs

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Fire Chief P. A. Myers, of Carmichaels, was elected president of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Fire Chiefs' and Assistant Chiefs' Association here last night. He succeeds George Vickers, of Brownsville.

LITTLE AMERICA REACHED BY BYRD SHIP

LITTLE AMERICA, (via Mackay Radio), Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his Antarctic expedition arrived here at 12:30 a. m. E. S. T., today.

The flagship was forced to travel at a reduced speed Tuesday night owing to a blizzard. But yesterday the sky cleared slowly and the waters of the Ross Sea became deep blue.

Six dog teams, hauling camping supplies, immediately were slung over the side of the ship and started over the gently rising ridge between the mooring place and the camp proper.

The cruise from Boston had occupied three months.

The landing party found the three 60-foot wireless towers of the camp intact although the buildings were covered with snow. Admiral Byrd exclaimed:

"It's all there. The administration building you can see, the three ventilators sticking up and the chimney. There's the radio shack to the left. It's all there under the snow."

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Jealousy Will Rob Marriage Of All Happiness

Love tiffs . . . squabbles . . . sulks . . . crying spells . . . brawls.

They make love exciting, don't they?

And it's "such fun making up"—yes.

But how long can love survive a racket like that?

Myrtle's husband needs to know. Maybe yours does, too. Or perhaps, you yourself, are the tantrum specialist. If so—

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I am so unhappy that I don't know what to do. Will you please help me if you can? I need it so!

Three years ago I met a young man who seemed very wonderful to me. We fell deeply in love with each other almost immediately, and in three months we were married. At first I was very happy. I would still be, I know, if it weren't for one thing.

He is so jealous of me that it almost drives me crazy. He really is a good man. He works hard, and is never stingy. He is attractive, and I would still love him deeply if it weren't for his awful tantrums every time I even look at anyone but him.

I have no desire to flirt with anyone, but I was always popular and had lots of nice friends. Naturally, even though I am married, they still expect to be pleasant and pass the time of day with me.

But if I dare smile and nod at one on the street, or spend a minute talking to one if we are out for an evening with our friends, I hear about it plenty, as soon as my husband and I are alone.

KILLED LOVE

He watches every move I make, and sticks close to my side. Everything I do is viewed with suspicion. If I so much as go to the store, when I get back I must tell him whom I saw, how long I talked, and any other silly thing he can think of. If I speak to any man I knew before we were married, I am common and cheap.

Lately, I am beginning to wonder if it pays to be square with him. I'm accused of not being—and I am sick of it.

When I married him I wouldn't have dreamed of looking at another man. But now, I'll admit, I am losing interest in him and his tantrums and idiotic suspicions.

I've tried so hard to love him, in spite of all this, but I can't. He has killed my respect for him. He has killed the love I had for him, evidently under the delusion that being ugly was the way to keep it.

He says he loves me more than when we were first married. But it seems to me that he is very selfish, and taking a very peculiar way of showing it. He has said that if I ever left he'd kill me, but I can't go on like this. What shall I do?

MYRTLE.

What'll you do? First decide what you want to do—what you'll have the courage to insist upon doing. For there's no use starting a reformation unless you can see it through.

SHOULD TELL HUSBAND

Then, if you've really made up your mind that you will not stand any more of these scenes which are robbing marriage of all its beauty, dignity and decency, sit down quietly and tell your husband, exactly as you have told me, what his attitude is doing to you. Show him that he is not only killing your love but that he is robbing himself of the one chance of happiness.

Be friendly and understanding. Admit that his jealousy may be based on fear, and his fear on love. But show him how needless such fear is—and how deadly. Then tell him, straight from the shoulder, that you can't and won't stand his degrading suspicions—and that if you do walk out on him, it'll be because he himself has made it impossible for any self-respecting woman to live with him.

Tell him, too, that if he'll give you a break, and give you the same respect he would demand for himself, you'll stand by and give him every break. But if he won't, you're through.

Say that, and mean it—and stick by your guns! And if he is a man you'll yet save your love. But if he isn't—then aren't you better off hitting the long trail alone, youngster?

Fay King Reflects on the Fate of Yesterday's Favorite

By FAY KING

Nothing is more touching than to hear of an old favorite who served the public well but is now forgotten and in need.

But not all such former favorites are so deserving of public's sympathy and response.

Some favorites in the heydey of their success and popularity did not appreciate what had come to them.

They were arrogant and rude. They did not hesitate to sneer and express contempt for the public which made possible their fame and fortune.

They did much to offend the many upon whose admiration and patronage the reign of their popularity depended. No wonder in time the public grew tired and turned to others.

But now, when they would appreciate their public, alas, it is too late!

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

Avis Fails to Retrieve Bottle of Acid

I stood tensely at the top of the stairs until I could no longer hear Marion's light descending footsteps. Then I walked over to the lighted recess in the hall, where we have lounging chairs, a table and a reading lamp, and sat down where I could command a view of the entire hall.

It was fully ten minutes before Avis emerged from the bathroom where she had hidden the bottle of powerful cleaning fluid, which I was sure had been destined to ruin the bridesmaid's gown prepared for her. That she had been pushing in vain against the ceiling trap door, above which she had hidden the bottle, I knew by the flush upon her face and the tiny beads of perspiration at the edges of her forehead.

In her anxiety to find out what she could about this seemingly impregnable door, which she previously had found so easy to open, she had not taken time to repair her ravaged make-up, and when, at sight of me, she stopped short, and then almost instantly sauntered toward me, I instinctively braced myself against what I felt would be a barrage of questioning.

But it was no question with which she opened the conversation.

"How comfy you look!" she exclaimed. "Nobody would ever think you had a wedding on your hands tomorrow."

"If I worried about it, I never would be able to go through with the preparations," I told her. "I always can pull myself together with a book."

TIRED OF DANCING

"Oh, do you feel that way, too?" she queried. "That is my unfailing recipe for worry—a book of poetry. Is that poetry you have there? I adore it; don't you?"

"It depends upon the brand," I said lightly.

She laughed, the dutiful, placating laugh one gives when not amused but feeling an obligation to gratify a would-be wit, and put her hand upon the back of the chair opposite mine.

"Do you mind if I sit down here with you a little while?" she queried prettily. "I'm a bit fed up with dancing. Besides, I am afraid Marion and Carolyn are a bit jealous of me. I really can't blame them, though. Ronald and Bob are giving me such a rush that I am quite upset over it. I do wish they wouldn't make me quite so conspicuous. Why, do you know, they almost came to blows over a dance with me. They both claimed I had promised it to them, and I hadn't promised either of them."

The impulse to laughter which swept me at her words was quickly stifled by a feeling of blank puzzlement. Was it possible, I wondered, that this girl was so fatuous as to believe the farcical nonsense with which Ronald and Bob were plying her, in order to keep her away from Noel? Or, possessed of much more cleverness than I had supposed, was she deliberately acting this naive role to see how much of a rise she could get out of me?

INTERESTED IN ATTIC

"I shouldn't worry about it, Avis," I said. "And I shall be very glad to have you sit here with me for a little while."

"Thank you so much," she said sweetly, and sank languidly into the chair.

"What a queer old house you have here!" she said after a few seconds, and a little voice, deep within me, warningly whispered, "Here it comes!"

"What do you mean by 'queer', Avis?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing bad," she assured me hurriedly. "It's perfectly lovely and quaint, but it's so odd! It just rambles all over everywhere. I'm dying to go all over it. I've only seen the lower floors, and Bill was telling me you have the spiffiest attic and basement. He says you have a game room in the basement, and that the attic has window panes over a hundred years old. I'd so love to see them. Do you suppose I could before I go home?"

"Why, of course, my dear," I returned promptly. "But you know how busy we all shall be tomorrow, and you probably are too tired to go on a tour of inspection now."

She sat up in her chair as if suddenly galvanized.

"Oh, I'd love nothing better," she cried, "but —" with the prettiest possible air of consideration—"aren't you too tired?"

"Not too tired to show the old house," I assured her, and I led the way toward the attic, wondering just what plan Avis had in her head for retrieving the bottle which she had hidden. That, I was sure, was the secret of her sudden interest in the attic.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Delay of Operation Is Danger in Appendicitis

A recent newspaper item stated that in the United States the deaths from appendicitis average "one every twenty-nine minutes." This is an alarming announcement. There can be no doubt the danger of this disease cannot be overemphasized. Despite the increased skill of modern surgery, appendicitis continues to take its toll of children and young persons.

Dr. Copeland

A careful analysis and survey of cases shows that the menace of appendicitis lies, not in the operation, but in the delay of the operation. Too often appendicitis is mistaken for a stomach ache or another minor abdominal complaint. The sufferer seeks relief by taking castor oil or some other drastic cathartic. Serious trouble follows.

In other instances delay in operation can be traced to fear of the knife. Many dread the operation, little realizing that delay to have it is often dangerous. I am confident that if everyone were familiar with that dreadful complication of appendicitis, known as "peritonitis," fewer persons would hesitate to accept surgical treatment.

Peritonitis occurs after the diseased appendix ruptures. When that happens the germs of the infection enter the abdominal cavity which is lined by a delicate membrane called the "peritoneum." This structure dips down between the different organs, covering and protecting them. It serves as a wrapper and secretes a substance which promotes movement of the organs without friction.

Unfortunately, when germs reach this delicate membrane a severe and possibly fatal inflammation occurs. It is a serious complication of appendicitis. In most instances, fortunately, it can be prevented by the immediate removal of the acutely inflamed appendix. It is for this reason that all surgeons stress the importance and necessity of immediate operation.

As I have often said, a common cause of ruptured appendix and peritonitis is the unwise use of cathartics for the relief of abdominal pain. I am sure that fewer deaths would result from appendicitis if the dangers of strong cathartics were familiar to everyone.

If you are stricken with a pain in the abdomen, or a member of your family complains of stomachache, do not resort to home prescribing of a cathartic, but call your doctor. If it is not a case of appendicitis, you will be assured of safe and speedy relief. If the pain is due to appendicitis you will have saved yourself from possible complications.

I beg of you not to fear the operation. I assure you that in the hands of a competent surgeon it is a simple procedure and need cause no undue anxiety. No good can possibly come from delay in permitting removal of the diseased appendix.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Crossed Signals

When two of the most expert players in the world have enjoyed a long and successful partnership, their opponents at the Bridge table ordinarily consider themselves at a distinct disadvantage, particularly because the bidding of either partner must be, to a great extent, an open book to the other player. This is no reflection whatever upon either partner on the basis of the exchange of illegal information, but simply that long partnership play develops a more or less psychic understanding between two good players. However, it is quite possible for even the best of partnerships to go wrong, as was demonstrated recently in the Experts' Room at a prominent club in New York, when that notably strong pair, Messrs. Michael T. Gottlieb and Theodore A. Lightner, reached a Grand Slam contract, but, peculiarly enough, in the wrong suit. The hand and bidding were:

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

Mr. Gottlieb
♠ A K 10 9 6 4 3
♡ 8
♣ J 10 8 3 2

Mr. Oswald Jacoby
♠ 8
♡ Q 9 7 3
◇ K 9 8 4 3 2
♣ Q 7

North / West / East / South

Mr. Harold Richard
♠ Q J 7
♡ J 5 4 2
◇ Q J 7 6 5
♣ 4

Mr. Lightner
♠ 5 2
♡ A K 10 6
◇ A 10
♣ A K 9 6 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 N T (1)	Pass
4 ♣ (2)	Pass	5 N T (3)	Pass
7 ♠ (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—In view of the fact that he held but two small spades, Mr. Lightner discarded the alternative Forcing bid of three hearts in favor of the almost Forcing bid of two notrump.

2—Of course, Mr. Gottlieb's hand is distinctly of a suit type and the bid of four clubs is a mild Slam try.

3—Mr. Lightner and Mr. Gottlieb had been playing the Four-Five Notrump Convention all summer. In this particular game there had been no announcement as to whether it would be used, but Mr. Lightner felt that his partner could not entirely misinterpret the five-notrump bid. In any event, it never occurred to him that Mr. Gottlieb would now bid seven spades, a suit which he had not yet rebid. In addition, Mr. Lightner wanted to give a stronger Grand Slam try than would have been the immediate bid of six clubs.

4—Mr. Gottlieb interpreted the five-notrump bid as definitely denying a club suit of more than four cards in length, and decided that his own seven-card suit offered the best chance for the Grand Slam.

Of course, the contract was defeated one trick as Mr. Richard held three trumps to the Queen-Knave. It will be noticed that seven clubs can be made without difficulty as the trumps break and the spades may be established for discards.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♣ K 10 9 3

North / West / East / South

♣ J 2

South is playing a notrump contract and leads the Ten of clubs from Dummy. What card should East play?

Answer: The deuce. If he covers and West has the Queen and two small cards, the Declarer, by finessing the second round, can make four tricks in the suit. If East does not cover, East-West must make one trick.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

After the Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When a girl dances with a young man, and after the dance he thanks her, what is the girl supposed to say? "You're welcome?" Isn't there something else that can be said besides that?

2—If a girl is sitting with a young man, or another girl, and she is asked to dance, is she supposed to pardon herself? I heard one girl say, "Do you mind?" and another say, "You don't mind, do you?" Is that correct?

3—When a young man and a young lady are going downstairs, who should go first? S.

1—The girl's reply to the man's "Thank you for the dance" should never be "You're welcome." This indicates, obviously, that the pleasure of the dance was the man's only. The girl should say something like this: "That was such a delightful dance," or "I enjoyed that dance so much, Mr. Allen," or "It was delightful."

2—Yes, either of these ways of excusing herself is correct and gracious. "Do you mind" is perhaps a bit better.

3—I like best the idea of the man preceding the woman, both in going upstairs and in going downstairs. But there is no definite rule about this.

—says Mrs. A. D. Mackintosh

Happy the woman who can keep her husband in love with her! Mrs. Mackintosh is wise enough to realize that just as loveliness first wins a man, it is loveliness that holds him.

"It seemed very reasonable to me that if the movie stars could grow lovelier every year, I could, too, if I used their beauty care," says this lovely matron. "I started using Lux Toilet Soap the way they do. It has not only improved my skin but keeps it exquisitely smooth and young-looking!

"I made up my mind that I would not let the new responsibilities of married life make me forget the things that first attracted my husband.

"That's why I'm never going to be without this beauty care . . . I expect it to keep my skin lovely all through the years!"

PRECIOUS ELEMENTS IN THIS SOAP, SCIENTISTS EXPLAIN—

Here's why Lux Toilet Soap is such a wonderful aid to beauty. Science has demonstrated that Lux Toilet Soap actually contains elements Nature puts in skin itself to keep it youthful.

With time, the skin gradually loses these precious, natural elements. Lux Toilet Soap checks their loss from the skin. This gentle, readily soluble soap has kept screen stars' complexions like velvet, year after year. 9 out of 10 Hollywood stars use it!

Keep your skin young-looking—start today to use fragrant white Lux Toilet Soap regularly!

Dorothy Jordan
lovely RKO-Radio star, says: "I've used Lux Toilet Soap for a good many years, and from the beginning I noticed the improvement in my complexion. This soap keeps my skin beautifully soft."

STATE SPEEDS MACHINERY FOR BONUS

The state's machinery for paying compensation to its war veterans was speeded today through the activity of First Lieut. J. Guy Griffith, chosen contract representative in this district for the Veterans' Compensation Bureau, Department of Military Affairs.

Griffith has established offices at 406 Nixon Building. It will be his duty to disseminate information regarding the payments to those eligible to receive compensation in his district.

The district, one of four in the state, is composed of Allegheny, Lawrence, Butler, Beaver, Washington, Greene, Fayette, Westmoreland, Indiana, Armstrong, Clarion, Jefferson, Cambria, Blair, Bedford and Somerset Countis.

NO PAY BEFORE APRIL

Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis announced appointment of the contact representatives, with Col. Arthur C. Colahan heading the bureau at Harrisburg.

Adj. Gen. Davis said compensation payments will not be made until after April 7. Applications will be mailed to all posts of all military organizations, American Red Cross chapters and National Guard armories. Discharge papers contain all the information necessary in filling out application blanks.

Applications are to be in the hands of the posts on or about February 1. All veterans who were legal residents of the state at the time of enlistment and who served honorably in the Spanish-American War between April 21, 1898, and August 13, 1898, in the China relief expedition, Philippine Islands or Guam between April 21, 1898, and July 4, 1902, or who served in the World War between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, are eligible for compensation.

$200 LIMIT

The service is to be computed at the rate of $10 a month for each month or major fraction of a month of active service, but no veteran shall be entitled to more than $200. Compensation for a veteran who died in active military service will be $200.

Applications, when prepared, are to be mailed to the Veterans' Compensation Bureau, Department of Military Affairs.

Dependents will be considered in the following order: surviving un-remarried widow, surviving minor child or children, surviving mother, and surviving father. No charges will be made by notaries public for their services.

SPEAKS ON RADIO

After broadcasting the regulations on the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter program over stations WCAE and WJAS yesterday, Lieut. Griffith announced he would use the same facilities from time to time to give further information concerning the compensation activities.

On Saturday night at 6:30 o'clock, Lieut. Griffith again will be a guest speaker on the Globe Trotter program.

CUNARD JOINS WHITE STAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The New York Times says the merger of the White Star and Cunard steamship lines, after negotiations lasting for two years, is now in effect.

News of the merger, the Times says, was brought to New York by the White Star Liner Olympic yesterday, but has not yet been publicly announced on either side of the Atlantic.

The British National Service, the newspaper says, will be the holding company that will control both lines. Reports received on the Olympic indicated the White Star would be the dominant factor in the merger. The newspaper says there will be one service weekly between New York and the channel ports and the same between New York and Liverpool, via the Irish Coast.

Pattern 1753

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

School girls will like this frock—straight from the shoulder! Just notice the many possibilities offered by the drop shoulder line. Perky puffs may be joined to it and a captivating frill that finds its way across the back, too, to accent the smart yoke. Either frill or sleeves may be omitted as sketched in the small views. You can use the pattern several times, making one frock of printed cotton and another in silk or crepe. The smart front panel, the collar high under the chin, the semi-belted effect are details young girls revel in.

Pattern 1752 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 10 takes 2⅝ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Campaign Manager Paroled in Larceny

Attorney W. G. Negley, defeated candidate for Juvenile Court judge, appeared in Criminal Court yesterday as prosecutor of Herman Regenstein, of 326 Melwood avenue, one of his campaign managers, whom he charges with larceny by bailee.

He charged that Regenstein had appropriated $35 out of $50 Negley had given him to pay watchers. After a verdict of guilty had been returned Judge George V. Moore paroled Regenstein for one year, with a proviso that he return the money.

M'CORMICK ART BRINGS $47,512

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Moving vans and trucks backed in at the gray-turreted mansion on Lake Shore drive today and began carting away the rich furnishings that had belonged to the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

The contents of the 34-room mansion, much of it appraised as museum pieces, was sold at auction and realized a total of $47,512.

With the furnishings of Villa Turicum, Mrs. McCormick's Lake Forest estate, yet to be sold to the highest bidder, the personal property of the social arbiter, whose wealth was once rated at 50 million dollars, is going under the hammer to satisfy claims against the estate.

Mrs. McCormick's daughter, Muriel, now Mrs Elisha Dyer Hubbard, was an avid bidder on her mother's possessions both in New York and Chicago.

Now Keep Breath Sweet—24 HOURS A DAY!

Bad Breath Needs Medicine Doctors Say

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(Why go to Night School?)

That if your dream features a mad dog, a mouse, wild bull or a lion, it is a sign—that you need affection. (Ymusscummupsumtime!)

That it requires a week to make a ping-pong ball.

That if Socrates were alive today he'd be arrested for vagrancy. Soccy had the habit of standing motionless on street corners for hours (they say sometimes for 24) in deep meditation.

That the wealthy Chinese drink over 50 cups of tea daily.

That almost a million people die of malaria in India every year. (And Gandhi has to starve himself yet!)

That Empress Catherine the Great, who ruled Russia, could not speak a word of Russian language.

That if you wanted to complete all the courses offered at Yale University, you'd have to sign up for 503 years.

That there is less risk, they tell me, riding 100,000 miles in a plane than in an auto. (Uh-huh.)

That between one million and two million of the general population in this country are feeble-minded. (Look, I can cross my eyes!)

That James W. Marshall, the first gold-digger, who first discovered gold in California, died in poverty in a mountain cabin.

That $17,000,000 changes hands annually in this country in the name of alimony. (Alimony? ali-moan-y!!!)

That the Shah of Persia had to cut down his harem from 500 to 250, times being what they aren't.

That the Philadelphian who first opened an umbrella was arrested.

That the man who rings up the curtain and lowers it in a New York theater gets $70 per week and works about 200 seconds a night.

That a golf match has been going on for 11 years. The contestants are two Englishmen, named Chamberlain and New. The present scores are Chamberlain: 30,821. New: 29,962. They will play till one or the other dies.

That Shakespeare originally wrote "Hamlet" (who is tall and skinny) for Richard Burbage, an actor, who was short and fat.

That King Louis Philippe taught school on B'way at 75th St.

That New York imports its water, while sewers beneath the city carry the finest spring and brook aqua out into the seas.

That Federal employes' fingerprints are catalogued and filed together with those of criminals in the Department of Justice at Washington.

That is only 300 miles from America to Europe. (From Greenland to Spitzbergen above Norway, you dope!)

That teaching dancing was once forbidden in New York!!!

That artists often employ a slim girl as a model—for the buxom Oriental type. (They have such imagination, y'know.)

That pensions for the war of 1812—are still being paid to widows, of course (Which gives you an idea why taxes are so high.)

That every time a low note is struck on the Paramount Theater organ—it costs the theater $10 in broken electric bulbs.

That the lowest public expense ever for one U. S. Senator's obsequies amounted to $4.50. (Say, a good Senator's worth that!)

That in New Guinea if a native awakens from a coma and finds himself interrupting his own funeral, he disgraces his relatives, who flee in shame.

That we were a li'l silly when we wondered why the flag "was still there" all thru the night (in the "Star-Spangled Banner") for during battle if the flag is lowered—it means surrender. (Scuzeitplizz.)

That the toes out and heel to heel Army stance not only is not correct posture, but is harmful. (Ask your tootsie docter.)

That the snooty members of the F. F. W. (Foist Families of Virginia) dare not hire a genealogist to trace their family tree prior to 1700. Up till then it's okay. But before that—O my!

And that whenever you imagine you are worthless—remember this. There's enough carbon in you to make 9,000 pencils.

Argument Seems Main Root In New Dramas of Shaw and O'Neill

By GEORGE SEIBEL

With a new play by Eugene O'Neill in New York and a new play by Bernard Shaw in London, the little fellows like Philip Barry are in the background just yet, but 1934 is likely to be their year. The O'Neill drama we shall likely see in the Nixon later in the season, but the Shaw opus is hardly likely to get this far.

O'Neill has taken religion as his theme, and Shaw politics as his. That should make both plays taboo as topics of conversation—remembering the old rule of drawing-room etiquette: No religion or politics. That leaves only the weather.

Shaw's play is called "On the Rocks," and it appears to have landed there.

Mr. Seibel

James Agate, a very intelligent London critic, says it is "not a play," which we have heard before about Shaw's work. But he says it is "non-stop variety without variety. It is a lecture, a debate, a reading aloud, a mock trial of impatient wits, and a real trial of patience to those who have not the wit to understand modern politics or to enjoy being read to."

Shaw used to write pleasant prefaces to explain his plays. In this case he is accused of dispensing with the play, and giving the audience his preface cut up into lengths for convenient speaking.

CRITICS ARE HUMAN

It is not well to take the word of the best critic on earth, as he may have been sleepy or had a toothache. But to take ideas of Spengler and Marx, Gandhi and Mussolini, and scramble them in three acts, does not look like a good recipe for great drama. Shakespeare did not do anything like that even in "Julius Caesar," which is a political drama.

Just what Shaw has done in politics, O'Neill seemingly has done with religion. Whenever O'Neill begins to write religious drama, he lands in a bog of bombast. Billy Sunday and Dean Inge in collaboration couldn't write a worse play than "Dynamo." "Lazarus Laughed" is a trifle sad—nothing to laugh at.

The new O'Neill drama is called "Days Without End," and he calls it "a modern miracle play." One of the critics describes it as "the story of a modern apostate who returns to the Roman Catholic faith when a crisis in his life requires more spiritual strength than he can summon from his intellectual pride." Earle Larimore plays this part, and plays it sometimes with a mask and sometimes without, to distinguish between the two selves of faith and doubt. That great actor, Robert Loraine, as a benevolent priest, gets credit for the finest work in the production.

There is no reason why a religious conflict should not be put into a play. Sardou did it in a drama called "Daniel Rochat," and if O'Neill has not read that play, he ought to have read it. He would find his idea not as novel as it may have seemed, and he would have learned a few things about the theatric side of theological discussion.

AVOIDING THE OBVIOUS

It is possible to discuss such things without offense. Sometimes the offense lies in the obvious avoidance of the theme. In Greta Garbo's "Queen Christina," in the Nixon, we hear Protestant and Catholic mentioned several times, but Hollywood evidently does not want to get involved in the Thirty Years War.

The opening scene shows Gustavus Adolphus dying on the battlefield of Luetzen, and there is choral singing, but not "Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott." We see the Swedish peasantry get wildly excited in later scenes, but their wild excitement seems to be chiefly over the fact that their queen might marry John Gilbert, and they do not like his mustache.

The whole business impresses one very much as if a performance of "Hamlet" were to be staged in Copenhagen, and they left out the Dane for fear of offending the Danish royal house by showing their Prince mad or acting queer.

Five Leading Women For Barthelmess

Richard Barthelmess, in his forthcoming picture, "A Modern Hero," will have Jean Muir, Florence Eldridge (Mrs. Frederic March), Dorothy Burgess, Verree Teasdale and Marjorie Rambeau in his support. The flicker is based on the Louis Bromfield novel of the same name. It's a romantic drama bearing the hearts of a number of women who come into the life of the leading male character.

Virtuoso Of 'Cello With Orchestra

Gregor Piatigorsky, 'cellist who will be soloist at the Pittsburgh Symphony concert in Syria Mosque Sunday night, has appeared with noted orchestras of the country, including Philadelphia and New York Philharmonic. His instrument is an Amati. Antonio Modarelli will conduct the concert.

It has played in thousands of theaters throughout the United States, and has also been produced in Spanish and French. Over 400 theaters in New York have shown the picture, and it was featured in the all Walt Disney show in Carnegie Hall, New York, where there were more than 4,500 paid admissions on opening day.

Bette's Radio Singing Mate Decides to Prolong Stay in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—Giving those rumors another jolt, Bette Davis and Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., may now tighten up their commuting marriage and spend the whoe 12 months of the year together.

When the Warner star's radio-singing husband came out for the holidays, it originally was to be a visit of a week or 10 days. He's still here, however, and when she was reached at home, Bette said:

"He'll stay in Hollywood for the time being at least."

The actress denied current reports that Nelson is seeking radio work in Los Angeles, but admitted that the two of them may decide against being separated any longer by the whole width of the continent.

Meanwhile, the couple continue to evade studio and sporadic newspaper attempts to photograph them together.

Hollywood got one of its big surprises of the week when Ruth Roland turned publicity woman. She made the announcement to her friends at a cocktail party given in her new offices. Ruth is associating herself with David Arlen, and the firm will have representatives in New York and Paris.

The publicity field, you'll recall, already has attracted Helen Ferguson, another former star. Helen is now one of the better press agents in the film colony.

Variations On An Old Theme

YOU WOULDN'T want to meet Johnny. He was neither interesting nor glamrous nor romantic. He had a small mousy mustache, pale watery eyes, and a way of butting into things which didn't concern him. He was annoying and pestiferous, and he liked to argue about matters of which he knew less than nothing.

Of love, there was a great deal in Johnny's life. Ninety-five per cent of it was for himself. The other 5 per cent went to Annabelle. He liked her because she was timid and dumb and because she believed every word he said.

She sat on the davenport many a night and listened to him tell her what he told the boss at the office that day.

"I don't know what that dumb cluck would do without me," asserted Johnny. "He knows it, too. That's why he won't let me quit. The last time I tried to breeze, he begged me—almost on his knees, mind you—to give him another chance.

"You know, Annabelle, there's one thing I've got to do before I will achieve the success that is rightfully mine. What made A Smith the great man he is? What made Hoover? What made Roosevelt? How did Babe Ruth and Lindbergh become national heroes?

"Know how, Annabelle? No. I thought you wouldn't. You're not smart enough yet. But you will be, if you stick around little Johnny long enough. All those people, my dear Annabelle, got their pictures in the paper."

If he expected Annabelle to be bowled over by this great secret he was nuts. She merely sat there quietly for a moment, and then smiled.

"So what?" she murmured.

"So what?" screamed Johnny. "My dear, dear girl. That's the answer. That's the solution to fame. That's why Gandhi and his towel are known the length and breadth of the world. That's why Gloria Swanson's no longer behind a department store counter. Picture in the paper. It's the answer to my dreams."

He snapped his fingers.

"Johnny Brown," he whispered, "is going to get his picture in the paper. Johnny Brown is going to be famous. Within a few short months you'll be telling your co-workers down at Klein's Klassy Klothes that you have a personally autographed picture of me, and they won't believe you."

The girl sighed. What's a poor girl to do with a bird like that? . . .

Mr. Johnny Brown started off by visiting every newspaper in town and passing out pictures to copy boys who palmed themselves off as city editors. He told them that they ought to print his picture on the front page because: (1) He contemplated a flight to the moon. (2) He was going to assassinate Hitler. (3) Roosevelt begged him for advice on how to run the country. (4) He had a plan to beat the ponies. (5) He was Judge Crater in disguise. (6) He was the Forgotten Man.

Johnny was amazed to discover that not one of these plans worked. As a matter of fact, some of the editors had the audacity to suggest that he visit a doctor! All of which led him to believe that the world was conspiring to keep him out of the limelight.

One thing we've got to give Johnny credit for. He was adamant. Nothing could swerve him from the insane desire to get his mug in the newspapers. It was one thing to give them all photos but quite another to get them published. He found that out.

So he bided his time. He waited for an opportunity to show how good he was. Whenever he heard a fire engine he ran like the dickens, hoping to find someone he could rescue. That is, without hurting himself.

But nothing ever happened. It began to look as though he would never get into the newspapers when the break came. He walked into his favorite beanery and had barely got himself seated on a stool when he noticed that the counter man seemed unusually quiet. Johnny turned around casually, and stared into something which looked like the Holland Tunnel, but which was in reality a gun.

His first reaction was to pretend he was dead. But the hysteria of publicity suddenly took hold and he jumped up and grappled with one of the two stickups before he quite realized what he was doing. The counterman quickly ducked into the kitchen, and the two intruders grappled with Johnny.

His main idea was to hang onto them until the cops came, but they had other ideas. One of them parted Johnny's hair with the butt of a revolver, and the other hit him with everything but the mortgage on the joint. Still the kid hung on.

Outside, they tried to run for a car with him dragging behind, and the street crowd started to run in all directions. The last thing Johnny Brown remembered was a hot sensation in his shoulder, as though someone had stuck a lighted cigaret there.

He returned to consciousness the following day in a hospital. His shoulder pained [illegible], and his head throbbed and ached, but he was happy. He was a hero, A real live hero.

John Brown asked the nurse about it. She said that the newspapers were full of the story, with pictures on the front page and everything. Johnny smiled condescendingly, and patted her hand.

"Get me those papers, quick."

The young hero looked through every newspaper, and groaned loud and long. Not so much from the pain in the shoulder as the pain on the front page. For each paper used the same photo. It showed the restaurant and the curb. There was a dotted line and a cross.

"The X," read the captions, "marks the spot where the hero fell." . . .

Hawaii Flight On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The epochal flight of the six navy seaplanes from San Francisco to Hawaii is graphically pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Animated diagrams show how they completed the hop of 2,400 miles over the Pacific, arriving in Hawaii in less than 25 hours after the start. The Globe Trotter describes the trip.

The longest ski slide in the country is opened at Winsted, Conn. Alf Eagen, of Salt Lake City, champion leaper, is shown jumping 192 feet to win the meet. There are many thrilling spills.

Civilian and army fliers provide thrills for crowds at Miami in the first big air show of the year. Jimmy Wedell flies at 225 miles an hour and there is amazing parachute jumping and formation flights and drills.

Shanghai's international guardians parade through the streets of the city and give the natives a New Year's Day treat. American and British troops step out, too.

Ice boats engage in thrilling races on Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin, for the Hearst International Cup. The champion Oshkosh Club retains the title and wins the trophy.

Months Ahead Of Cantor

"Roman Scandals," Eddie Cantor's fourth annual screen musical for Samuel Goldwyn, was in preparation exactly nine months from the day that George Kaufman and Robert Sherwood began work on the original idea to the day that William Anthony McGuire turned in his final adaptation of their story.

This year Goldwyn is adopting a different idea.

While "Roman Scandals" was only half through production, he called in Arthur Sheekman and Nat Perrin, former Chicago newspaper men, to begin work on the story for Cantor's next picture. He gave them free reign.

"We want color!" he said. "Any characterization — any period—any background — except backstage!"

That was Goldwyn's only demand.

So while Eddie was going through his "Roman Scandals," Sheekman and Perrin were already working on next year's frolic, perhaps among the genii of magic Bagdad, or with Rip Van Winkle and his merry little men, or with bearded pirates on the Spanish main.

Make this lip test

LOOK at them . . . and your cheeks, too, without make-up. Do they possess the natural glow of health, which comes from a sufficiency of rich, red blood? If they do, make-up is simple . . . if they don't, read on . . . you may find one of the reasons why your skin is not clear.

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of those all-important blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

Though you have no organic disease,* you may have a lowered red-blood-cell count with deficient hemo-glo-bin. When this occurs, and it is very common, you need a tonic. Not just a so-called tonic, but a tonic that has the virtue of stimulating gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion, as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is carried by every drug store in America in two sizes—the larger being more economical.

Consult a physician, of course, if you suspect any organic trouble.

Some interesting facts about the Blood

About 8% of the body weight is blood. It circulates over the entire body something like 200 times daily. On each trip it passes thru the lungs, before entering the heart, to throw off dead air from the tissues and to take up the vitalizing oxygen to convert food material into tissue repair and energy. The only way food can be utilized in the body to give it heat and energy and replace worn out tissue is to combine it with the oxygen released from the blood in the tissues. Hemo-glo-bin of the red-cells carries the oxygen. It is just as important that the hemo-glo-bin be kept up to Nature's standard to insure that the body tissues get their oxygen and can remove the waste matter as it is to eat nourishing food. Constant rebuilding of the red cells is necessary, as their ordinary life is only about 30 days, and extra help is needed when they are below normal. © The S.S.S. Co.

KAISER SCORED BY HIGH NAZI OFFICIAL

By HUDSON HAWLEY
International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—For the second time in two days, the defunct Hohenzollern dynasty came in for a drubbing at the hands of a Nazi spokesman today with the charge that former Kaiser Wilhelm and his monarchist propagandists are "attempting to sabotage the Third Reich."

The speaker was Herr Goerlitzer, a member of the Supreme Staet Council, who refuted the assertion of monarchist leaders that the people of Germany want Wilheld "to return to the Fatherland."

Goerlitzer's statement was prompted by what he termed the "passive resistance" in certain circles to the Nazo government's suppression of Masonic lodges, strongholds of monarchist sentiment.

KAISER RIDICULED

Goerlitzer said:

"It is neither vital to the nation nor to the ex-Kaiser himself that he return to the Fatherland. In particular, it is unnecessary that he should come back to accomplish what Chancellor Hitler has not yet completed.

"The pathetic birthday celebration at Doorn and the spread of monarchist propaganda such as the raising of a 'relief fund' for the ex-Kaiser, which was suggested by Wilhelm himself must be called attempts to sabotage the Third Reich.

"We energetically repudiate the insinuations of monarchist propagandists that Germany would be made happ by the ex-Kaiser's return. We shall treat monarchist propagandists just as we have the propagandists from Moscow, and they are even more dangerous, as they are intellectuals.

OPPOSE INTERFERENCE

"We do not care what form of state is established in the Reich, but we do not want to be disturbed in our work of reconstruction."

Only yesterday, the German press bitterly attacked former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm for resisting cultivation and colonization of the former imperial estates in Silesia on the grounds it would mean loss of 50,000 marks annually in revenue, derived mainly from hunting privileges. The Prince's attitude was termed "brazen reaction" and held to prove that "established feudalism has not died out this far."

GREEN ASSAILS GERMAN LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—In a denunciation of Germany's new labor law, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, asserted last night that it "reflects the amazing extent to which those in charge of the German government have gone in the destruction of independent German trade unions and the return to the primitive relationship between master and servant."

The law, effective May 1, bars strikes and lockouts and abolishes trade unions along with most of the labor legislation passed by the German republic.

Green described it in a statement as the finishing touch in reducing those who belonged to trade unions to a condition of servitude and in the complete destruction of the German trade union movement.

ITALY TO SHAKE UP CABINET

ROME, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A new cabinet shake-up, with Premier Mussolini relinquishing the portfolios of corporations and interior and retaining the ministries of war, navy, air and foreign affairs, was reported imminent today in high official circles.

The report was given support by Mussolini's words to Former Air Minister Italo Balbo when he departed from Rome Saturday to assume the governorship of Lybia. Mussolini said:

"You will not be the only minister to leave his portfolio. Before the month ends there will be other changes."

High circles indicated that Count Costanza Ciano will be the new minister of the interior, and Edmondo Rossoni, long known as the economic genius behind the polishing of many of Il Duce's corporative ideas, will assume the corporations portfolio.

DEVLIN, IRISH LEADER, DIES

BELFAST, Ireland, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Joseph Devlin, 62, veteran Nationalist leader of Ireland, died here early today after a long illness.

Known as the "Irish Demosthenes," Devlin was one of the foremost Irish politicians for more than 30 years. Five thousand children prayed in West Belfast churches for his recovery. He was an idol among children owing to the excursions on which he took thousands of children to the seaside in special trains.

JUNE MARLOWE BACKS MATE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Lending "moral support" to her husband in a $44,000 stock deal suit, June Marlowe, movie actress, went into a Superior Courtroom yesterday and enlivened a trial bogged down with talk about corporation finance.

Her husband, Rodney S. Sprigg, Hollywood financier, had been sued for $44,000 by Henry A. Tolle to cover the value of 30,000 shares of Premier Fireproof Storage Company stock. Sprigg is president of the concern.

Tolle charged that when the Premier company merged with the Lyon Van and Storage Company he lost his share. He blamed Sprigg for the loss. Sprigg denied the allegation.

Accompanied by her sister, Alona Marlowe, also a film actress, Miss Marlowe snuggled up to her husband's side. She said:

"I came to lend my moral support. Rodney is right and I know he's right and that is that."

Girl 13, Released In Child's Slaying

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The slaying of 8-year-old Josephine Waropay, whose body was found at Hastings, N. Y., on December 24, was in the mystery class again today as a children's court waved aside the alleged confession of 13-year-old Mary Kavala.

Justice George W. Smyth committed the Kavala girl to a training school but expressed grave doubts that she was even implicated in the slaying.

'Key Witness' Freed In Rum Conspiracy

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—D. Harvey Sykes, former Chester constable and one of the government's "key" witnesses in the recent trial of the Delaware County liquor conspiracy case was released on probation today after serving half of a six-year sentence for extortion.

Sykes sentences with six other constables, was released by Judge Albert D. MacDade principally because of illness, it was said.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

AN AWARD FOR SAFETY

THE PITTSBURGH  RAILWAYS CO.

Wins National Recognition

IN THE ANTHONY N. BRADY SAFETY COMPETITION

(Honorable Mention Award—the second of two awards to urban electric railways companies in its classification)

It is gratifying to be able to announce that the efforts of this company in promoting safety and accident prevention have received such distinguished recognition. The Brady Memorial Medals are awarded annually under the joint auspices of the American Museum of Safety and the American Transit Association. The current awards were based upon the safety records of 1932 . . . and our companies were in direct competition with those in other cities of over 300,000 population in the United States and Canada.

Winning Honorable Mention in Pittsburgh, denotes a more significant accomplishment than is at first apparent . . . natural transportation difficulties such as street plan and topography, which are admittedly extremely severe in this locality, are not given consideration in making the awards. It is recognition of note-worthy accomplishment by the operators of street-cars and motor coaches, and we cannot be too generous in praise of their skill and care in manipulating these vehicles. It is also further recognition of the efficiency of the men working on, and in charge of the maintenance of this equipment . . . this group previously had won the Transit Journal first award for improvement in maintenance methods in 1932. The fact that safety records have shown a decided reduction in the number of accidents, and are continuing to do so, to the extent of meriting national notice, justifies our confidence in our present type of equipment, and in its operators.

The success of these efforts in accident prevention has been greatly facilitated by the splendid co-operation of the Public Safety Department, the Bureaus of Fire and Police, the Traffic Planning Bureau, and the Better Traffic Committee. Their effective work along safety lines was instrumental in achieving the award of the Safest City Medal for Pittsburgh in 1932. We all appreciate the honor which accompanies the bestowal of the Anthony N. Brady Memorial Award . . . we shall continue in our endeavor to minimize the occurrence of accidents . . . a constant endeavor to make our entire transportation system the safest in the country . . . our contribution toward keeping Pittsburgh the Safest City.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Grid Berths Still Open.
Many Coaching Changes.
Not Easy to Sign Hafey.
Bases Run With Hands.
Yesteryear of Hockey.
Taylor Greatest Player.

Though Dartmouth has answered one of the big football coaching questions of the winter by selecting Earl Blaik as head mentor out of 106 applicants, with Andy Gustafson and Harry Ellinger as assistants, the major eastern picture for next season is far from being complete. Speculation continues as to the probable appointees at Duquesne, Yale, West Virginia and other schools that are to change gridiron chiefs. The naming of Ivan Williamson, a Michigan man, as freshman coach at Yale was accepted by many as a tipoff that Harry Kipke would follow him from the Wolverines to become the big boss at New Haven, but the rumor persists that the Blue will not depart from the graduate system by appointing Kipke until Tad Jones has definitely refused the post to stick to his profitable coal business. The appointment is slated for February 1.

Harry Kipke

Already the coaching turnover in the collegiate field is one of the most extensive on record. Elmer Layden goes from Duquesne to Notre Dame; Hunk Anderson from Notre Dame to North Carolina State; Blaik and Ellinger from Army, and Gustafson from Pitt to Dartmouth, with Bill Kern elevated to Gustafson's former position as first assistant to Jock Sutherland in the Panther camp; Carl Snavely from Bucknell to North Carolina; Joe Boland from St. Thomas College, of St. Paul, to help Layden at Notre Dame; Chet Wynne from Auburn to Kentucky, and Jack Chevigny from St. Edward's to Texas. And those are only a few of the changes. Rarely has football seen so many coaching shifts between seasons.

REDS APPEAR LIKELY TO RETAIN HAFEY

Even if the fabulous figures that Emil Fuchs and Larry MacPhail have been tossing at each other, in connection with a proposed deal for Chick Hafey, were intended mainly for publicity purposes, as many fans suspect, it looks now as though we have heard the last of the big money talk. MacPhail appears definitely to have ended the dickering, whether sincere or phony, by declaring that he considers Hafey the best outfielder in the National League and therefore cannot afford to dispose of him at any price. Not so long ago the new Red operator put a tag of $150,000 on the player. MacPhail's latest statement was made in reply to a final telephone offer by Fuchs, who substituted for his previous bid of $50,000 and two players a flat cash proposal of $75,000.

So, as Manager Bob O'Farrell says, Hafey probably will remain with the Reds. The fun will come when MacPhail attempts to sign him. Chick never was the easiest player in baseball to do business with in the spring, and MacPhail's public assertion that he is the best outfielder in the league and indispensable is right down Hafey's alley as a contract argument.

LOBERT TO TUTOR PHILS IN BASERUNNING

The Phils are going to learn about baserunning from Hans Lobert. The former Beltzhoover citizen was a star in that department in his playing days, and one of his duties as coach of the Quakers will be to school Manager Jimmy Wilson's players in the art. Wilson himself can burn up the basepaths, and he says the secret of his speed is knowing how to round the bags. He explains that he wouldn't stand a chance against Pepper Martin in a straight dash of 100 yards, yet he can beat Martin around the sacks any day in the week. All because Pepper makes his corners too wide to get the full benefit of his speed.

Hans Lobert

Lobert reveals more of the finer points in discussing the specialty. Do you know that bases are run with the hands? Well, you have Lobert's word for it, and few men have been as fast as Hans at carrying the mail around the runways. In a field day against the Pirates in Cincinnati, on October 9, 1910, he smashed all base-circling records up to that time by beating Vince Campbell and other speeders in 13 4-5 seconds. Proper use of the hands is the secret, Lobert says. The expert baserunner, in nearing a bag, has his hands clenched. If he opens them and extends them like sails as he reaches a base he can lean enough to round the bag without going wide and without losing his speed.

EARLY LOCAL HOCKEY DAYS RECALLED

In pronouncing Fred (Cyclone) Taylor the greatest player and fastest skater hockey has known, Lester and Frank Patrick led Lloyd Northard to recall Taylor's playing days in a way to stir Pittsburgh ice memories. To start professional hockey in Michigan's upper peninsula, Dr. J. L. Gibson, a dentist of Houghton, began to bring in players from Canada, and Pittsburgh, where amateur hockey had been played for several years, proceeded to bid against the copper country teams for players.

The outcome was the five-club International League, which included this city, Portage Lake, Calumet, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The salaries ranged from $2,000 to $3,000, big money at the start of the century. A team was of seven players in those days, the seventh man being called the rover, while present right defense was the point and the left defense cover point. Two 30-minute periods were played, and no substitutions were allowed unless a player was injured so severely that he had to be carried off the ice.

ALL-TIME GREATS ON FAMOUS CHAMPIONS

In 1903-04, the great Portage Lake team of immortal memory was beaten only twice, scoring 273 points to its opponents' 48. Veteran fans here will recall the appearance of that famous team at Duquesne Garden. Riley Hern was goaler; Dr. Gibson, point; Hod Stuart, cover point; Bert Stuart, rover; Bruce Stuart, center, and Coonie Shields and Ernie Westcott, wings. In 1905-06 only Hern and Bruce Stuart remained, and Cyclone Taylor, Grindy Forrester, Barney Holden, Joe Hall and Fred Lake rounded out an even greater team that claimed the world championship, though ineligible to play for the Stanley Cup, then in the possession of the amateurs.

Lester Patrick

And the greatest player of the lot, the fastest skater in hockey history, according to the Patricks and other veterans, was Taylor, who played rover. He usually carried the puck around his own net when starting a rush, to give his wings a lead so that he could be with them just before reaching the enemy's defense. It is related Cyclone once declared he could skate backward through the Renfrew Millionaires' team and score a goal. He did it, too, and the goal was scored against Percy LeSueur, one of the greatest of goalies. In seven seasons, Taylor made 148 goals and 97 assists, an average of almost two points per game.

BURTON DOYLE.....VETERAN LOCAL SCHOLASTIC COACH

Coach of 1918 South High Champs First to Introduce Zone Offense and Defense in Pittsburgh

By JULIUS LEVIN

"The Forgotten Man of Basketball."

This would be a fitting sobriquet for Burton Doyle, popular member of the coaching staff at Connelley Trade School and one of the oldest athletic instructors in the city high schools in the point of service.

While no longer a basketball mentor in the local scholastic realm, Doyle confining his activities to teaching gymnastics, swimming and track at Connelley, he has played an important role in the rapid progress made by the popular winter indoor sport hereabouts.

Doyle has the distinction of being the first to introduce the roving zone offense and zone defense in the city high schools, which paved the way for South High School to win the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship in 1918. The W. P. I. A. L. at that time was composed of only three sections, New Brighton and Braddock being the remaining two contenders. Doyle's South team defeated both in playoff games in the Trees Gymnasium, then the home floor of the Pitt Panthers.

RECALLS 1918 TEAM

Many who have followed the South High athletic teams for any length of time regard the 1918 South quintet, composed of Dr. Milton (Mickey) Gross and Francis McDonald, forwards; Al Callahan, center, and Barney Broderick and Jack Lehner, guards, as the best ever to represent a city school on the floor, but Doyle believes that the present-day teams in this section are every bit as good, if not better. Doyle says:

"The South High School team, champion of the W. P. I. A. L. in 1918, was not a 'wonder' team in any sense of the word. South had the good fortune to be the first local school to introduce the zone defense and offense, which had its opposition baffled before it could find a method by which to cope with this style of play. As a result, our team got away to a commanding lead and could not be overtaken. We lost only one game that season, losing to Schenley when we were picked to win with points to spare. Overconfidence on the part of our boys played an important part in that setback. One thing is certain, the South team of 1918 was noted for its teamplay, while our opponents had to depend on individual stars. It was this factor that carried us through to the championship."

IMPROVED CONDITIONS

Looking back over the years, Doyle sees a big improvement in the basketball teams representing the various high schools in Western Pennsylvania. Individual play has given way to teamwork. Doyle attributes this progress to better playing facilities and improved equipment. He recalled:

"When I was coaching at South High School, only six teams were in the league, Schenley, Peabody, Fifth Avenue, Allegheny and Westinghouse being our local rivals. Of the six, only Peabody and Schenley had their own playing courts. South used the Market House, Westinghouse played at the Homewood Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue played in the Y. M. H. A., then located at Jumonville street and Fifth avenue, and at Montefiore Hall, the home of the Coffey Club, and Allegheny, as at present, staged its games in Phipps Gymnasium on the North Side. Shower facilities were scarce and it often was necessary to dress after a game and go back to the school to bathe.

"One of the reasons for the improved game may be traced to the fine officiating and the uniform rules which govern the sport. Cal Bolster and Al Slack were just breaking into the game as officials. It was men of this type who helped to revolutionize the sport. The rules have undergone numerous changes which have tended to speed up basketball."

WINS TRACK TITLE

Doyle's track team at Connelley Trade School won the district trade school championship during the past season. Washington Trade School, Somers and Allegheny Vocational were the other contenders.

Doyle is a graduate of Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, a school which has turned out the majority of the local high school athletic directors. He received his diploma in 1905 and immediately became athletic director at the Des Moines Y. M. C. A., where he remained several years. He left Des Moines to take up recreation work in Philadelphia, which post he held for six years. Doyle became basketball and football mentor at South High in 1917, spending two years there. In 1919, he succeeded E. W. Pennock as athletic director at Peabody High School, Pennock moving to Thiel College. He coached the basketball teams at Peabody until 1921, and from 1922 to 1928 he was instructor in gymnastics, swimming and track.

FORMER TACKLE STAR NAMED FIRST AIDE

By JESS CARVER

The advancement of William Wyoming Kern to the position of first assistant football coach at Pitt has met with more general approval than anything since the boys decided the great war was becoming more or less silly and called same off.

Kern's appointment to the job vacated by Andy Gustafson, the Illinois Swede, was announced yesterday, on the heels of the signing of Gustafson to the post of first assistant to Red Blaik at Dartmouth. Dr. John B. Sutherland (Jock to you) wasted little if any time in promoting Kern, in fact, there is a suspicion sneaking about that Jock had moved the Sphinx of Webster Hall up in rank some time ago. It was known that Gustafson was looking about for another job. He was well satisfied here, of course, but he felt he needed a change. Kern's value to Pitt has been so great that there was no question but that he would be promoted.

WAS FINE PLAYER

Kern was a swell tackle as an under-graduate and is rated by Dr. Sutherland as a A-1 scout and coach. He gets along well with the boys, which is something, and when he's sent out to scout an opponent, he brings back everything, including the way the right tackle parts his hair.

Put Kern and Hank Hangartner on a team and you can wager the lunch money that little will escape their notice. W. (Before the Don) Harrison, Pitt's athletic director, tells me they can even count the house and come within six paid admissions of being correct.

Now that Kern has been named first assistant, the Panthers will be casting about for a backfield coach and it should not come as a surprise if Sutherland brings Gibby Welch back for the job. Sutherland always has liked Welch and holds him in high regard as a smart football head. Gibby is not coaching at present, being busily engaged in piling up a fortune in the stock market, but even so, it is a pretty safe bet that the great Gibby would welcome the opportunity to return to Pitt as a coach.

DUKES' JOB OPEN

Now that the Pitt and Dartmouth situations have been disposed of, it is up to the Dukes to come to a decision concerning the successor to Elmer Layden. Joe Bach remains at the head of the long list of applicants for the job, but so far, Rev. Callahan, the Duquesne chief, has refused to intimate what his final selection will be.

Meanwhile, the college basketballers are putting in some great licks. Right now, the Carnegie Tech Tartans and the Pitt Panthers are busily engaged in preparing for important tests. The Techs and Pitts have like assignments ahead for the week-end, said assignments being to check a pair of 22-game victory streaks; the Tartans to stop Duquesne, Pitt to toss a monkey wrench into the Notre Dame works.

Both jobs are tough ones. If Tech beats the Dukes, its heroes will have to show more speed than they did in the Pitt game Tuesday night and will have to show it for 40 minutes of action. The Skibos looked like they were having an off night against Pitt; at least, they did not exhibit the stuff that other Hannum-coached fives have shown.

BLUFFITES SCARED

It is no reflection on the coaching ability of Max Hannum to state that his lads did not deserve to beat the Panthers on the form they displayed Tuesday. Too many passes were intercepted and the attack was broken up too

CARL HUBBELL IN FOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Following the example of Babe Ruth, Carl Hubbell, the Giants' leading star, has lost no time in signing his 1934 contract. The document, calling for a big raise in the World Series hero's salary, reached the Giants office yesterday, Secretary Jim Tierney announced.

Although the club refused to discuss the figures on the contract, it was freely admitted that they were considerably above last year's $12,000. Unofficial estimates put the figure at $18,000 to $20,000, but Tierney hinted, when the contracts were mailed a few days ago, that it was somewhat lower.

Ace Bailey Leaves For Toronto Home

NEWTON, Mass., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Irvin (Ace) Bailey, Toronto hockey player who was severly injured in a game at Boston December 12, boarded a Toronto-bound train here yesterday after being discharged from the Boston City Hospital. He was accompanied by his wife, their four-year-old daughter and Mrs. Bailey's mother.

Grimes Headed For Job With Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Snarling, stubble-bearded old Burleigh Grimes, one of the last of the spitballers, today appeared in line for a combination pitching and coaching job with the St. Louis Cardinals, who gave him his unconditional release several months ago.

Grove City Prexy Raps Sport System

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Subsidization of athletes, desires to boast a winning team, and lack of faculty control over athletics were criticized by President Weir Carlyle Ketler, president of Grove City College, Grove City, Pa., in a paper he read before the Presbyterian College Union here yesterday.

He advocated participation by a greater number of students in intramural sports, and said no student who received remuneration for work or services rendered from an educational institution should be allowed to represent the institution in any intercollegiate contest to which admission was charged.

YAROSZ STEPS UP DRILLS

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tony Morgano vs. Bobby Dean, 8 rounds, and Jackie Willis vs. Bobby Deebter, Wally Sears vs. Pat Patterson, Willie Reddish vs. Giant James J. Taylor and Billy Cross vs. Pete Panatelo, 6 rounds each, Philadelphia.

For the first 15-round bout of his career, Ted Yarosz is training over graduated distances at his workout headquarters in the Beaver Valley. He is gradually stepping up his drill periods and has reached the point where he is doing the equivalent of 10 rounds at a single session. This is not all boxing, but includes calisthenics and other training stunts.

Two weeks from tomorrow night, Yarosz meets Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, over the marathon route in Motor Square Garden, and he wants to be accustomed to the distance, so he will be able to enter the ring confident he will not tire under the pace.

Tickets for the show have been received and reservations will be filled beginning today. They may be picked up at headquarters, Room 152 Seventh Avenue Hotel, the Garden or at any of the other agencies.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Johnny Chiodo, Johnstown, featherweight, will be operated on in Mercy Hospital this week-end for a rupture.

Joey Adams, another featherweight from Johnstown, who has knocked out Charley Burns, Johnny Warner and Petey Jahn, is making his home here now under the management of Jack De Neri and Jimmy Esposito and will box Jimmy Ferry, of Clairton, who will turn pro, in the second bout on the Al Rossi-Billy Holt card in McKeesport next Monday night.

Since moving his fighting headquarters to Elyria, O., Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight, has knocked out Frankie Fabiano and beaten Mike Lucas and Charley De Caro and is back in his old winning form.

DUKES' BOXING TEAM LOSES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—Wash-Jeff's varsity boxing team today is celebrating its first victory in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference. The triumph was recorded last night in the initial match of the year against Duquesne University, the Prexies winning, 4 to 3.

In the best bout of the night, Freddie Moore, captain of the Duquesne team, was awarded the decision over Shaw, of Wash-Jeff, a decision which was booed by the crowd. Shaw carried the fight to the Conference 145-pound champion and appeared to have the edge. The summary:

165 pounds—Rittersbaugh, W. & J., defeated Nee, Duquesne.

WILLIGS GET SANCTION

The Willigs basketball team, of McKeesport, has been granted a sanction by the A. A. U. to play Charley Hyatt's Tulsa Oilers team in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, February 1, and the ticket sale will get under way tomorrow, it was announced today.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWARD

Paul Journee, veteran French heavyweight, has invited the author to Arcachon, an obscure village in southwestern France, to look over a certain young giant—a physical "phenomenon" utterly untutored in boxing . . . Mr. See has been nurturing a weird champion-making idea for many years . . .

By LEON SEE

CHAPTER THREE

My first meeting with Carnera—in July, 1928—remains very distinct in my memory. It is worth describing.

Journee had come to look for me at the station a t 8 o'clock in the morning. I had traveled all night. He had made an appointment with Carnera at the physical culture hall, where Journee was in charge. The July heat was already great, and, after having visited Journee's gym, I waited in the street, in front of the door, for the arrival of the giant. Soon I saw him approaching, a hundred meters away.

Primo Carnera

My first impression of Primo is unforgettable: Dressed in real rags — trousers that came a little below the knees — a very tight shirt, with ripped sleeves — enormous feet (devoid of socks) had made his sandals, burst at the rope sole, much too small for him and they let his huge toes emerge like those of a circus clown. An eight days' beard completed an ensemble both ridiculous and pitiful. He lumbered along heavily, head sunk on his shoulders, dragging his feet, in a clumsy and wavering gait. Now the foot-path which he trod was covered with thick dust, and, at each step he took, his torn and worn-out sandals did the duty of a pair of bellows, throwing out on each side of his formidable feet funny little streams of dust.

I had all the trouble in the world not to burst into laughter.

AWKWARD AT FIRST

"Is that your future champion?" I asked Journee, "and is it to see this village mastodon that you have made me come all the way from London to Arcachon?"

"Well," replied Journee, "he is not very elegant, but when you have seen him stripped he will interest you."

"How do you think I can ever make a boxer out of such an elephant?" I queried. "Just look at his gait, and his feet, and his hands. How do you expect him to move in a ring?"

Meanwhile Carnera reached us and, after a brief introduction, we entered the gymnasium. Behind a screen he was stripping . . .

My opinion had been formed: I would take the first train to London. I remember that, while I was looking wearily at the picture of a fighter hanging on the wall, Journee said to me:

"There you are, Mr. See, he is ready!"

I turned around and I must confess that I was surprised. Carnera evidently was a much finer man nude than attired in the ridiculous rags which comprised his only wardrobe then. His muscular stature, still rudimentary, nevertheless gave signs of exceptional strength. His arms were powerful, his chest broad, his neck revealed that he had been wrestling much, but his legs were frightful, covered with varicose veins and terminated by two tremendous feet—improbable feet, feet which didn't seem human.

PRIMO ASKS CHANCE

No, indeed, I did not have—for an instant that day—the intuition that Carnera was the man of the famous Idea; a future world champion. He seemed to me made for anything else but boxing: a wrestler, a weight-lifter, a market-porter, a stevedore.

"No, decidedly," I said to Journee, "it would indeed take too long a time to transform this mastodon into a boxer. He is muscle-bound, his feet are too awkward, he is slow, his jaw seems to me frail, to say nothing of the varicose veins which it would be necessary to get out of the way."

"I beg of you, Monsieur," he said to me, "let me make an attempt. I am sure that you will be pleased with me. I am courageous; I will learn, and it seems to me that if I could eat enough to satisfy my hunger I ought to become of tremendous strength." . . .

'ENOUGH TO EAT'

It was this phrase which decided me:

I had a quick picture of the sufferings endured by this colossus; of problematical meals, of nights passed in misery, sometimes even under the cold stars. To breakfast on a scrap of dry bread, to sleep too often without having had supper, to find oneself without lodging, without work, without hope, all this surely deserved a charitable thought.

I had at the time a dozen boxers in training at Saint-Germain-en-Laye, near Paris . . . one more, I thought—even if he east like four—would not be a very serious matter.

This phrase kept ringing in my ears:

"If I could eat enough to satisfy my hunger." . . .

My decision was suddenly made: After all, I said to myself, even if he should be worth nothing in boxing, such a phenomenon would be a curiosity for the public. He probably will be knocked down in his first fight, but, by leading him slowly, by teaching him to box if that be possible—well, perhaps by reason of his great height and huge weight he will be able to make his living in the ring. In any case one thing is sure: He will eat enough to satisfy his hunger.

"Ah well," I replied, "I'll take you on."

But it was impossible to make the journey in the state in which he was. It was indispensable to have some clothes made to measure, to have manufactured for him a few shirts to fit his tremendous horse-like neck and shoulders, to have hand-knit some socks for his unbelievable feet, to have "constructed" for him a pair of shoes such as no shoemaker had ever seen.

"Buy for him then whatever he needs," I told Journee, "have everything made to his size. Indeed, the only thing you will find in the market which will fit him may be a collar button! When he is presentable, put him on the train, telegraph me, and I will meet him at the station in Paris." . . .

We separated on this promise and I took the express that same night.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

I swear that, important affairs having absorbed me during the following days, I had almost forgotten Paul Journee and his fantastic phenomenon when, one beautiful day, I received the promised telegram:

Nine o'clock found me, therefore, at the Quai d'Orsay. It could hardly be difficult to recognize my giant in the stream of passengers.

That morning I agree that I had a very pleasant surprise. Towering above the crowd by a head, dressed in a well-cut suit, and with a brand new straw hat and necktie, Carnera was literally metamorphosed.

Feeling well-dressed for the first time in his life (elegant in fact), Primo had acquired a self-assurance, perfectly excusable, which made him appear totally different than before. People turned around when he passed; I heard many say, "Look at that colossus!" His gait seemed easier. He looked to me lighter, quicker, even taller.

I began to have a vague intuition that, after all, he probably would turn out to be something, that he would not be as ridiculous as I had thought. But that day I did not understand yet that I had, at last, discovered the man of the idea. The revelation came to me 15 days later, while Carnera was stripping in one of the dressing rooms an hour before his first bout, under circumstances that I will soon reveal.

Varicose Veins May Shorten Career

Carnera's varicose veins, that disfigured his legs and menaced the length of his ring career, have been cured for a time at least. Those leg varicosities are believed to be hereditary in this case. At least, Primo's beloved mother suffers much from the same ailment. In treating my Big Boy's swollen veins, I had them punctured many times, so that about 80 per cent of that trouble was cured. At the beginning of his ring career they looked so dreadful that, whenever possible, we kept his legs covered. Several of the veins threatened to burst, in which event Primo would have been crippled, permanently perhaps. However, skilled surgery has diminished most of that ailment and whatever remains of those distended veins do not present real danger any longer, though they may have the effect of slowing him up before his time.

34 TEAMS SET FOR PLAY AT GOLF CLUB

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Thirty-four teams await the initiation of competition in the fourth annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation indoor men's doubles tennis tournament on the two covered clay courts of the P. G. C. at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Preliminary round play is slated for today and tomorrow, with quarter-final, semi-final, and final matches claiming attention Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. Dave and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars and Western Pennsylvania champions, head a seeded list of eight pairs, according to announcement of Chairman Charles Lockhart. Immediately to the rear of the Winged Headers comes the veteran combine of Dr. Billy McEllroy and G. C. Burgwin, Jr., runners-up to Dave and Billy O'Loughlin for honors of the 1933 Golf Club classic. Frank Broida and Irvin Goodwin, Harvard-Pitt array and former Allegheny County premiers, rate third, with the youthful Shannopinders, Bob Lampus and Bud Leyda, follownig at fourth.

George Henderson and Russ Unger, an extremely hard-hitting Stanton Heights coalition, are fifth, while the crack junior duo, Bob Madden and Ralph Bald, ease in at sixth, and a newly aligned brace of singles luminaries, Frank McClintock of University Club and Eddie Alcorn of Mount Lebanon, will be found at number seven. Jack Redmond and the writer round out the octet.

TODAY

4 p. m.—Robert McClintic and James Bovard vs. William Frew and Harry J. Miller; H. H. McClintic, Jr., and T. L. Orr vs. Crosby Leyda and Robert T. Lampus.

5 p. m.—L. N. Murray and Ray Harrison vs. F. B. Nimick and T. Howe Nimick; George S. Ebbert and John W. Lawrence vs. Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman.

7 p. m.—Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and William H. Scott vs. T. A. Robinson and Stanley Brown; G. D. Henderson and W. R. Unger vs. Stan McCaskey and Karl G. Wolfe.

8 p. m.—Don C. Snyder and John R. Brown vs. P. H. Orr and George Love; W. S. Moorhead and G. G. Coolidge vs. Frank S. McClintock and Edgar Alcorn.

9 p. m.—George C. Burgwin, Jr., and Dr. William S. McElroy vs. Leonard W. Reed and Dr. C. H. Cochran; Howard J. Burgwin and Neal O. Rumsey vs. Alfred Hamilton and W. C. Robinson, Jr.

10 p. m.—Ralph Bald and Robert Madden vs. William G. Costin, Jr., and Nat H. Ganger; H. M. Rinehart and Austin Famariss vs Jack Redmond and Paul G. Sullivan.

TOMORROW

5 p. m.—E. C. B. Gould and Thurston Wright vs. winner of Burgwin and McElroy-Reed and Costin match; J. D. Mattern and F. R. Stoner vs. V. K. Glidden and C. E. Hughes.

6 p. m.—J. D. Beatty and W. R. Spindler vs. King Moore and Robert C. Schmertz; Jack D. Evans and E. A. Knoche vs. winners of McClintic and Orr-Leyda and Lampus match.

SOCCER TEAMS INCONSISTENT

By TOM BIRKS

As the soccer season advances, local fans are coming to the conclusion that no aggregation in the district is going to come up to the Curry Club which made such a good showing in the national open cup, the West Penn championship and Keystone League last year.

At the conclusion of the Curry-Morgan game Sunday it was apparent that Curry was far from being the club it was a year ago. It appears to be just a matter of how long Buff Donnelli will continue to get goals to keep Curry in the running.

All the teams are playing in and out soccer. Moon Run looked like a great club, but Gallatin came along and put Van Jura and his team out of the running. Then to top off that form, Gallatin went to Avella last Sunday and never had a chance to beat a club composed of players little known in the district.

Heidelberg, the W. W. Riehls, of Castle Shannon, and Morgan are in the same boat, although Morgan seems to be the more consistent. Morgan on Sunday looked dangerous when Felix Mitchell had the ball. In fact, Mitchell rapidly is getting into Buff Donnelli's class. It is his goal scoring that is keeping Morgan in the limelight.

Practically all of the teams in this district have one star on the team, virtually carrying all of the burden of the club. Buff Donnelli was the whole Curry attack on Sunday; Wineski looked good at times, but the Curry boy, just back from Cleveland, has a trick knee, and he left the game early.

Two games will be played in the Keystone League, the Shannon Riehls traveling to Cecil and Gallatin playing at Heidelberg.

There will be a meeting of the Keystone League at Rosie's in Bridgeville, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

All managers of teams in the Mon-Yough League are requested to attend an important meeting of the circuit at Turner Hall, Monessen, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Waynesburg Wins Over Grove Citians

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Waynesburg avenged a football defeat by Grove City last fall by tumbling the Grovers, 48 to 37, in a speedy basketball duel last night.

TOMORROW: HIS NAME WAS MUDD

YAROSZ RATED BEST MIDDLE

By DAVID J. WALSH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Having, it seems, made the ingenuous discovery that "there are fewer outstanding boxers than ever before," the Ring, national boxing publication, comes out with its annual rankings today without developing anything of further importance, except for one thing. This showed that, as far as "the 104 voting correspondents from all over the world" were concerned, Primo Carnera is the heavyweight champion by an act of providence—and one vote!

Nearly half of the committee, in other words, voted for Baer as the ranking heavyweight of 1933 and America's gift to womanhood was further distinguished by being named as the man who had contributed most to the success of 1933 boxing with his knockout of Schmeling.

Others mentioned with Baer for especial recognition were Tommy Loughran (as the year's "comeback king"); Jimmy McLarnin (as the hardest hitter, pound for pound of any man in boxing); Jack Dempsey (for having conceived the Baer-Schmeling match which "created a new interest in boxing"); and Teddy Yarosz, of Pittsburgh, (as the "outstanding middleweight in America.") This sounds like a refined rebuke to New York and the N. B. A., which maintain that Vince Dundee and Gorilla Jones, respectively, are the best middleweights in the world.

Keystone Club Host To Scribes, A. A. U.

The boxing committee of the Keystone Athletic Club was host to local sports writers and officers of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. at a banquet held last night in the Keystone Athletic Club when plans for the annual Allegheny Mountain Association boxing championships, to be held next month, were announced.

Stanley Wachter, chairman of the boxing committee, was toastmaster. William S. Haddock, John T. Taylor and Henry J. Blum represented the Allegheny Mountain Association.

Pitt to Name Captain Tonight

The University of Pittsburgh football players and members of the Athletic Council will be guests at a dinner to be given at the P. A. A. at 6:30 o'clock this evening by Chancellor John G. Bowman, at which Coach Jock Sutherland will name his captain for next fall, Athletic Director W. Don Harrison will award letters and it is expected an important announcement will be made regarding the 1935 Pitt football schedule.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Lefty Grimm admits he is "on the spot" in Chicago, and he's likely to be taken for a ride if his Cubs fail to cop the flag in Gangland . . . The Bruins stack up as the strongest array in the circuit to this writer . . . Even Carl Hubbell will not try to laugh off an outfield flashing Klein, Cuyler, Babe Herman, Stevie and Stainbach, the latter being a Coast sensation . . . Klein, Cuyler and the erstwhile Brooklyn Bambino hitting up to their capabilities would give Grimm a .350 or better batting trio in the pasture . . . As the lamented Bert Williams might say, these lads can hit fluently.

Powerhouse Klein appears to be in for another big year, what with another trick fence and the return of the Akronized ball . . . Chuck, however, may have to change his batting sights if he is to spout homers regularly in his new pasture . . . The garden wall at Wrigley Field is some 30 or 40 feet deeper than the Quakertown fence, but the barrier is a low thing as compared with the walls of the Philly cracker-box. A low trajectory will win the day in Chi, whereas high lofts were pay balls in Klein's old stamping grounds.

Grimm finds himself in the position occupied by George Gibson one year ago, and few pilots are comfortable when picked to lead the pack . . . Bill Terry was singing the blues last March as his New York writers persistently picked his Giants for sixth or worse . . . "You're a lucky stiff and don't know it," was Gibby's contribution to Terry as he wept. And the tendency of the Cubs to steal the early show from the Giants is likely to be another break for Memphis Bill, who surely must believe in Santa Claus since he fell into the driver's seat . . .

Grimm, it might be added, is among those who have not quit on Babe Herman, regardless of the queer antics of the Leaping Lena outfielder . . . During the Chicago meetings, Lefty told me he was counting on Babe for some big didoes.

Said Chas:

Bill Kern, from the hard coal fields, is one of the real sportsmen of our village and his promotion in the Panther football family is a source of deep satisfaction to all sports lovers . . . Kern has many of the characteristics of a successful baseball manager. . . He probably picked these up as he played around the same diamonds that sent out the O'Neills, the Harrises, the Walshes, the Jenningses, the Comoroskies and a score of other baseball greats.

City Champion McCook Reed led his Keystone A. C. No. 1 squad to 4-1 triumph over the previously unbeaten P. A. A. crew in Class A competition of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association Inter-Club loop on the Keystone courts yesterday afternoon. The victory slashed the Winged Headers' erstwhile substantial first place margin from five matches to a precarious two. The fray was moved ahead from next Saturday in order to avoid conflict with the inter-city racquet conflicts slated to involve Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Cleveland at the K. A. C. the coming week-end.

Switch in the interurban program calls for Buffalo to engage Cleveland at 11 a. m. on Saturday with the Cleveland-Pittsburgh affair moving back to 3:30 p. m. The Sunday feature stacks the Steel City against Buffalo at 3 o'clock.

Yesterday's summary:

W. McCook Reed, K. A. C., defeated Dr. David L. O'Loughlin, P. A. A., 15-4, 17-15, 15-9; Ed Seifert, K. A. C., defeated Frank S. McClintock, P. A. A., 18-17, 8-15, 15-16, 15-5, 15-6; Charles A. quickly for the good of the Skibo cause. Just one of those things.

The Dukes received a real scare in the tussle with Geneva and can ill afford to let the same thing occur in the first half against Tech as they did in the tussle with the Covenanters. It isn't safe these days to let any ball club get a 10 or 11-point lead on you, and well the Dukes know it. If they don't, Coach Chick Davies does.

Fireworks then are indicated this week-end among the local basketballers.

St. Vincent Five Wins Over Indiana

LATROBE, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Led by Carney and Bodner, who scored 12 and 10 points respectively, St. Vincent's basket shooters quelled Indiana Teachers, 33 to 26, last night.

The teams were deadlocked at 16 all after a whirlwind first half. Turned back by the Teachers' stubborn defense, the Bearcats finally forged ahead late in the final half with four field goals in rapid order.

LOCAL GOLFER GAINS MIAMI SEMI-FINALS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18.—Walter M. Gorham, Jr., of Pittsburgh, is participating in the semi-final round of the mid-winter amateur golf championship over the Miami Country Club today. He is opposing Leroy W. Putnal, of Miami, for the right to enter the finals in the fourth division.

Gorham defeated Charles Smalley, of Chicago, yesterday, 1 up. Celeste A. Durand, of Garden City, N. Y., was the victim of an upset when he bowed to Curtis Bryan, of Jacksonville, in the title division, 1 up. Tommy Goodwin, 20-year-old Monroe, N. Y., star, winner of the event last year, came through with a victory over Ed Romfh, Jr., son of the former mayor of Miami, 3 and 2.

NICHOLSON LOSES

BURTON DOYLE FORGOTTEN

Ralston High School in 1929. He remained there until the fall of 1930, when he became a member of the Connelley Trade School athletic staff.

He is one of the deans of the local coaching profession. Doyle, with Chester Briggs, of Fifth Avenue; O. H. Burton, of Westinghouse, and Walter Gross, of Schenley, a brother of Milton, who starred in the 1918 South quintet, are the "Four Horsemen" of the City League's fine array of coaches.

No longer in the limelight, Doyle, nevertheless, is a prime favorite with the youngsters at Connelley Trade School. Always cheerful and ready to give a boy a helping hand, Doyle has won for himself the friendship of all students at Connelley. He will be in a peculiar situation tomorrow when South High School, his first love, and Connelley meet on the basketball floor. The two teams are waging a duel for the Section I championship and their meeting tomorrow will clear up the situation considerably. It would not be surprising to see Doyle rooting for both teams. Asked what he thought of the game, Doyle said diplomatically:

"May the better team win."

Sport Vignettes

Don't think Pitt won't miss Andy Gustafson, the backfield coach, who leaves to assist Earl Blaik, the new head coach at Dartmouth next fall . . . And that the Army won't miss Blaik, who was the undercover man behind the success of the Cadets in recent seasons . . . And that Bucknell won't miss Carl Snavely, who goes to North Carolina after seven years at Lewisburg . . . Interesting coaching changes, all of these . . . Gustafson was one of the best assistant coaches Pitt ever had, and was due to step out sooner or later, the surprising fact being that he didn't grab himself off a head coaching job.

Zane Grey, the author and deep-sea fisherman, once played with the Wheeling club for Ed Barrow, now business manager of the New York Yankees . . . He was an outfielder . . . W. Don Harrison, Pitt athletic director, and Elmer Layden, Duquesne ditto, were seen together yesterday . . . Must have been Pitt vs. Notre Dame business, with Elmer leaving soon to take up his duties at South Bend.

Bill Stewart, of Boston, who has just been named an umpire in the National League, also is the National Hockey League referee and is famed as the discoverer of Mickey Cochrane, the new manager of the Detroit Tigers . . . He is a former minor league player and manager . . . Two great old guys in sports: Babe Ruth and Bill Tilden—match them if you can.—HARRY KECK.

DOLLAR SPURT SLOWS STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Recently advancing financial markets hesitated today as the dollar spurted in terms of the British pound sterling.

With the pound falling more than 7 cents to below $4.97 for the first time since early last November, many bullish speculators stood aside to consider whether a currency conflict was in the making or capital repatriation was responsible. Stocks maintained a steady to firm trend, but the trading volume dwindled considerably. Grains, cotton and some other commodities were a bit easier at one time. Copper, however, was pushed up ¼ of a cent a pound. Bonds pointed moderately higher.

Washington's monetary plans and the gyrations of the dollar held the center of Wall Street discussion. In some quarters the thought was expressed that the two billion dollar exchange stabilization fund, while seemingly huge, might not be sufficient to control international dollar rates if leading European countries decide not to co-operate.

Foreign commentators pointed out that the fund, which will be used not only to keep the dollar within bounds but also to support government securities, corresponds closely to estimated American balances abroad. Foreign exchange dealers said that repatriation of American capital had already started, but that the return thus far had been comparatively slow.

Although various bankers were inclined to ascribe the sharp early advance of the dollar in terms of sterling to European buying of American stocks and bonds, brokerage houses that usually handle most of the transactions from London and the continent reported that purchases had tapered off during the past few days. In some circles the break in sterling was attributed to the covering of short dollar commitments on the belief that the British cabinet had reached a decision regarding the attitude which would be taken toward the new American policy.

There were fresh rumors in the "Street" of an understanding already having been reached between London and Washington as to pound-dollar prices. Gossip had it that lengthy telephone conversations have been under way between officials of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Bank of England. Another rumor was that it had been agreed, in order to avoid what might result in a disastrous currency war, that the dollar would be held temporarily within a range of 4.60 to $4.80 to the pound.

Business and industrial news was still bright. The more optimistic stel makers were predicting a production rate of more than 50 per cent of capacity by the end of the current quarter. Trade observers reported the upswing in building, which began in the late summer, showed no signs of a letdown in December despite the fact that the month normally witnesses a decline in contract lettings.

BRITISH POUND UNDER $5

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—With the proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund not yet created, and the RFC having withdrawn from the foreign gold market, the dollar developed pronounced strength against the British pound sterling today.

The pound dipped under the $5 level for the first time in months, and was quoted well under the level indicated by the London and Washington gold prices. After an early rise in the dollar in London, sterling in New York declined more than 8 cents, getting under $4.96.

Rumors that British authorities might be acting to depress the pound, possibly indicating the beginning of a currency war, were discredited in foreign exchange circles.

It was pointed out that such action, if aggressively conducted, would require purchases of dollars by the British equilization fund, but the British fund since the dollar was removed from the gold standard has confined its operations entirely to currencies readily convertible into gold, principally the French franc. The pound sterling declined a little in terms of the French franc today, but later recovered.

With the normal American balance of payments favorable, and a return flow of fugitive capital started by the moves toward stabilization, foreign exchange experts said the dollar could be expected to rise until the proposed American stabilization fund begins to operate through selling dollars to buy gold or bills of exchange abroad.

Electric Auto-Lite Acquires Motometer

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Directors of the Electric Auto-Lite Company have decided to issue approximately 300,000 shares of common stock to be used to acquire the assets and business of the Motometer and Equipment Company, on the basis of one share of Auto-Lite for two and one-half shares of Motometer. The combined company will be called the Autolite Motometer Company.

Bank of England.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows these changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 7,348,000; circulation decreased 7,358,000; bullion decreased 10,000; other securities decreased 249,000; public deposits increased 97,000; other deposits decreased 2,426,000; notes reserve increased 7,358,000; government securities decreased 9,406,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 50.06 per cent, compared with 45.17 last week.

Print Press Currency Unlikely

By B. C. FORBES

PROBABILITIES:

President Roosevelt's currency program will be indorsed by Congress.

"Profit" (2-2-3 billions) on gold in banks will go to the government without much ado — this "profit" does not belong to the Federal Reserve banks as such, but to the public doing business with banks; therefore, it is entirely fitting that the public should get the benefit, as the President proposes.

Mr. Forbes

It will take considerable ingenuity to keep the international value of the dollar, though it contains only 60 cents' worth of gold, down to 60 cents. It would be natural for the dollar to command a premium, because of the position America occupies in the world, in wealth, in foreign trade, in credit.

Money printing presses are unlikely to be set in motion.

A vast amount of recently expatriated American wealth, as well as considerable foreign-owned wealth, is likely to flow into this country seeking safety and also employment.

The general price level here may not be immediately raised by the 50 to 60 cents dollar plan, but is more likely to be influenced by trade improvement, gradually.

Similarly, the wage trend will logically be governed more by demand for labor than by any modest change in the number of grains of gold in the dollar.

Both Britain and France are likely to find it advantageous to co-operate as early as feasible with President Roosevelt in effecting genuine currency stabilization, especially in view of this country's overwhelming accumulation of gold, the debts owed it and its place in world trade. An international knockdown, drag-out currency battle is improbable.

The reception accorded the President's currency plan inspires hope that the effect upon sentiment and activity will not prove evanescent, but lasting.

THE MOST FORCEFUL expression yet voiced of the conservative banker's attitude was given yesterday by President Percy H. Johnston of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, at the annual meeting of stockholders in New York. "Nothing short of revolutionary," is how he characterizes events of the last year. He specifies:

1—A complete collapse of the banking system.

2—A decline of approximately 40 per cent in the international value of the dollar.

3—Our abandonment of the gold standard and the repudiation of contracts expressed in terms of gold.

7—Adoption by the government of a plan to raise artificially the prices of commodities by deliberately depreciating the currency.

8—An indicated budget deficit of enormous proportions and a public debt without precedent or parallel in peace time.

THIS BANKER views our mounting governmental debt "with apprehension." He comments:

"The founders of our nation followed the priniple that the people should support the government and not the government the people. We should return to the principles of our forefathers and pull ourselves out of our difficulties by hard work, economy, courage and self-reliance. We must abandon the fallacy that a small percentage of the population can supply the money to operate the government."

After strongly urging every stockholder "to plead with his congressmen and senators" that the permanent guarantee of deposits law, due to take effect of July 1, be modified and assessments be limited, he adds:

"Had this law been in effect during the past five years, more than one-half of this company's capital funds would have been dissipated to pay the losses of other banks."

Metropolitan bankers have been most outspoken in warning that they are totally opposed to this law. Developments are awaited with interest.

MERCHANTS report brisk business this month.

MORE PEOPLE also are buying stocks and bonds.

SCOUT OFFICIAL PROMOTED

J. B. Fairman, associate scout executive of Allegheny County Council, West, Boy Scouts of America, has been named scout executive of the Union Council, Elizabeth, N. J., it was announced today. He will leave to assume his new duties February 15.

Mr. Fairman

Mr. Fairman was born in Pittsburgh in 1891, and in 1916 organized Troop 87, West End, which he headed eight years. He was named to his present position in 1930. During the last year he has been in charge of Unit 3, comprising Chartiers Valley, Sto-Rox, South Hills and the Silver Tip district.

Chicago Police Get Bullet Proof Vests

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—When engaged in tracking down gunmen and criminals in the future Chicago's police will be equipped with bullet proof vests costing $50 apiece, Commissioner of Police James P. Allman announced today.

With this move the police department hopes to materially decrease police casualties, which rose to 15 last year, in engagements with law violators.

TOLL OF QUAKE NOW 2,000

International News Service.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 18.—Despite revelations of great suffering in the wake of this week's earthquake shocks in northern India, official estimates of the death toll today were placed well below the unofficial figures previously announced.

The Bihar province government's estimate was that the total number of dead would not exceed 2,000.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of my dear brother, John Townsend, passed away January 18, 1933.

God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb;
He gently closed his weary eyes
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Sadly missed by his wife, brother and sister.

FOURTH DEGREE

By K. S. DAIGER

CHAPTER XIII.

While the police conducted a will-o'-the-wisp chase for a mythical red sedan driven by two Negroes, Judson went quietly to work and set his skillful organization to investigating the lady's affairs, particularly those of an amorous nature. The result was a lifetime conviction of Mrs. Tanyhill and her lover.

Then, too, there was the little matter of the Goldstein holdup robbery involving $140,000 worth of diamonds. The police had worked on this case for months and had gotten nowhere. Judson, called in by the ruined jewelry salesman, after all else had failed, promptly dived somewhere into the dark currents of the underworld—and emerged with Barney Keller in one hand and the diamonds in the other. That was because Judson had known exactly where to look.

But cases such as these—and I could go on multiplying them indefinitely—had caused the police to detest the man. His manner was so gloating, so sneering. He enjoyed thumbing his nose at the Department and his pleasure when he could beat them out was that of a malicious small boy.

Just now, watching his lips curl back in their cruel unscrupulous smile, I had no doubt but that he was having the time of his life in flashing that court order under Anderson's eyes.

"They've been in there talking for half an hour," volunteered MacNalley blackly, as if to insinuate that no possible good could ever come from a conversation with Kirk Judson.

At last the interview was over. Judson pocketed his document, and Anderson turned and started for the hall. Judson looked pleased, but Anderson was smiling pleasantly.

Become Friendly

He came forward as he caught sight of me.

"We've signed a truce, Judson and I," he said, laying his arm on the other's shoulder in a friendly manner. "Judson assures me that all this talk of him running counter to the department is so much poppycock, and we've agreed to let bygones be bygones."

Anderson, in view of the court order, had no other course but this open to him. (Trust him to do it as gracefully as possible, however!)

"I'm glad of it, Kirk," I said heartily, turning to the man. "I'm working with Inspector Anderson, of course. You treat us squarely and I'll see that you don't suffer for publicity." And I looked him squarely in the eye.

"Thanks," answered the detective, rubbing his hands together in a way that was both cringing and gleeful at the same time. "I'm only too willing to co-operate with the Force. Let them tell me all they know and I'll tell them all I can find out and let them take the credit for the arrest. Between us we ought to go a long way."

"We certainly should," I responded warmly. Then I turned to Anderson. "Judson is really invaluable," I said, "especially if the underworld is mixed up in this. If the theft of the Czarina's pearl was the motive for this robbery, Judson will discover it sooner than anyone else."

"Let's go down in the garden," suggested Anderson, for the day was balmy and warm, one of those halcyon October days that so often presage a storm.

We grouped ourselves on a couple of hickory benches under the oak trees. Then Anderson took from his pocket a little tissue-paper packet containing the cigaret butts, ashes, and matches which he had picked up in the cellar.

Interested in Matches

"Here you are, Judson," he said evenly. "Here's all our clues up to date. I'm going to lay all our cards on the table. We found these in the cellar of the house—19 of 'em in a little pile not far from the furnace. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, claims that they were not there on the day of the murder. She does not smoke herself and Mrs. Paige did so very seldom and then not a brand like these. You will see that all of these are scented and that some of them have traces of lipstick. It seems clear to me that a man and a woman spent some time in the basement, and smoked while they waited. I have a man out now tracing them and I think that we shall be able to find out something within the next few hours. They seem to me to be a Russian brand."

Judson took off his hat and whistled with surprise. He scrutinized them with great care.

"I'm more interested in the matches," he said finally. There were two kinds of matches, several that come in ordinary penny-boxes and one from a larger box of the non-safety variety that is commonly used in kitchens.

"Now that," said Anderson, "is all we really have to work on. I've gotten some fingerprints but only those of members of the family. Randolph Paige tells a weak kind of story. You know more about that than I do."

"Yes, what about Paige?" asked Judson in a businesslike way. "He's my client, you know."

"We have no real evidence against him," replied Anderson frankly. "His story doesn't ring true, but I'm assuming that there's a woman mixed up in it and that he's afraid to be truthful. However, Judson, you might tell him that the police are certain to uncover his trip to Washington in a short time. His best plan is to be honest. How does it happen that he engaged your firm?"

"Darned if I know," answered Judson. "As it happened, I was dying to work on this very case and while I was wondering how in the world I could manage it, the phone rang and there was Ranny Paige himself asking me to come up here to the house. I came at once—early yesterday morning."

"That was before it was discovered that Mrs. Paige had been murdered. Why did he call you in?"

"Bless me!" said Judson. "He didn't intimate to me that she had been murdered. Just said he wanted the matter investigated."

"Did he intimate that he suspected foul play?"

"Not at all. But he's perfectly innocent, as a matter of fact."

Judson's Theory

"But it wasn't even stolen," I interrupted.

"No, it wasn't," replied Judson, and now he dropped his cocky manner and became all the serious detective. "But whoever came here intended to steal it. It was no part of the game to murder Mrs. Paige, but to gag her and to make a search for the jewel. When the thief saw that he had killed her, he became terrified and strung her up to the chandelier with the hope that it would appear a suicide."

"But he didn't take pearl?" I argued.

"Certainly not. If the pearl had been missing, the police would have known at once that a murder had been committed. The man was scared off. It's one thing to steal a jewel and risk a possible term in the still if caught. It's quite another to commit murder and burn for it. And that pearl would be so much dead wood in anybody's hands. There's not a fence here or in Europe that would touch it—no, sir, the one thing that man didn't want after he killed Mrs. Paige was the pearl."

"A very plausible theory," commented Anderson thoughtfully. "It seems to cover all the facts in the case, though I can't be certain of that until we've had the pearl appraised and its actual value ascertained. But why did the burglar ever gag her in the first place? Why didn't he hit her over the head and grab the pearl and run? Surely he must have seen it dangling around her neck."

Shows Confidence

"Search me," answered Judson, rising and cocking his hat on the back of his head. "When I catch the thief, you can ask him all those questions. Doubtless he had a good reason for acting as he did. Well, Inspector, shall we shake on it?" extending his hand.

"Sure thing," replied Anderson, with his agreeable smile. "Shoot straight with us and you won't lose anything by it."

The two men shook hands.

"Goodby, Kay," said Judson, turning to me. "Don't forget the publicity, will you? I have a wife and a couple of kids. It won't hurt me any."

I laughed at his bluntness.

"I won't," I promised.

"Well, so long," said Judson. "I'll be seeing you soon again. Probably drop in with a prisoner at headquarters some time tomorrow."

And he was gone.

"The worst of it he's quite likely to keep his word," said Anderson gloomily. "He'll come down with some prominent member of the underworld, and, presto, the whole thing will be solved and the police looking like a pack of fools! It's happened more than once!"

"But he's co-operating with you," I pointed out. "That means that any arrest will have to come through headquarters."

"Uh-huh," grunted Anderson. "Maybe. Nevertheless, we're going to keep a mighty wary eye on Mr. Kirk Judson. That court order gave him the run of the premises, but it didn't give him the run by himself. I've given strict orders that he is to be accompanied by myself or Detective Mahler every time he goes through the house."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because I don't want him to go off with the evidence. His promises are all very good, but I trust him just as far as I see him. This house hasn't half been examined yet. I don't want Judson grabbing a good clue and making off with it all by his lonesome."

Synopsis

Sonia (Sunny) Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph (Ranny) Paige, is found hanging by a silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. An autopsy reveals that Sunny had been suffocated first with the tassel of the cord and then hung. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, says the night of the tragedy was her night off and that Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, was to spend the evening with Sunny. Inspector Anderson is furious when Ranny employs Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, to investigate the tragedy.

PRESIDENT WILSON—FACED EMBARRASSING LUSITANIA DISASTER

President Wilson began his first term with the world largely at peace. The great conflagration of Europe (1914) reminded U. S. of conditions existing a century ago, the Napoleonic wars. Blockade of the seas started again. England seized mail and also cargoes dispatched to neutrals, suspecting Germany as the true destination. Germany in turn declared all waters around the coasts of the Allies to be a war zone, and threatened all ships with destruction there by her submarines.

An outstanding disaster with the loss of 1,153 lives (including 114 Americans) was the sinking of the Lusitania May 7, 1915, off the coast of Ireland.

Germany "regretted," but declined responsibility for the loss of lives of Americans on the ground that they had been "warned" of the danger individually and through the press, before sailing by the German embassy in Washington. Further, Germany held, the Lusitania was listed as a reserve ship of the British Navy and had carried ammunition. The indignation aroused in the United States, increased sabotage, attributed to German agents, hastened the break of diplomatic relations with Germany in the fall of 1915.

AN ASSASSINATION THAT STARTED A WAR

Francis Ferdinand, heir to the thrones of Austria and Hungary, and his wife visiting Sarajevo (Bosnia) were murdered by Gavrilo Prinzip June 28, 1914. Suspecting the Serbian government of instigating the crime, Austria declared war on Serbia after a harsh ultimatum. Alliances of both countries drew almost all of Europe into the conflagration. Main combatants were: Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, Turkey, the Central Powers, against France, England, Russia, Italy, Japan (later also the United States), the Allies.

The assassination at Sarajevo was not the cause of war, but only the ignition spark of the explosion, due to unsatisfactory disposition of previous disputes (Franco-Prussian War 1871; Russo-Turkish War 1878), besides efforts of small nationalities in and around Austria toward linguistic and economic unification, and rivalry for expansion of trade (Bagdad Railroad constructed by Germans into the Orient), etc. (World History)

SMALL INTESTINE—ORGAN OF DIGESTION, ABSORPTION

The small intestine has countless glands secreting an alkaline fluid containing four kinds of enzymes acting on proteins and sugar. At top it receives the secretions of liver (bile, acting on fats) and the pancreas, the juice of which contains three enzymes reacting with proteins, carbohydrates and fats. The process of digestion changes carbohydrates into simple sugars, proteins into peptids and amino acids and fats into glycerin, fatty acids and soaps. These pass through the epithelial cell-cover of the millions of villi (thread-like projections containing a meshwork of tiny blood vessels) and the lacteal (lymph vessel).

The fat derivatives pass into the lacteal, all other foods into the blood-vessels (capillaries) by osmosis.

Absorption is completed in the large intestine where the residue of chyme enters as fluid. The large intestine has many glands secreting mucous fluid. As much water is absorbed, the residue (feces) becomes thicker and is moved along slowly by muscles of intestinal wall. Constination leaves poisons in body. Remedy: Bulky food (cereals, vegetables, fruits) and much water. (Gen. Science) Courtesy of The MacMillan Co. (Woodruff, Foundations of Biology)

DAVID, HIS MOTHER AND BRUTAL STEPFATHER

David Copperfield is one of the most popular of Charles Dickens' (1812-1870) immortal novels. In masterful fashion he characterizes his figures—humble people—in whom we readily believe. At heart a reformer, he attacks social abuses. Copperfield is not entirely fiction; much of it depicts Dickens' own life. We get acquainted with the posthumous David's world, his tenderly loving mother, his nurse Pegotty and her family, a happy embodiment of homely goodness. A second marriage of his mother brings Mr. Murdstone into the picture and David's sufferings from the cruel stepfather begin. (English Literature)

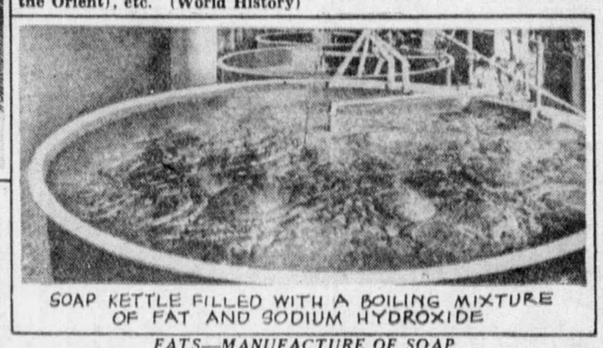
6,000 YEARS FROM TORCH TO KEROSENE LIGHT

The burning wood probably was the earliest source of artificial light, used by the cave man. The pitch knot represented great progress; animal—and vegetable—oil lamps with wick were used when the pyramids were built. Candles date back 30 centuries. They were the main source of artificial light up to the Civil War when newly-discovered petroleum rapidly replaced candles and expensive whale oil. After 1875 gas came into general use, greatly improved by a mantle, superseded by the electric incandescent vacuum lamp, which gave place to those filled with argon gas. Note the rapid progress of last half century, (Gen. Science)



SOAP KETTLE FILLED WITH A BOILING MIXTURE OF FAT AND SODIUM HYDROXIDE

FATS—MANUFACTURE OF SOAP

Fats are esters of glycerin and higher organic acids as: palmitic ($C_{15}H_{31}COOH$), stearic ($C_{17}H_{35}COOH$) and oleic acids ($C_{17}H_{33}COOH$). E. g. glyceryl oleate or olein [$C_3H_5(C_{17}H_{33}COO)_3$] is liquid fat, oil. Glyceryl palmitate or palmitin and stearate or stearin are solid fats. Lard and tallow are mixtures of the three.

Esters with bases give salts of the fatty acids called soaps, the process saponification. Soaps are made commercially from mixed fats (tallow, vegetable oils) or resin and caustic soda (NaOH) giving hard soaps. With potassium hydroxide (KOH) the yield is soft soap.

E. g. $(C_{17}H_{35}COO)_3C_3H_5 + 3NaOH = C_3H_5(OH)_3$ (glycerin) + $3C_{17}H_{35}COONa$ (sodium stearate, a hard soap).

Gravy Is Never Bootlegged

But we noticed that people kept right on eating from 1920 to 1933. If a dainty muncher couldn't get a bottle of Chabaloox Premier he pinned back his ears and ate his hog and hominy just the same.

This business of a different wine with every course is the old berry patch. You can have your fish with sherry and your baked meats with port. You can have your salad with Mookrus Imperial and your dessert with cognac.

All we ask is a dish of beans and the congressional privilege of waggling a hunk of bread in the gravy. That's never been ratified by 36 states. Neither has it ever been banned by three dozen sovereign commonwealths of assorted sizes and shapes.

No wine ever distilled or brewed has the bouquet and flavor of a thumb dripping with clam chowder or a chin swimming in good old potlikker.

When it comes to sopping up brown gravy with a bit of toast we are a soaking dry.

And the best thing about tomato soup is that you don't have to smuggle it in. We will dine with Jiggs and scuffle with his corn beef and cabbage which is known to the carriage trade as Red Mike and violets. You can nibble the gilded crumbs of Park avenue. And we will have the best time.

All a man requires when he is hungry is something to eat. The quicker he gets it the better he likes it. We never did approve of the wines with every dish. The idea is to get you so pickled you will not be able to criticise the cooking.

We have a wine cellar in our house. But it's all gravy. Napoleon 1804 is beef stew of a famous vintage. The ox tails of 1882 ran very well that year. But they didn't run fast enough. We recommend a fine blend of flour, potatoes and oyster cognac bottled behind the barn in 1907. Let that mixture gurgle down your throat. It will polish your crown fenders.

Our Indiana special of 1924 is prized by the connoisseurs of pickled pig's heels and sauerkraut juice. Add one-third cucumber jelly and stir until it whistles. That's something they ain't got in the cellar vaults of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Don't let any head waiter shill you into paying $12 for a bottle of sparkling rainwater when what you really want is some good old domestic waffles bobbing up and down in Vermont maple syrup. It not only tastes better but you are sure that nobody has faked the labels and no one has counterfeited the stamps.

Senate's Weakness Explains Defaulter France's Contempt for U. S.

THE SENATE confirmed the disdain in which Congress is generally held by the public when it rejected the proposal of Senator Clark, of Missouri, to increase the taxes upon wines and distilled spirits exported to this country from any foreign nation in default on its war debts.

Senator Clark's amendment was frankly directed, as Senator Clark said, "to this proposition, that the principal nations of the world which are in default to us are looking to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to lead them out of the depression, and at the same time they are thumbing their noses at us on the debts they owe us. This amendment is for the purpose of penalizing the nations that are acting as dead-beats in the world."

A NAMBY-PAMBY debate ensued, which, by itself, might explain the contempt with which defaulter France views our rights as a creditor and our ability to exact performance of the obligations we hold.

Every reason that timidity and weakness could think of, every consideration that could be expressed in wordy and empty phrases, was urged against the amendment—such as, the present is an "inopportune" time to deal with the foreign debt question; Congress is "quite likely" to reach the question and give it consideration before adjournment; there are "many angles" to this question; the American people are eager to find markets for their surplus products; trade and commerce are indispensable to our welfare and prosperity; there has been no "intensive re-examination" of the broad questions involved; there is no report resulting from a "comprehensive study of their implications"; the debt question has broader implications than are suggested by the amendment—et cetera, et cetera.

STUFF and nonsense!

It was completely punctured by the quiet remark of Senator Clark that his thought in proposing the amendment was "that it would awaken the self interest of the debtor European nations to the fact that the United States is thoroughly IN EARNEST IN WANTING PAID the debts due it."

The debate offered an opening to that rugged independent from Nebraska, Senator Norris, to express with characteristic bluntness some thoughts which went to the core of the matter.

"It seems to me," said Senator Norris, "that the idea of HEREAFTER considering the debts should not be entertained. We have had the question of the debts before us and have debated it at length against the ideas of some of us who believe the debts were fairly and HONESTLY INCURRED and OUGHT TO BE PAID IN FULL. We have seen agreements between our government and other governments by which nearly the whole of the debt was forgiven, and now NO PAYMENTS ARE MADE ON THE SETTLEMENTS AGREED TO.

"The debtor nations asked for the money they received; we did not force it upon them. When they came to settle we generously took off one-half of the debt, and our people have to pay the other half, and are paying it now."

BUT THE effect of these patriotic words was soon lost. The amendment, at first adopted, was reconsidered and defeated on the following day.

The strong and consistent course proved a little too stiff for the Senate majority. It apparently was willing—as John Quincy Adams said in discussing French defaults in Andrew Jackson's time—"to come down to the lower degradation of reopening NEGOTIATIONS TO OBTAIN THAT WHICH HAS ALREADY BEEN ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE OUR DUE."

The performance of the Senate on the Clark amendment is not pleasing to the people!

They will stand for no shilly-shallying in this matter of the defaulted debts. Nothing short of a clear, ringing and forceful policy—such as Jackson's in a similar emergency—will satisfy the America of today.

It should not be difficult for senators, regardless of party, to ascertain this to be true.

And it should not take the Senate long to see that a feeling so prevalent, strong and united, should be reflected and expressed—not obscured—by the Senate's course of action!

No Longer Trivial

The First Sentence Imposed for Violation of the New Liquor Law Is a Warning to Bootleggers.

In the latter years of the prohibition era bootlegging became so common an offense that the courts ceased to regard it as very serious. Consequently first offenders frequently were not required to serve a single day in prison, and even those who had been previously convicted often escaped with payment of a light fine.

If bootleggers and speakeasy proprietors expected a continuance of that leniency, the sentence imposed by Judge George V. Moore in Quarter Sessions Court on the first person convicted under the new state liquor law will come as a shock. The defendant, found guilty of possessing contraband liquor on which the stamp tax had not been paid, was sentenced to serve six months in jail or to pay a fine of $300.

The sentence, though severe, is not too severe. A warning is needed that bootlegging will now not be tolerated.

Safeguard Mayview

"Conley cited the Kline Infirmary annex—remodeled from a large barn—with 100 inmates, 21 of whom, sleeping on a balcony, would likely perish in event of fire."

This grim warning comes from a report of Assistant Fire Chief Louis J. Conley's findings as to fire hazards at the city's welfare institution at Mayview.

The duty of the Council, to which the statement was submitted, is clear. The city's wards must be protected, even though the protection involves an unforeseen expenditure of money at a time when economy is especially desirable.

Let Conley's opinion be checked. Let other authorities on fire hazards visit Mayview and report. If they uphold the assistant fire chief's judgment, Council will have no reasonable alternative but to take the steps necessary to protect the lives entrusted to the city's care and to safeguard valuable city property.

The Aim of the CWA

If It Is Designed to Take Men From the Public Relief Rolls, It Has Not Accomplished Much.

The general impression was that the Civil Works Administration was established to furnish jobs for destitute men and women. But it develops that while 21,000 men have been placed on the CWA payroll in Allegheny County only 2,812 names have been removed from the public relief roll.

It must be admitted that in view of the haste in which the CWA work was organized it was inevitable that mistakes should be made.

It must also be admitted that it is desirable to furnish jobs to unemployed men even if they have not yet been forced to apply for public relief.

But, giving due consideration to these excuses, we cannot avoid the conclusion that so far as Allegheny County is concerned the CWA has fallen far short of accomplishing what was expected of it.

School Merger Urged

The President of the National Educational Association Shows How Money Can Be Saved

Miss Jessie Gray, president of the National Educational Association, indicated in her address to the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association Tuesday night how the school situation can be improved and money saved for the taxpayers.

The remedy lies in consolidating school districts and schools, thereby making it possible to dispense with the services of unnecessary administrative officials.

Pittsburgh found it profitable years ago to do away with the numerous schoolboards—one for each ward—that formerly managed our educational affairs, substituting in their stead one small board of directors appointed by the Court of Common Pleas.

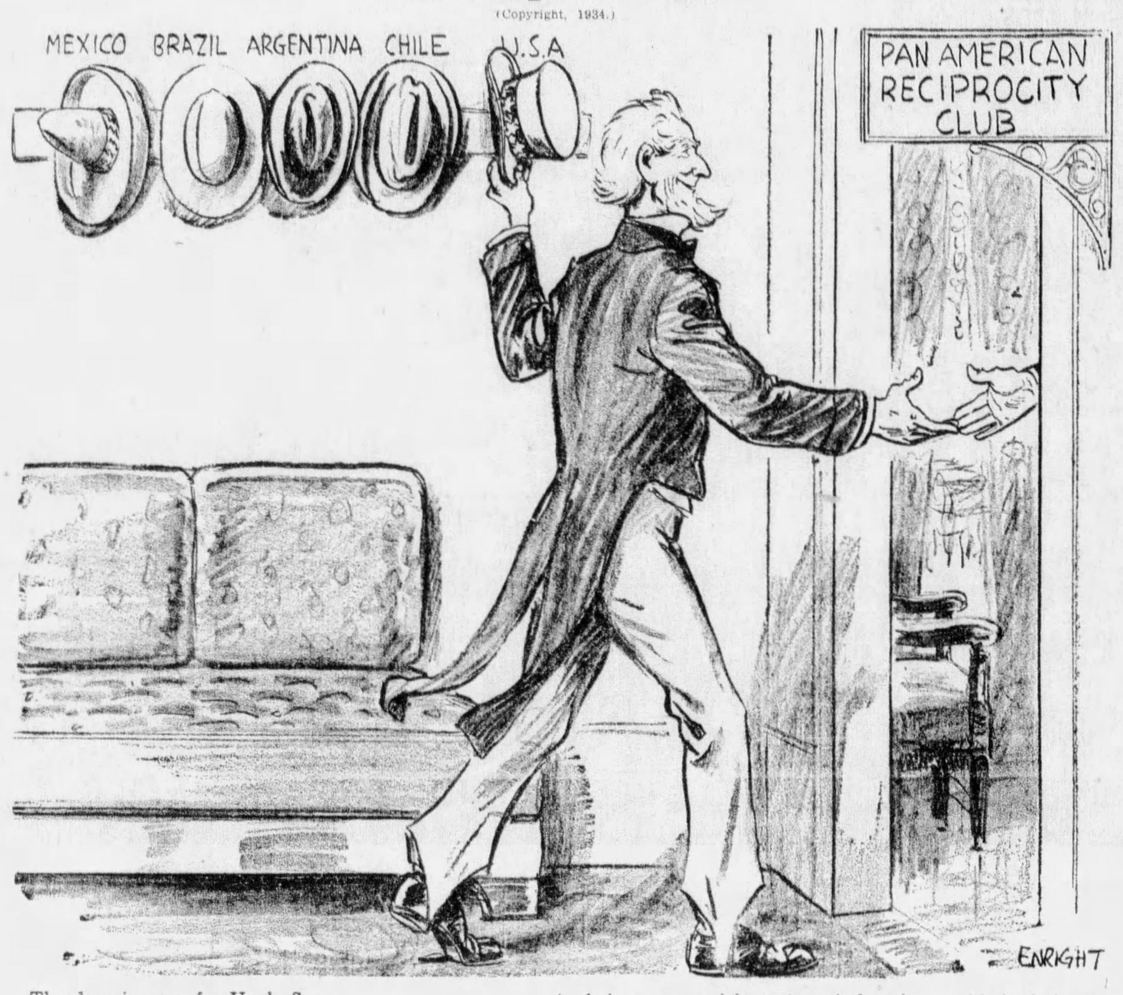
The same principle might well be applied to the management of the schools in Allegheny County outside of the cities.

We have now more than a hundred independent school districts in the county—each with its own board, solicitor, auditor, tax collector and secretary. It would make for efficiency to do away with these multifarious boards and let one central authority manage the county schools.

Such a move would save hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for the taxpayers of Allegheny County.

The Open Door

(Copyright, 1934.)



The door is open for Uncle Sam.

At the Pan-American Conference in Montevideo Secretary Hull and the diplomatists of our sister republics agreed upon reciprocity as the basis for a new and better Pan-American prosperity.

Several of the South American nations now have bilateral treaties for the friendly enchange of non-competitive products.

Into such a plan this country fits perfectly. South and Central America would find an expanding market here for their raw materials, and our industries would obtain in return increasing markets for our manufactures.

Now that Secretary Hull has prepared the way, we urge upon Congress the wisdom of carrying this great policy through.

Friendly trade relations between the United States and Latin America should be the keystone of our foreign commerce.

Economic Slavery

By ROBERT H. HUMPHILL, Financial Authority

IN 1818 THE legislative committee of the State of New York in their report said:

"Of all aristocracies, none more completely enslaves a people than that of money; and, in the opinion of your committee, no system was ever better devised so perfectly to enslave a community as that of the present mode of conducting banking establishments.

"Like the siren of fable, they entice to destroy. They hold the pursestrings of society, and by monopolizing the whole of the circulating medium of the country, they form a precarious standard by which all the property in the country—homes, lands, debts and credits, personal and real estate of all description—are valued, thus rendering the whole community dependent upon them; proscribing every man who dares to expose their unlawful practices."

In the history of the country there have been periodical crises—struggles by the forces of democracy to recover the control of the nation's money by issuing full legal tender money, against which this group of international bankers has fought desperately, using every available weapon.

IN THE autumn of 1862 a "confidential circular" was issued by an agent of European capitalists to American bankers, known as "The Hazard Circular." It reads as follows:

"Slavery is likely to be abolished by the war power, and chattel slavery destroyed. This, I and my European friends are in favor of, for slavery is but the owning of labor, and carries with it the care of the laborer; while THE EUROPEAN PLAN, LED ON BY ENGLAND, IS CAPITAL'S CONTROL OF LABOR, BY CONTROLLING WAGES. THIS CAN BE DONE BY CONTROLLING THE MONEY. THE GREAT DEBT THAT CAPITALISTS WILL SEE TO IT IS MADE OUT OF THE WAR, MUST BE USED AS A MEASURE TO CONTROL THE VOLUME OF MONEY. TO ACCOMPLISH THIS THE BONDS MUST BE USED AS A BANKING BASIS. We are now waiting to get the Secretary of the Treasury to make this recommendation to Congress."

During the interim between these crises, these international banking houses have continued to preserve and strengthen their hold upon public sentiment by acquiring an increasing grip upon the banking system of the country and upon the leading newspapers and publications; by dictating the personnel of the Treasury and financial departments of the government, and by constantly endeavoring to include within their group of sympathizers every person who had sufficient prominence to materially affect the legislative sentiment of the country.

AT THE same time they have increased their hold upon the government itself by directing legislation in such channels that the government would constantly increase its interest-bearing obligations, and by a continuous barrage of propaganda sought to fasten in the minds of the people the idea that the government must BORROW money—that to issue money is some vague sort of suicide.

The issuance of government bonds, interest and principal of which must be raised by taxation, is, in the final analysis, a system of levying tribute on the whole country, to be paid to this monied aristocracy in control of the central banks, in turn for credit which they create at no cost to themselves—a mere bookkeeping entry, which is put into circulation as a substitute for money.

(The foregoing article is the third in a series of four on "Economic Slavery." The concluding article will appear in an early issue, probably tomorrow).

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do We Listen to Gossip?

I found myself listening to a lie the other day. Not a very important lie—just a silly bit of scandal about someone I knew vaguely. But after my gossiping friend had departed, I thought, with horror and amazement, of what I had done.

Why on earth had I listened to such a tale? Was there a particle of proof that it was true? No, there wasn't. Would I have listened if the victim of that slander had been present and able to defend herself? No, I wouldn't. And didn't I know how angry and pained she would be if she knew that such a cheap tale were going the rounds? I certainly did.

Yet, knowing all this, I sat there and listened to that slander—and actually enjoyed it. Yet I'd have sworn that I wasn't "that sort of person." I'd have stoutly insisted that I despised gossip. But wasn't I just kidding myself? Did I really despise gossip as much as I thought?

In answer, there rose up before me memories of countless tattling tales I'd heard: of really cruel slanders to which I'd lent an ear, even though I knew they meant heart-break and humiliation to somebody.

How could I? I'm not hard-hearted. The sight of suffering makes me utterly wretched: I'll do anything to ease it. And yet—again and again I've aided and abetted torture by listening to lies.

Why did I do it? Why do we all do it? Why do even the fairest and finest of us listen to lies—even to utterly incredible and unfounded lies—though we'd never lift a hand in actual hurt toward a human soul?

Is it because we're unconsciously vicious? I don't think so.

I BELIEVE IT'S BECAUSE WE'RE BORED!

Life, most times, is a pretty monotonous affair. The days drag on with the same old jobs, the some old incidents and interests. How that monotony galls! If only we could go somewhere, see something, do something new! If only something would happen. But we haven't the money or time for travel or adventure—and nothing happens. So there we sit, bored to tears.

Then in comes somebody with an exciting bit of scandal!

It may be—probably is—obviously untrue. Worse than that, it may be revoltingly cruel or malign. And we probably haven't a particle of personal interest in the person who's peddling the gossip.

BUT, OH, HOW WE WELCOME A LITTLE EXCITEMENT!

What a relief it is to have something different to think about; something naughty, to relieve the tiresome round of our own respectability!

So we open our ears eagerly, chuckle and raise our eyebrows, nod and look wise.

AND ALL THE TIME SOME POOR HUMAN SPIRIT IS BEING MAULED AND MUDDLED TO SHAME AND DESPAIR.

But we don't think of that. We'd indignantly deny that we meant any harm.

We're just "getting a little fun for ourselves"—a little excitement; perhaps, a little sense of importance.

HOW SURPRISED WE'D BE IF, BY SOME MAGIC, WE SHOULD SUDDENLY SEE THE HUMAN BLOOD AND TEARS THAT FOULS OUR CRUEL HANDS!

ISN'T IT SO?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Nearest perhaps to an American Max Beerbohm i Frank Crowninshield, editor, bon vivant and one of the few civilized personalities in every meaning of the word. He comes of distinguished New England lineage comparable to the Cabots and Lodges.

Born in Paris, his education was largely abroad. He began his editorial career on the Bookman and successively displayed an artistic range on the Metropolitan, Century and Vanity Fair. His charm, grace and wit have been seen most advantageously at the select Coffee House club, which he sponsored.

Crowninshield's contacts blossom naturally into old world conversational spontaneity. Although he shies at oratory, he is regarded the cleverest after-dinner speaker since Depew. A confirmed bachelor, his small dinner parties are likely the most cultivated in the metropolis.

While his mind falls into pleats of serene optimism, his pen at times becomes a rapier for satiric thrusts. A first nighter, patron of the opera and galleries, few are more entitled to listing under—Last of the Dandies. O, yes, his intimates call him "Crownie."

West 42nd street auction rooms are irresistible. I rarely pass without popping in. Near entrances are men trying to look like the general public but who somehow bear a racial and family resemblance to the auctioneers. They edge up at approach and there is a telepathic benediction from head to head: "A mug, bless him!" The interiors froth with delirious dizziness. Wrist watches, cigarette cases, safety razors and fountain pens seem tumbling down hill in a race of reduction.

Today I watched the sale of a silly china shepherdess curtsying in my direction. Suddenly the auctioneer, a ringer for Sam Bernard, tossed a desk clock at me. A flash of memory recalled the ground bait they used to scatter over the water before angling for little fish. I walked to the counter and placed the clock there—flushing to the ears. As I walked out guiltily a voice jeered: "One of the town's leading sports!"

Also I wandered through the West 20's last evening amid the almost forgotten hotel zone of that area. There are about these modestly lit inns—the Martha Washington, Bronztell, Seville and Prince George—a crinoline crinkle of mid-Victorian dignity. Muted orchestras were playing Viennese waltzes in the foyers and under thin bosquets of palms matronly ladies were knitting while starchy gentlemen with cigars grouped in corners discussing the times. A pleasant pastel.

Bill Halligan has rounded back to the hoop-la after a self exile in Hollywood lasting two years. He arrived to find his New York home of many years—the Friars—shuttered. Halligan, actor, traveler, raconteur, was one of the roaming pals of Jimmy Walker on many night excursions. His name—William Kerry Halligan—is indicative of his race and forthright sentimentality.

Those "strange little people," who have had tough going the last few years in both the theatre and circuses, got a Broadway break the other week in a revival of the tear-jerking old melter, "No Mother to Guide Her!" The cast was entirely of midgets, and although they played their parts with vast earnestness the intent was facetious. Yet laughs were somehow restrained.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Wealth, after all, is a relative thing, since he that has little and wants less is richer than he that has much and wants more.—Colton.

'Tis education forms the common mind:

Text for Today But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man.—Hebrews, ii:9.
